FARMERS MASS TO STARVE CITY

Today

Satisfactory Show.
Clipse, the Yak.
Are We Going Down Hill?
Atlanta Says No.

—By ARTHUR BRISBANE—

IN NEW YORK CITY, where this is written, overlooking the East River, Brooklyn Bridge and some skyscrapers, the eclipse did its best against clouds and haze, and office boys, printers, pressmen, reporters and odds and ends of editors on the roof, looking through smoked glass, were satisfied with the performance.

Men appreciate health when sickness comes. Many yesterday appreciated the sunlight when it suddenly departed, leaving darkness that made it difficult to sign a payroll.

Human beings, thanks to the power of advertising, knew what was coming. Some looked, some did not, all went about their business calmly in the brief, comparative darkness.

IN THE BRONX zoological darkness there was more excitement. Birds stopped their chatterings and prepared for sleep. The owl opened his eyes, hooted and was, presumably, embarrassed when the sun came back and silenced him.

The sea lions, regularly fed at the time of the eclipse, forgot to bark when the darkness came, concluding, perhaps, that they had had dinner and forgotten it.

Beavers rose from their underground holes to repair their house.

It had been purposely damaged to see what they would do. They soon went below, much puzzled by the shortness of the night.

A BABY YAK, born while the eclipse was on, will go through life called "Clipse." In Tibet, home of his mother, where yak butter mixed with yak hair may be found in every cup of tea, such an eclipse would cause wild excitement, and unusually generous contributions to the thousands of Buddhist monasteries.

The latter would get all the credit for bringing back the sun.

THE "APOSTLE of doom," real name Robert Reidt, and of Freeport, Long Island, is disappointed today. Like the owl and the beaver he took the eclipse too seriously, predicted an accompanying earthquake that would destroy New York, and tacked on to one of his other prophecies the item:

"Europe will demolish the United States in war.'

Seven years ago this same prophet predicted the end of the world. He was sure of it yesterday, but the little moon passed in front of the big lamp, and that was all.

MORE SAD NEWS concerning our fate come from an important German magazine called "Querschnitt." It says:

"We don't believe in America any more."

"Querschnitt" agrees with other Europeans authorities that we have lost our energy, our resources are limited, we have become conservative and are on the road to decadence.

AS FOR OUR resources, when you consider that this country within a few years will have laid out twenty-one thousand million dollars to war veterans alone, you realize that we have SOME resources.

AND WHEN YOU consider further that our oil is practically inexhaustible, while our gold and silver supplies have been barely tapped, you are inclined to assure "Querschnitt" that we shall probably go along as "the land of opportunity" for some time to come.

ONE DAY Europe tells us:

"You are so rich that you ought not to ask payment of ten thousand millions that we owe you."

Next day we are told that we are decadent, on the down grade —:

"We have lost confidence in you."

Very puzzling.

ATLANTA, GEORGIA, reports more cheerful days in the south, with cotton and tobacco recently rising in value "on paper" by five hundred million dollars.

President Hoover is told by important steel men that recovery in the steel industry is just around the corner. Cold, cynical Mr. "Bugs" Baer says the difficulty is to find the corner. It seems certain, however, that conditions are getting better, perhaps because they could not get much worse.

NOT SO VERY long ago William Gibbs McAdoo adopted California as his home state. California, returning the compliment, adopts McAdoo with a vengeance. In the Democratic senatorial primaries, yesterday, he beat all competition two to one.

Those that remember young McAdoo when he was building his tunnel under the North River, against financial, political and other odds, remember his great energy, and those that saw him recently, when he overcame the booing galleries in the Democratic convention in Chicago, know that he still has plenty of energy left for his work.

BANDITS WITH deadly weapons in automobiles have appeared near London, and that old-fashioned city is excited. Scotland Yard puts a ring of detectives and policemen around the big city, examines cars on bridges and highways, really shows interest in the fact that crime is organizing itself.

We don't take things as seriously in the United States.

GUNS GUARD COURT IN FEAR OF ATTACK

By WILLIAM K. HUTCHINSON
International News Service.

CHEROKEE, Ia., Sept. 1.—Seventy-five armed deputies were posted in the Courthouse today when Sheriff Tilton received reports that 200 Farm Holiday adherents were gathering at Walnut Grove with the avowed intention of coming here "to get" five persons they hold responsible for shooting 14 pickets near here early yesterday morning.

A group of 400 farmers massed at Lemars to descend on this area with the avowed purpose of shutting off its food supply until the perpetrators of the strikers' "massacre" are brought to justice.

VIOLENCE DENOUNCED

Gov. Dan Turner, of Iowa, meanwhile broke a long silence to denounce the use of force in the strike movement and to call upon peace officers to preserve order. He had nothing to say about the attack on farmers here.

Sheriff Tilton, with guns bristling from every window of the courthouse, and all visitors barred until identified, promised to solve the mysterious attack on the farmers "if the farmers will cooperate with me," but reported no progress in his inquiry.

A state-wide truce in the farm strike was ordered by John Chalmers, state holiday chairman, "to

Ex-County Officials, Politicians Face Jury Charges

BULLETIN.

Watson Bowser, Kittanning contractor, was recalled before the grand jury late today as presentments were being whipped into shape in the double investigation of allegel irregularities in county government and ta xreceipt frauds. He remained in the jury room only a few minutes.

Former high county officials and political workers are expected to be recommended for indictment this afternoon when the June grand jury, winding up its long investigation of alleged county misgovernment and tax receipt frauds, makes its presentment in court.

The grand jury, its term prolonged two months beyond its usual period, was busy with routine duties this morning preparatory to formal approval of the presentments which have been prepared by District Attorney A. T. Park and his aides.

Ten or 12 persons are reported to be named in the presentments.

Two separate presentments are expected. The first will deal entirely with the wholesale distri-

Mayor Walker Should Let the People Decide

MAYOR WALKER HAS been arraigned before the Governor of New York on charges of malfeasance in office made by a reform committee with former Judge Seabury at the head.

The investigation made by the committee cannot be described properly as anything but a biased and one-sided one.

Nearly all prosecuting investigations are biased. This one was particularly so, and not to be greatly criticized on that account; because the purposes of such a committee are to make the best possible case for their contention, and to use to the limit the extraordinary privileges which they possess as the agent of the Legislature.

The case is being presented before the Governor very much in the same partisan manner as far as the representative of the committee, former Judge Seabury, is concerned.

Supreme Court Justice Staley, in passing upon a phase of the case referred to him, declared that Mayor Walker had been denied a "fair trial" according to the rules of evidence.

Nevertheless it is being conducted within the prescribed powers of such investigations.

AS A MATTER OF FACT, very little of what might be termed legal evidence has been presented to the consideration of the Governor.

A great many inferences have been drawn by the committee, a great many intimations of possible guilt have been made; but no convincing evidence of any serious malfeasance has been submitted.

The question of the removal of the Mayor of the city of New York is primarily a matter of major interest to the people of the city of New York.

All the evidence against the Mayor has been prepared by a committee provided with extraordinary powers.

All the inferences have been publicly drawn by this committee.

All the intimations have been widely circulated.

THE CASE AGAINST Mayor Walker is complete and ready to be submitted to the body which is chiefly concerned in the Mayor's merits or demerits; namely, the voting public of New York City.

It is not known, of course, whether the Governor of New York will refer the case of the Mayor back to the people of New York City or not.

He may say that while he has the power to remove on inferences and intimations, he does not feel that it would be just for him to do so.

He may say that an election for Mayor of New York City is to be held next year and the fitness of Mayor Walker for the mayorality is something to be decided by the people of New York City.

He may, on the other hand, remove the Mayor.

IF MAYOR WALKER has confidence in the rectitude of his course, and the strength of his case, and if he believes that the investigating committee is a purely partisan and prejudiced body; and if he thinks that Justice Staley is right in asserting that he has been denied a "fair trial," there is only one thing for him to do and that is to resign and submit his case at the next election to the final and all-powerful court of public opinion.

If the people of New York City approve Mayor Walker or disapprove Mayor Walker, the verdict will be final and unquestioned; and the very dubious and disquieting incident will have reached its legitimate end.

NORMAN'S TRIP HOME AWAITED

England Looking to America for Reduction

By ROBERT BARRY
Universal Service.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 1.—That formal diplomatic negotiations between the United States and Great Britain looking to war debts cancellation will start immediately upon the return to England of Montagu Norman, governor of the Bank of England, was learned from the highest official quarter today.

All that remains to put the machinery of mediation officially in motion is a report from Norman, alias "Prof. Clarence Skinner," on his secret conferences in this country.

NORMAN'S PROGRAM

From an equally unimpeachable source, it was learned that Norman came to the United States with a definite program of six points which he used as the basis of his conversations with American financiers and government officials. His program was:

1—Reduction or cancellation of the $11,000,000,000 in war debts owed to the United States by Europe.

2—A $5,000,000,000 international short-term loan, with the United States participating, to help Europe liquidate its debts.

3—World-wide agreement to inflate commodity prices. This would have the effect of raising the value of the pound sterling.

4—Reduction of England's debt to a three per cent basis.

5—Lowering of the Bank of England's rediscount rate to encourage the vast international loan flotation and to stimulate the movement to inflate commodity prices.

6—England's return to the gold standard.

ALFONSO SLUGS PHOTOGRAPHER

BUDAPEST, Sept. 1.—(INS.)—Former King Alfonso of Spain, who before his dethronement was probably the most photographed monarch in the world, battled today with a cameraman who tried to snap his picture while he was lunching in the Ritz Hotel.

Alfonso rose from his table when the photographer indicated his determination to get the picture against the ex-King's wishes. He sailed into the cameraman, smashing the camera, and was getting warmed up to a good fight when a flying wedge of waiters arrived and ejected the lensman.

Margaret Mayo Files Suit to Save River

WHITE PLAINS, N. Y., Sept. 1.—(INS.)—Margaret Mayo, noted playwright, wants her river. In an application on file today in Supreme Court, she asked another injunction to restrain New York City from draining the Croton River, which passes by her home.

Gunmen Loot Bank, Kidnap Girl, Escape

FLANDREAU, S. D., Sept. 1.—(AP.)—Five men, armed with machine guns, raided the First National Bank of Flandreau early today, kidnaped a girl clerk, slugged a customer and fled with about $2,000.

SWEARS GLORIA NEEDS HER BAR

LOS ANGELES, Sept. 1.—(AP.)—Superior Judge E. H. Wilson was deciding today what part of the furnishings in the home of Gloria Swanson, film star, can be classed as necessary.

After listening to argument centering around efforts of William J. Saylor, Ltd., New York importer, to attach furnishings for alleged failure to pay $6,000 on a promissory note, the court took the matter under advisement yesterday.

Counsel for the Saylor company informed Judge Wilson that the law allowed the actress only enough furnishings to make her comfortable.

The actress, now in London, contended her business necessitated her furnishing a home tastefully and expensively.

The importer, through counsel, denied a "powder room," a "barroom," an antique eighteenth century lamp base, a seventeenth century map of Paris and other accoutrements of the Swanson menage were vital.

Lois Wilson, Miss Swanson's actress friend, asserted by affidavit that the Swanson place, in Beverly Hills, was not furnished expensively.

Those old gilt Meduse masks in the library and the pair of Angelics Kauffman paintings, not to mention sundry things in the barroom, were absolutely necessary, Miss Wilson stated.

Heat Relief Due Here Tonight

The heat wave that has held Pittsburgh in its grasp for several days will end tonight, Forecaster W. S. Brotzman, announced today.

While awaiting the arrival of the predicted "cooler weather tonight and Friday," the city again sweltered this afternoon.

Today's peak temperature was 94 at 2 p. m., one degree below the season's high of 95 recorded yesterday. A half hour later a one-degree drop was recorded.

As the mercury mounted into the 90's today, Judge Thomas M. Marshall in Criminal Court, appeared without judical robes and wearing a plain white shirt. Clerks in the court rolled up their shirt sleeves. In Common Pleas Court, Judge George V. Moore retained his robe and the clerks sweltered in conventional business suits.

Forecaster Brotzman said the humidity at 9 a. m. today was 82 as compared with 71 yesterday.

RUDY CONFERS WITH ATTORNEY

NEW YORK, Sept. 1.—(INS.)—Rudy Vallee, spic and span in a Palm Beach suit, was in town today to confer with his attorney about his wife's divorce plans.

He arrived last night from Massachusetts, rehearsed at the NBC Radio Station today, was to see former Magistrate Hyman Bushel this afternoon and then leave for Atlantic City.

Bushel will issue a statement tomorrow.

Vallee wouldn't say whether he plans to see his wife, the former Fay Webb, before he departs. She is due to leave for the West tomorrow and, it is reported, will stop off at Reno.

CAPONE SLEUTH FIRED BY U. S.

The Department of Justice agent for whom William A. (Woogie) Harris, pioneer "numbers" operator, posted a $500 bond in Dormont, today was among the unemployed.

The agent, Thomas J. Friel, 38, has been fired. Word of the dismissal was received at the Department of Justice's Bureau of Prohibition in the Commonwealth Annex.

Presumably the dismissal had to do with Friel's arrest in Dormont on charges of driving while under the influence of liquor, disorderly conduct and resisting arrest.

Friel had been in jail more than 15 hours when Woogie, one of the best-known Negroes on the Hill and in political circles, hurried to the rescue with a $500 property bond.

Friel will be arraigned in Dormont Police Court tonight. Police Capt. C. H. Hasley reported that Friel had split Hasley's lip and broken Patrolman George Strickler's thumb when they sought to quiet him.

Steel Furnace Head Found Dead in Home

R. C. Taylor, 60, superintendent of the Isabella furnaces of Carnegie Steel Company, was found dead in the bathroom of his home at 620 Mellon street, East End, today.

His family is absent on a vacation. Taylor had been missing from work since Tuesday. Today his assistant, Thomas Ayers, went to the home and found the body. Death apparently was from natural causes.

4 Naval Fliers Die In Panama Crash

COLON, Panama, Sept. 1.—(INS.)—Four American naval fliers, all enlisted men, were killed today when a Navy amphibian patrol plane crashed into the Folks River near the Coco Solo air base.

The dead were: C. Bugonia, Binghamton, N. Y.; Dr. R. Glaze, Hopkins County, Tex.; W. S. Manthorne, Brockton, Mass., and J. H. Schnitzlein, Brooklyn, N. Y.

Mrs. Carnegie's Niece Elopes With Athlete

NEW YORK, Sept. 1.—(INS.)—Somewhere on Long Island, Primrose Whitfield, favorite niece of the immensely wealthy Mrs. Andrew Carnegie, and William C. Gaynor, former Columbia University athlete, are honeymooning and wondering perhaps whether their parents will be ready to give the customary parental blessing.

They were married at the Marble Collegiate Church, on Fifth avenue, with the parents of neither in attendance.

The mother of the bride, Mrs. Henry D. Whitfield, refused to discuss the elopement, but the parents of the bridegroom admitted that they thought their son and Primrose had "some sort of an understanding."

King Alfonso's Son To Go Under Knife

COLOMBO, Ceylon, Sept. 1.—(AP.)—Don Juan, son of former King Alfonso, of Spain, has recovered from an attack of malaria which has kept him in a hospital for several weeks, but today his doctors disclosed that he would have to submit to an operation for appendicitis. The young man is a midshipman with the British fleet.

Mayor Walker Weeps At Brother's Grave

NEW YORK, Sept. 1.—(AP.)—The Mayor of New York, James J. Walker, wept beside the grave of his brother, George, today while his friends expressed deep concern because of his appearance.

The executive, who must again take up the defense of his administration before Gov. Roosevelt tomorrow, was extremely pale and throughout the rites of his brother's funeral he appeared to be exerting great effort to save himself from collapse.

St. Patrick's Cathedral, seating 3,000 persons, was filled to capacity for the solemn high requiem.

MELLON, SILENT ON DEBTS, SAILS

By SEYMOUR BERKSON
Universal Service.

NEW YORK, Sept. 1.—Andrew W. Mellon, ambassador to Great Britain, sailed for England last night, declining to cast any light on the mysterious mission in America of Montagu Norman, head of the Bank of England, or to state his own views on proposals to cancel foreign war debts.

Asked what connection Norman's incognito presence here as "Prof. Clarence Skinner" has with the fact that Britain must notify this country by September 15 whether it intends to resume payments of its war debt on December 15, Ambassador Mellon replied:

"I don't want to say anything about that. I don't want to make headlines and I don't think I should discuss those things. I don't want to put my foot in the puddle."

AWAIT RETURN OF NORMAN TO LONDON

Skinner's' Secret Data Needed as Basis Of Negotiations

can international bankers, although outwardly they maintain Norman is here "for his health" and that no financial conversations have been held.

GROUNDWORK LAID

While Norman's secret conferences have been entirely unofficial and informal, it is declared in informed circles that his parleys have laid the groundwork upon which the official negotiations between the United States and Great Britain will proceed.

The Bank of England's governor has been most frank, almost blunt, in his suggestions to American financial powers and government officials. On the one hand, he frankly seeks total cancellation, if possible, of the $11,000,000,000 war debts. On the other, he blandly suggests a $5,000,000,000 international loan to Europe to "liquidate its debts," although it is apparent that this means "liquidate" its debts to everybody but the United States. And of this international loan, Norman subtly informed American bankers and officials that the United States "would be expected to take a share." The loan is to run for a period of three to five years.

When "Prof. Skinner" reports in London, it is expected there will be little delay in exchanges between the Hoover administration and the British government. Secretary of State Stimson will return from his vacation after Labor Day, and Sir Ronald Lindsay, the ambassador of Great Britain, will return to the United States from Europe shortly thereafter.

CANCELLATION STEP

It was acknowledged that the United States government does not expect Great Britain to resume payments on December 15. It was stated without equivocation that there is no thought of forcing Great Britain into a formal declaration of default. It was reiterated that the British budget makes no provision for payment and that none is likely. Hence, the Stimson-Lindsay negotiations to evolve a formula for prolongation of the Hoover moratorium or for another step towards cancellation.

Actually, it was acknowledged, the real figures in the negotiations would not be Stimson and Sir Ronald, but Mills, Mellon and Montague Norman, who already have had a clear understanding of the essential factors in the negotiations before Mellon and the Bank of England head returned to London.

That such an understanding has been obtained through the mediaries of Federal Reserve officials and international bankers in New York, and that the work of the go-betweens has been sufficiently satisfactory to render unnecessary any personal meeting between Mills and Norman, now that their respective activities are under such close public scrutiny, was stated here, and attention directed to the fact that the original admission here of the Mills-Norman negotiations was that the Treasury head would see "or communicate with" the Bank of England governor.

MORGAN 'DONATION'

Asserting it was "perhaps a not unexpected inference" that if the Hoover administration negotiated an agreement relieving Great Britain of her December 15 payments in a satisfactory way, British official sentiment would be favorable to the re-election of Hoover so that his acquired prestige would enable him to obtain congressional approval, Washington spokesmen would not admit that the powerful financial support of international bankers would translate that "British sentiment" into something tangible.

The practical politicians of the Capital, however, have no such misgivings the two would go hand in hand and they agree that the hard-pressed Republican campaign collectors would not challenge the validity of a check from J. P. Morgan & Co., fiscal agents of the British government, nor go farther than Broad and Wall streets as to the source of the donation.

It is well understood here that British pride shrinks from any confession of default on a sacred national obligation or contract. It is proposed to get around that through an agreement of some sort. The administration will insist unflinchingly it is opposed to cancellation yet, it was acknowledged privately today, the very negotiations for non-resumption of payments by Europe on December 15, and the non-collection by the administration would constitute an extension of the Hoover moratorium irrespective of what it is called. Some observers declared Congress undoubtedly would view any such agreement as another step on the pathway to cancellation.

CONGRESS STAND

An administration spokesman declared the act of Congress of December 23, 1931, stating "it is hereby expressly declared to be against the policy of Congress that any of the indebtedness of foreign countries to the United States should be in any manner canceled or reduced," did not and could not enjoin the President's constitutional right of negotiation.

The cue for the new negotiations would be taken from Hoover's statement in his recent acceptance speech:

"If for any particular annual payment were offered some other tangible form of compensation such as the expansion of markets for American agriculture and labor, and the restoration and maintenance of our prosperity, then I am sure our citizens would consider such a proposal."

The President never has reduced that general statement to specifications, but Senator Borah, of Idaho, who originated the idea, said candidly he would barter the $11,000,000,000 owing to the United States in return for promises of trade advantages.

Wartime Premier 'Would Prefer to Sell Shirt'

By WILLIAM HILLMAN
Universal Service.

LONDON, Sept. 1.—"I will not be in favor of any British government which defaults on war debts due to the American people. I would prefer to sell our last shirts rather than default."

Thus declared, yesterday, David Lloyd George, Britain's wartime premier and Liberal party leader.

Mr. Lloyd George

His pronouncement on war debts is the first made by any man of political or government prominence since the American public became aroused by the Hearst newspapers' disclosure that the mysterious visit to the United States of Montagu Norman, governor of the Bank of England, is for the purpose of laying the groundwork for formal demands that war debts be revised.

Lloyd George broke through the conspiracy of silence in high places that has shrouded Norman's visit in an interview given to Byron W. Skillion, of Portland, Me., undergraduate editor-in-chief of the Wharton News, publication of the University of Pennsylvania's Wharton School of Finance and Commerce.

Lloyd George told Universal Service that he did not want to elaborate the statement given Skillion.

"Montagu Norman like an Eloping Film Star."

This is the headline the Daily Herald, Laborite organ, carries over a dispatch from Paris, which states the French believe Norman is after French gold.

Italian Chef Reveals King's Favorite Dish

ROME. — (INS.) — Here is a recipe given by Commendatore Pettini, first cook to King Victor Emanuele III. of Italy. It makes a dainty dish to set before a king and yet it is quite simple.

Peel and stone ripe apricots, putting in the place left by the stone a lump of almond paste. Roll them in finely powdered biscuits, dip them in the beaten yolk of an egg and then in fine bread crumbs. Melt butter in an earthenware, fireproof shallow dish, put in your apricots and fry them fast. Drain in the usual way and serve with fine sugar flavored with vanilla.

MA'S OPPONENT HURLS FRAUD CHARGE

Mrs. Ferguson Holds Lead of 2,389 in Texas Race

DALLAS, Tex., Sept. 1.—(AP.)—The Texas Election Bureau tabulation shows Mrs. Miriam A. (Ma) Ferguson leading Gov. Ross S. Sterling by 2,389 votes for the Democratic gubernatorial nomination, with virtually complete returns, but the Governor declares he has obtained a majority of "all the votes lawfully cast."

Coincident with an announcement last night by the bureau it would tabulate no more returns until Saturday, the Governor issued a formal statement concerning the run-off primary of last Saturday and expressed confidence he would be the party's nominee.

Gov. Sterling charged thousands of illegal votes had been cast and "gross errors" had occurred in the count.

GOVERNOR CHALLENGED

AUSTIN, Tex., Sept. 1.—(AP.)—James E. Ferguson, husband of Mrs. Miriam A. Ferguson, said today he would meet Gov. Sterling's challenge to determine the regularity of the vote in last Saturday's Democratic primary. He said:

"Everybody knows that the Ferguson campaign was the campaign of the poor people of this state who had neither money nor official patronage with which to corrupt and influence the voters."

"If Sterling will just have his Highway Commission furnish their affidavit showing how many thousand extra employes were put on the payrolls in the last six weeks before the election, and the amount of money paid them, the public won't hear any more talk about contesting the election.

"The pay of these employes who quit their business, amounted to less than $1,000,000 in the last five weeks before the election, and it is the grossest example of unmitigated official gall for Sterling to be talking about an honest election and an honest count."

AINEY RALLIES; OXYGEN USED

HARRISBURG, Sept. 1.—(INS.)—Rallying with a strength that surprised his family and physician, William D. B. Ainey, resigned chairman of the Public Service Commission, was alive although in a critical condition today.

Ainey's death had been expected momentarily throughout the night, but the former commission chairman rallied after oxygen tanks were pressed into use late yesterday. He was in a semi-conscious condition most of the time, however.

Members of the family have been summoned to the bedside. Ainey, partially paralyzed for several years, is now suffering from pernicious anemia and a serious heart condition.

His record's not official because he carried no barograph, but he's going to try again.

U. S. AIR ACES SEEK RECORD

The trio—Maj. James H. Doolittle, James G. Haizlip and James R. Wedell—took to the starting line three of the fastest racing ships of the country for an official try at the eight-year-old mark of 278 miles an hour set in 1924 by Warrant Officer Bonnett, of France.

Doolittle yesterday rocketed his supercharged 800-horsepower low wing monoplane over a measured 3-kilometer course for an unofficial record of 293.193 miles an hour.

Doolittle's spectacular straight-away dash, although the fastest ever flown in a land plane, will not be recognized by the Federation Aeronautic Internationale because he did not carry a barograph or file formal notice in advance of his flight.

Today, however, he had installed two barographs in his ship and made formal notice of his official attempt upon the world record.

FARMERS MASS FOR ATTACK

save the lives of farmers." He said the whole problem of agricultural relief would be taken up at the conference of governors, called by Gov. Warren E. Green, of South Dakota, to meet in Sioux City, September 9.

COUNTRY AROUSED

The city of Cherokee was quiet, but the countryside seethed with resentment over the attacks on the farmers, many of whom are among the most prominent citizens in Cherokee and adjoining counties. Only a few of the wounded were actually on strike, the others having attended a meeting of farmers, called to discuss the holiday movement.

There was a threat of trouble in the air. A committee of farmers visited Sheriff Tilton, demanding speedy arrest of the assailants. They received little hope of action from the Sheriff and so reported to a gathering of 500 farmers at the nearby town of Pierson. The farmers then organized a picketing squad of about 400 men, who moved during the night in trucks to the town of Lemars, 33 miles west of here.

This army of pickets planned to descend on Cherokee during the day. One of its leaders declared:

"We will go to Cherokee Thursday to blockade all roads and to keep all produce from entering the town — until the men who shot down our brothers are lodged in jail."

SHERIFF IGNORANT

The attitude of Sheriff Tilton puzzled visitors to Cherokee. His only formal statement on the shooting was:

"I know nothing about the shooting, but I will start an investigation immediately."

His first act was to swear in 100 deputies; his next to ask Gov. Turner to call out troops to protect the town from farmers.

GERMANY READY TO BOLT ARMS PARLEY

Equality Demanded In Ultimatum To Allies

By EDWARD L. DEUSS
International News Service.

BERLIN, Sept. 1.—In the hope of offsetting the antagonism aroused in France, the German government today undertook a worldwide demarche serving notice upon all signatories to the Versailles treaty that unless her demands for arms equality are granted, she will withdraw from the League of Nations' disarmament conference.

By delivering the "ultimatum" to all of the former allied powers Germany hoped to obtain favorable reaction in many quarters, thus dulling the edge of the harsh criticism emanating from Paris.

In addition to being an astute diplomatic move, the demarche served to indicate Germany's firm intention of pressing the arms equality demand.

ITALY SYMPATHETIC

Italy, at least, among the large powers, and many smaller nations are expected to lend a sympathetic ear to Germany's insistence that unless the other countries scale down their armaments to the limits imposed by the treaty of Versailles the Reich will withdraw from Geneva and build up machinery of defense on her own responsibility.

Meanwhile, the German press stood solidly behind the demands which placed on parchment the oft-repeated campaign doctrine of Adolf Hitler, National Socialist leader, crystallized in a recent outspoken statement by Lieut. Kurt von Schleicher, Minister of Defense and leading figure in the cabinet of Chancellor Franz von Papen.

France to Consider Germany's Demand

PARIS, Sept. 1.—(INS.)—The French cabinet tonight "will study thoroughly into the German demand" for arms equality, Premier Edouard Herriot declared as he returned to Paris today from a short vacation in the channel islands.

Political circles discussed freely the possibility of a Franco-British entente against Germany on the arms issue, many predicting it as certainty on the basis of a dinner at Cherbourg last night attended by Herriot and Austen Chamberlain, former foreign minister for Great Britain.

The two statesmen had with them a complete copy of the German aide memoire incorporating the arms equality demand, rushed to Cherbourg from Paris to meet Herriot as he returned from the channel isles.

bution of tax receipts. Most of the indictments expected will result from this phase of the investigation, it is believed.

The other presentment will be the result of the investigation into diversion of county gasoline to private use; hauling contracts at the county airport and the contracts for printing ballots.

The grand jury, which finished up most of its work Tuesday, spent part of the day in session yesterday going over its findings. The force of District Attorney Andrew T. Park was busy all day preparing the presentments. Although Judge Elder W. Marshall ordered the grand jury investigation and instructed the jury, the presentments will be made to Judge George V. Moore, presiding during the summer session.

After the presentments have been made [illegible] grand jury probably will be instructed to return and close the indictments as recommended.

1,000 WITNESSES

The investigation as conducted by the June grand jury has been a big undertaking, District Attorney Park said. More than 1,000 witnesses alone were summoned in the investigation of tax receipt distribution. Two hundred persons were questioned from each of the Third, Fourth, Sixth and Twelfth wards.

With the investigation at its end, the grand jury was forced to sum up its findings without the appearance of William Ziefel, former chief clerk of the Board of County Commissioners. The grand jury had hoped to question Ziefel concerning his duties in the commissioners' office and what he might know of certain contracts. Ziefel left his Mt. Mellon Sails, Silent On European Debts administration's unofficial financial Ambassador to all Europe, was interviewed shortly after he boarded the liner Olympic.

After he declined to discuss Norman's mission, Mellon was asked whether he himself favors cancellation of the war debts foreign countries owe the United States. He smiled and replied:

"I'm not going to say whether the debts ought to be cancelled or not."

In response to a query as to whether he took up the matter of war debts with President Hoover during his recent visit to Washington, the Ambassador said:

"That is for President Hoover to say."

Norman is said to be planning to return to England in a day or so as quietly as he came to this country, but Ambassador Mellon said he knew nothing of the British financier's plans and had not talked to him "since leaving London."

RETURN FROM ENGLAND

Ambassador Mellon returned from England July 26, only a few weeks before Norman was discovered in this country traveling under the pseudonym of "Prof. Skinner."

While Norman remained in seclusion at his "hideaway" in Bar Harbor, Me., a press spokesman for J. P. Morgan & Co., international bankers and fiscal agents for Britain, told Universal Service the company "has no statement to make about Mr. Norman's visit"—and added hastily—"at the present time."

The spokesman, F. C. Weems, was as non-committal as Ambassador Mellon about any connection between Norman's mysterious visit and any special war debt favors England may be seeking from America.

When the ship on which Norman sailed to this country touched at Queenstown, Ireland, Junius S. Morgan, son of J. P. Morgan and member of the banking house, boarded the vessel and conferred with Norman.

NORMAN CONFERENCE

Last Saturday, Norman conferred in private with George Leslie Harrison, governor of the Federal Reserve Bank of New York.

Ambassador Mellon and Secretary of the Treasury Ogden L. Mills both arrived in New York Tuesday and spent the day in a series of conferences in Wall Street, which they declared were "matters of personal business." Mills spent some time at the Federal Reserve Bank.

Hergesheimer In Exile To Dodge Bathtub Gin

NEW YORK, Sept. 1.—(INS.)—He refused to drink bathtub gin at parties, and today Joseph Hergesheimer, famed novelist, is a social outcast in the home of many of his former friends.

The writer revealed his pariah status just before he sailed for the Riviera and Germany. He confided:

"In Berlin people will talk to you even though you don't drink what they offer you. I'm looking forward to my [illegible] there."

His friend, Henry L. Mencken, the "Sage of Baltimore," iconoclastic editor and connoisseur of beer, has become the "ideal husband of the western hemisphere" since his wedding two years ago, Hergesheimer said. He explained:

"All of the virtues he kept hidden during his bachelor days have burst into bloom like flowers in spring."

Hoovers Are Hosts At White House Eclipse Party

COUPLE SLAIN IN QUARREL

YOUNGSTOWN, O., Sept. 1—(INS.)—A quarrel over the affections of a woman ended here today in the death of John Dennison, 45, and Lily Jackson, 40, both of whom were shot through the head.

Working on a theory that the couple was murdered, police arrested three men who were in the house at the time of the shooting. They were held as material witnesses. Another man was taken into custody on suspicion.

The shooting occurred in the home of Dennison's brother, Mrs. Jackson's husband resides in Girard, O., according to authorities.

When police arrived on the scene, Dennison was found dead in the living room, and Mrs. Jackson was found dying in the bathroom. She died a short time later.

'Bugs' Baer Describes Happenings in Dark

By ARTHUR (BUGS) BAER

Here's what happened during the eclipse of the sun yesterday.

During the two minutes of total darkness the revenue agents raided three hundred New York speakeasies.

A Fifth avenue hotel charged its patrons for an extra night.

Pullman porters on the Erie started to make up the berths.

Wall Street brokers left their offices at 3:39 and at 3:41 they rushed back again for the next day. Anything can happen overnight.

The spooners on park benches got in a couple of quick hugs before they were sunburned.

The night watchmen are convinced there were thirty-two days in August. But Tammany won't okay the vouchers.

Long Island policeman cracked prisoner with nightstick and jury of golfers decides he used correct club.

Resume Insanity Plea for Ruth Judd

PHOENIX, Ariz., Sept. 1.—(INS.)—Attorneys for Winnie Ruth Judd, "Velvet Tigress" under sentence to be hanged for killing her two women friends here and shipping their bodies in trunks to Los Angeles, planned to file briefs today with the State Supreme Court in an effort to obtain a definition of "legal insanity" in their fight to save her from the gallows.

Mrs. Judd is now in "Dead Row" at the State Prison, Florence, Ariz.

Son of Kittanning Constable Ends Life

KITTANNING, Pa., Sept. 1.—(AP.)—Firing a bullet from his father's service revolver, Eugene Cable, 27, son of a constable, committed suicide yesterday.

Air Beacons Flash As Sun Is Dimmed

CHICAGO, Sept. 1.—(AP.)—Air mail pilots reported that automatically-operated airway beacons turned on and flashed for several minutes during the eclipse.

Sensitive mechanisms that switch the beacons on at sunset and off at sunrise were affected by the partial disappearance of the sun.

Convicts Locked Up During Dark Period

DANNEMORA, N. Y., Sept. 1.—(AP.)—Fearing convicts might attempt to escape while the sun was darkened by the moon yesterday, Clinton Prison authorities locked them all in their cells. The eclipse occurred during the regular recreation period.

Gorilla Ignores Eclipse, Condor Goes to Bed

WASHINGTON, Sept. 1.—(AP.)—To the zoo's baby gorilla, 3-year-old Okero, and his simian relatives the eclipse seemed just a passing and unimportant event.

There was a theory that Okero and his kind, believed by some to be distant kinsmen of man himself, might show interesting primitive savage traits. If they noticed the phenomenon at all, they apparently figured it was only a commonplace cloud.

As the eclipse began, Okero was interested in some bits of straw in his cage. As its intensity grew, he turned to setting-up exercises. Near the maximum shadow, he gave the baby chimpanzee a lusty biff on the ear. At the very peak of the eclipse he yawned and then made a wild dash to the front of his cage. An attendant had arrived with some food.

The eclipse scored one definite reaction at the zoo. Before it began, the big South American condor, who would be living in the tall mountains if let alone, lay in the dust in his pen, panting like an exhausted dog.

The bird raised its head hopefully as the light became thin. He waited and as it grew like late afternoon wobbled over for a drink of water. Pausing and panting some more, the condor then retired into the roofed enclosure where he spends the night.

SAVANT DENIES FINDING NEW GAS IN SUN

Widely Disseminated Report Refuted By Japanese

ALFRED, Me., Sept. 1.—(AP.)—Denial of a report of discovering a new gas in the sun during yesterday's eclipse was made today by N. Hirayama, leader of the Japanese astronomical expedition here.

Perfect spectrum pictures were taken, Dr. Hirayama said. These are the sort of photos ordinarily used to search for new chemical elements and gases in the sun. The Japanese leader said that they have not been studied, that the scrutiny will take a long time, and that he does not know what it will show.

The new gas report was widely disseminated. Herbert Locke, of Lynn, Mass., who claimed to have given it out, said he was standing with the Japanese party during the eclipse. Prof. Hirayama called him over to look into a spectrograph, an instrument that broke up the coronal light into a rainbow. Locke quoted the Japanese as saying:

"Look—see that dark blue on that. That's something new."

Locke says he asked:

"What do you call it?"

"I don't know, but there are 40 and we'll call it 41."

Hirayama took photographs with a new apparatus developed in Japan designed to eliminate the reflected sun rays in the corona and get only the true light of that halo. He said these photographs were under exposed.

6TH CANDIDATE FOR WALSH JOB

The sixth candidate for the post of constable in the First Ward, to succeed Paul Walsh, resigned, presented his character witnesses before Judges George V. Moore and Thomas M. Marshall today. He was P. J. McGuire, retired fire captain and a follower of Police Supt. Peter P. Walsh.

Walsh also has another candidate—John McDonald—in an effort to keep the appointment from a follower of his political enemy, Senator James J. Coyne. The Coyne entrant is Andrew Maloney, city detective.

After hearing the witnesses Judge Moore indicated the appointment would be made this week. Judge Moore announced a week ago that if he and Judge Marshall are unable to agree, he, Judge Moore, because of his position as the senior judge will fill the post.

Boy Eclipse Fan Fires Leaking Gas

A boy smoking a piece of glass, intended for use in watching the eclipse of the sun, ignited leaking gas when he threw a lighted match on the sidewalk at Bates street and McKee place yesterday.

Firemen from No. 24 Engine Company were summoned when the gas blazed. The boy's identity was not learned.

ECLIPSE GIVES LIGHT ON RADIO AIR LAYER

Waves Act as if It Were Night; Clouds Ruin Some Views

By HOWARD W. BLAKESLEE
Associated Press Science Editor.

BOSTON, Sept. 1.—(AP.)—One important radio discovery, several new scientific feats and some odd human experiences summed up today the accomplishments of the 52 total eclipse expeditions.

Clouds completely ruined the work of more than half the largest expeditions, but a few had perfect views.

Two persons were reported so frightened at Island Pond as to require medical attention.

The "cows came home" for milking at a number of farms. Flocks of birds got wildly excited, then calmed down and dived from sight, evidently putting up bird-fashion for the night.

'NIGHT' TO RADIO SETS

The radio discovery throws new light on the invisible layer of electrified air—the Kennelly-Heaviside layer—which reflects radio waves back to earth. As the sun passed completely from sight, radio reception on special setups changed abruptly to sunset conditions.

Then for the minute and a half while the sun was completely darkened, the test radio waves behaved almost precisely as if it were night. Their action showed that in the darkened sky the waves were ascending much higher before being reflected back to earth. It was announced this showed the invisible layer had abruptly retreated much higher under cover of darkness.

BACK TO DAYTIME

When the sun reappeared, the radio reception changed back to daytime conditions, as it does at sunrise. The layer apparently had been forced down closer to earth.

The "miracle" of all observations was reported by Prof. S. L. Boothrowd, director of the Cornell University expedition, stationed at Newport, Vt. In the midst of hopelessly thick clouds a small hole appeared, for two minutes. And in that hole was the total eclipse.

R. C. Williams, of Cornell, forthwith made the first test of a new process he developed with G. B. Sabine, of Cornell. He evaporated chromium to produce a special mirror for observing spectroscopically the invisible ultra-violet light from the corona.

'PUDDLES' IN AIR

Evidently there are "puddles" in the air. Some astronomers reported the "shadow bands" were entirely missing while others sighted them clearly. These bands are shadows rippling over earth during a total eclipse, ascribed to action of the atmosphere on light similar to that of water when shadows can be seen flitting across a sandy bottom.

At Portland, Me., John J. Lunt, of the weather bureau, said he not only saw but measured the bands. They were wavy lines, ¼ to ½-inch wide. He caught them on a sheet.

Born During Eclipse, Yak Named 'Clipsie'

NEW YORK, Sept. 1.—(AP.)—Keepers didn't have to think long before finding a name for a 15-pound baby yak born at Central Park Zoo during the eclipse yesterday. They promptly named him "Clipsie."

FORT EXPLAINS BANK LOANS

WASHINGTON, Sept. 1.—(INS)—The home loan banks will have a potential loaning power of from $1,000,000,000 to $1,250,000,000, Franklin W. Fort, chairman of the Home Loan Board, says.

Initial capitalization will be $134,000,000. Eventually it will be substantially larger. Subscriptions for stock received after the first 30 days will be employed to retire government owned stock and to increase the capitalization in equal part.

Legal experts of the board started to prepare a digest of the laws of the various states to determine whether debentures of the banks may be eligible for investment by trust funds.

Oyster Season to Furnish 20,000 More Jobs

NEW YORK, Sept. 1.—(AP.)—Oysters "r" in season, and continuing throughout each succeeding month that is spelled with an "r" in it. This means, it was stated today, that 20,000 additional men will be put back to work.

William H. Raye, president of Bluepoints Company, Inc., a subsidiary of General Foods Corporation, said that about 70,000 persons are employed in the industry the year around. When oysters are in season, this figure is increased to 90,000.

Oysters, he said, are found along every coastal state in the country except Maine and New Hampshire. The value of the oyster crop for 1932 was estimated by him at $18,000,000.

PACE TO TALK TO VETS HERE

John Pace, leader of the so-called "Red" element of the Bonus Expeditionary Forces at Washington recently, will speak here next Sunday afternoon. He will discuss the "Battle of Washington" and next steps in the rank and file fight for the bonus.

Pace, recently released from jail at Washington for his radical activities, is on a tour of principal cities of the East and Middle West in the interest of building up a rank and file conference of war veterans. He is chairman of the bonus committee of the Workers' Ex-Service Men's League, a Communist organization.

Three other veterans retired in the central region are: W. W. Brantlinger, engineman, Altoona, and John C. Sloan, engineman, Ruffsdale, Pa., both with 51 years and nine months of service, and John A. OFFICER SEES FORCES ORTIZ RUBIO TO RESIGN

By ARTHUR CONSTANTINE
Universal Service.

MEXICO CITY, Sept. 1.—President Pascual Ortiz Rubio of Mexico will present his resignation to Congress today,

...r Alberto J. Pani, minister of finance, or Abelardo Rodriguez, minister of war, will be named provisional president for the unexpired term, ending November 30, 1934.

The resignation, Universal Service learned today, was agreed upon yesterday at a conference between the President and a group of cabinet ministers and generals.

RUMORS OF STRIFE

Rumors that the President was going to resign have been current more than a week. The President denied them. He said there had been no differences between himself and Gen. Plutaco Elias Calles, Mexico's strong and silent man.

But while the President was assuring Mexico that he and Calles were on good terms, the former President and Minister of War was busy in Cuernavaca, his summer residence, skillfully lining up his forces in Congress and the cabinet.

Military leaders whose loyalty to Calles was doubted were replaced by friends of the former President; his partisans were placed in strategic positions throughout Mexico. Gen. Abelardo Rodriguez, a staunch supporter of Calles, was named head of the infantry and Gen. Miguel Acosta, another Calles supporter, was named chief of the cavalry. The garrisons throughout the country were friendly to Gen. Calles and it was up to President Rubio to resign or to submit to a military coup.

FEUD OVER BROTHER

The difficulties between the President and Gen. Calles, which led to Ortiz Rubio's decision to resign, started two weeks ago, when Francisco Ortiz Rubio, a brother of the President, and chairman of the Board of Public Charities, had some friction with Vicente Estrada Cajigal, former Governor of the Federal District, and a protege of Calles.

The President sided with his brother and attempted to get Estrada Cajigal out of the way by offering him a diplomatic post in Europe, but Cajigal declined.

HELD IN PASSING OF FAKE COINS

Lee Richmond, 35, of 1112 Sherman avenue, North Side, alleged to have passed counterfeit dimes, quarters and half dollar pieces in the North Side, East End and downtown, was being held by federal authorities today.

Shortly after his arrest by secret service men in Diamond street, the agents visited his room and reported finding seven molds and counterfeiting materials. Richmond, an ex-convict, confessed, the agents said, and identified more than 100 dimes and other bogus coins given to business establishments for purchases.

Richmond was said by the agents to have admitted serving a term in Leavenworth Penitentiary for a robbery in Nevada.

The man killed was not immediately identified.

SUIT MAY BALK NEW RAIL LINK

BEAVER, Pa., Sept. 1.—A suit filed here against the supervisors of Ohio Township by Attorney R. S. Holt for the Pittsburgh and Cleveland Railroad Company may block construction of the 13-mile link between Smiths Ferry, Pa., and Mill Rock, O., by the Montour Railroad interests. A hearing will be held September 12.

James A. White, Pittsburgh, recently transferred a 53-acre tract in Ohio Township to the Montour interests. The Ohio Township supervisors had vacated a county road to accommodate the Montour right of way. This would complete the connection of the railroad from Youngstown, O., to the Ohio River. The Cleveland and Pittsburgh Railroad Company seeks to have the action of the supervisors vacated.

OFFICER SHOOTS 2 IN MOB

DETROIT, Sept. 1.—(AP.)—Constable Harold Bowers fired into a crowd which attacked him while he was executing a judgment last night, killing one man and wounding another, probably fatally.

Police rescued Bowers and his assistant, Fred Bartholomew, who was wounded by an ice pick during the fighting, and dispersed the crowd, estimated to have numbered 2,000 persons, mostly Negroes.

Bowers, who had attempted to execute a judgment for $337 in a candy store owned by J. C. Swan, Negro, said Mrs. Swan attacked Bartholomew with an ice pick, then ran outside and shouted for help. He said 200 persons crowded into the store, attacking him with chairs and fists.

He said he fired one warning shot, then two more shots into the crowd. Harry Shepherd, 29, and Harry Rivers, 35, both Negroes, fell wounded. Shepherd died a few minutes later.

CHICAGO, Sept. 1.—(AP.)—Police were searching today for a Negro reported by Mrs. Vera Corbett Davis, 28, to have attacked her after fatally shooting her escort, James Egan, 28.

Mrs. Davis, who is estranged from her husband, said she and Egan were riding in his automobile on the South Side last night when the Negro jumped on the running board and, with a pistol pressed against Egan's back, ordered him to drive to a nearby vacant tract of land.

He then forced the couple out of the car, Mrs. Davis said, and without further word shot Egan in the back. After attacking her, Mrs. Davis said, the Negro seized her pocketbook and fled.

The resolution, introduced by Joseph Carl Thompson, New York, recited that the United States presented to the world a movement against the use of gas and then ordered gas used against women, children, veterans and men, unarmed and defenseless, weakened by hunger and unemployment.

The resolution asserted "this encampment makes a solemn protest against the unnecessary use" of the Army and that "so the American public may become dramatically aware of this organization's attitude, that every post possessing a clubhouse be urged to mount the same with sandbags and post a military guard from now on until November, so that the Washington evacuation may be fully completed in November."

WASHINGTON, Sept. 1.—The tabulation that follows shows the total vote thus far recorded for President Hoover and Gov. Roosevelt in the nation-wide presidential poll of the Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph in co-operation with all the other Hearst morning, evening and Sunday papers in the United States. WEST TURNING FROM HOOVER

By COLE E. MORGAN
Universal Service Correspondent.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 1.—The boundary line between Indiana and Illinois may go down in the history of the 1932 presidential campaign as the barrier that President Hoover failed to cross.

It is there, according to returns thus far tabulated in the nation-wide presidential poll of the Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph in co-operation with all the other Hearst morning, evening and Sunday papers in the United States, that Gov. Roosevelt appears to have his Republican opponent stopped.

East of the Indiana-Illinois line and north of the Ohio and Potomac all the way to the easternmost points of New England, President Hoover is giving battle and in the main cutting into the early leads recorded for his Democratic adversary.

West of that line the poll shows another story. Illinois rises as a bulwark and from there on to the Pacific Coast Roosevelt, except in spotted areas, is taking all before him.

A week ago the growing Hoover strength in Ohio had swung that state into the Hoover column by a 13 majority. New returns today increased that lead to 118, indicating that the Hoover climb in the Buckeye state is steadily gaining force.

Along with that, added returns from Indiana served to cut down the Roosevelt majority there. While Roosevelt on the new returns is still going forward in Michigan it is not at the same high speed that early pool returns indicated.

Yesterday the story was told of Hoover's successes east of the Alleghenies, where he cut into the Roosevelt majorities in Pennsylvania and New York and increased his own majorities in New England. Today's returns disclosed that it is only when Illinois is reached that the eastern advance of Hoover appears to be checked.

With each new set of returns from this pivotal state the Roosevelt majority continues to grow to the point that as the campaign swings into September, Illinois with its 29 electoral votes becomes more and more safely entrenched in the Roosevelt column.

LATEST POLL RETURNS CLOSE

By COLE E. MORGAN
Universal Service.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 1.—Addition of 7,903 ballots tabulated today in the nation-wide presidential poll of the Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph, in co-operation with all the other Hearst morning, evening and Sunday papers in the United States gave Gov. Roosevelt an advantage of 95. The ballots divided 3,999 for Roosevelt to 3,904 for Hoover.

These returns were from the Syracuse section of up-state New York and from the Great Lakes states of Michigan, Ohio, Indiana and Illinois.

The 361 New York votes divided 244 for Hoover to 117 for Roosevelt, a gain of 127 for Hoover. This reduced the Roosevelt majority in New York to 163 with 11,677 votes on record. The New York vote now is so close that Gov. Roosevelt holds the 47 electoral votes of that state by the scant margin of seven-tenths of 1 per cent over a 50-50 break. The percentage is Roosevelt, 50.7; Hoover, 49.3.

Ohio, where a week ago President Hoover forged ahead with a 13 majority out of 4,081 ballots, with today's tabulation increased this to a majority of 118. This was a net gain of 105, on an additional tabulation of 2,637 ballots. They divided, however, Hoover, 1,371; Roosevelt, 1,266. The 6,718 votes thus far tabulated for Ohio, dividing, Hoover, 3,418, and Roosevelt, 3,300, give Hoover less than a 1 per cent grip on that state's 26 electoral votes. The division is Hoover, 50.9; Roosevelt, 49.1.

In Indiana Hoover with today's tabulation again cut into Roosevelt's lead, getting 67 the best of the 1,413 new votes recorded. Roosevelt, however, still has a 442 majority in that state. The 5,962 ballots tabulated divide: Hoover, 2,760; Roosevelt, 3,202. The percentage division is Roosevelt, 53.7; Hoover, 46.3.

Michigan gave Roosevelt 80 votes the best out of the 1,536 added from that state. This raised Roosevelt's Michigan majority to 324 with 5,112 ballots tabulated. The percentage division is Roosevelt, 53.2 and Hoover, 46.8.

Illinois, which contributed 1,956 new ballots, gave Roosevelt a 314 margin, increasing his majority in that state to 1,934 out of 9,756 ballots recorded. Roosevelt is now holding Illinois' 29 electoral votes by a comfortable lead, the figures showing 61 per cent for Roosevelt to 39 for Hoover.

The country as a whole, with 123,829 votes recorded, shows Roosevelt 74,355 to Hoover 49,474, a Roosevelt majority of 24,881. This is exactly a 60-40 per cent division in Roosevelt's favor.

W. C. T. U. RAPS ROOSEVELT ON REPEAL

WASHINGTON, Sept. 1. — (AP.) — The National Woman's Christian Temperance Union today had issued a statement outlining its attitude on Gov. Franklin D. Roosevelt's prohibition repeal policy.

Saying it was made "in opposition to repeal, not in favor of any party or candidate," the W. C. T. U. statement asserted:

"Once upon a time there was a man named Roosevelt in the White House who, as the result of experiences with the liquor traffic, said that the American people must defeat the liquor traffic or the liquor traffic would defeat the American people.

"Later, during the World War the liquor traffic attempted such defeat by threatening President Wilson with a blockade of his war plans if in any way the liquor traffic was curtailed. That final treacherous impudence caused the American people to outlaw the liquor traffic by the Eighteenth Amendment.

'LIQUOR AN OUTLAW'

"For a dozen years liquor has acted the part of an outlaw, running its business illicitly, refusing to obey, making threats and spreading lies. All this has scared people of weaker moral constitutions; and a smaller Roosevelt has arisen who offers to restore the liquor traffic to a respectable place in business, with its old opportunities to debauch in return for a license, if only the liquor traffic and its friends will quit kicking and place this second Roosevelt in the White House.

"Corrupt government, corrupt interests, selfish politics not only want state control of liquor, but state control of everything. It makes no difference to the corrupt city political organizations which party wins this election, as long as state control comes along with it.

"The racketeer, the liquor dealer, the underworld are in control of city politics largely; city politics in many localities control the state; hence the loud cry for "state rights" from certain quarters. It will put state control in the hands of the city hall gangs.

RACKETEERS

"The drive against prohibition is supported in practical political manner by racketeering politicians who derive support from liquor interests, legal or illegal. The cry for state rights is accompanied by a strong effort to remove state prohibition laws; a situation which always creates happy hunting ground for bootleggers; and giving control of state politics and state government to the lower order.

"It builds that type of liquor-dealer support on which selfish political interests climb to power; the exact opposite of the requirements for good government.

"Gov. Roosevelt makes much of the promise of a liquor-soaked nation without saloons. Liquor, no matter how sold, has a universal and uniform debauching effect. However, the liquor business wants and will have saloons in case of repeal.

"Right now, according to newspaper advices, liquor people are taking options on property they hope to turn into saloons. We are informed that the brewers are laughing in their sleeves at the gullibility of the American people who think the saloon can be prohibited.

"Leaders of high standing may promise there will be no saloons; but the Chicago and New York crowd that envisions a political empire based on booze know that the strong points of their power will be the saloon.

LAW DEFIANCE

"In many larger cities the gangs which attempted defiance of the federal government, have sold out their depleted business to smaller fry of the underworld and have taken up gambling, commercial racketeering and vice; dissipations which are covered mainly by state law.

"These gangs working closely with state and city political organizations know they cannot successfully buck federal law but can, will and do defy state law by their control of city political organizations. So also the small bootleggers.

"Under the present plan of the predatory and vicious interests 'State's Right' has no more relation to its original high ideals than a skull and bones pennant has to the stars and stripes.

"Once the liquor business is back on its feet, paying a license to the government for the right to debauch and enslave, it will take its place beside big business and be a hideous, omnivous, but legitimate portion of our national activities.

"Gov. Roosevelt's intentions may be honest; but if so he is exposing absymal ignorance of the liquor power and the liquor problem. His premise is wrong; his policy constitutes a surrender to the lower powers. He is asking to restore the thing that made him oppose Tammany and won for him a place in the Wilson cabinet as Assistant Secretary of the Navy.

"The W. C. T. U. makes this statement in opposition to the repeal; not in favor of any party or candidate."

STATE'S SALES TAX GOES INTO EFFECT

HARRISBURG, Sept. 1.—(AP.)—Beginning today all retail merchants must accurately account, for the next six months, for their sales so they may turn over 1 per cent of their gross income to the state for unemployment relief.

The 1 per cent sales tax imposed by the Legislature at its last special session takes effect today.

Within the next six months, it is expected to yield from $12,000,000 to $15,000,000 to benefit the 1,267,000 unemployed in Pennsylvania.

FEW EXEMPTIONS

The only exemptions from the levy are farmers' sales of their own products, sales to the federal government, sales outside of Pennsylvania and not within the taxing power of the commonwealth under the commerce clause of the federal Constitution and sales for resale.

Sales to the state and its political subdivisions are not exempt. Neither are manufacturers, merchandise, goods and wares of all kinds. Food and beverages sold in eating establishments are taxed.

Real estate and intangible property are not subject to the levy. The intangible class includes electricity, gas, stocks, bonds, promissory notes and other securities.

HOW TAX APPLIES

The tax applies only on the final sale of the retailer to the customer, thus avoiding "pyramiding" of levies on sales from manufacturer to wholesaler, wholesaler to jobber, and jobber to retailer.

To claim exemption, merchants must keep a record of what goods were sold for resale, what goods were sold to the federal government, and what goods were sold in interstate commerce.

The cost of collecting the tax, Dr. Clyde L. King, Secretary of Revenue, estimates, will be about one-half of one per cent of the amount it will yield. He said he does not anticipate a material increase in his clerical and field forces because of the additional burden imposed on the department in collecting the tax.

BEAUTY SLAYER SHUNS STAND

CHICAGO, Sept. 1.—(AP.)—Whether Mrs. Dorothy Pollak, 26, comely slayer of her husband, Joe, reputed alcohol dealer and bootleggers' money lender, would take the stand in her own defense was unknown today as the case approached its close.

W. W. O'Brien, defense attorney, said he was considering asking Judge Harry Fischer, who is hearing the case without a jury, to decide the issue on the basis of the state's evidence.

The defendant's blonde first cousin, Mrs. Victoria Schultz, testified yesterday that Pollak had threatened his wife's life. She said that on the day he was killed Pollak made a threat to "break your neck" to his wife.

The threats were uttered, Mrs. Schultz said, just before Pollak fell dead with a bullet in his left eye, which event also was preceded by his advance upon Mrs. Pollak while holding "a large knife" in one hand and shouting threats.

Jeweler Arrested In Store Robbery

NEW YORK, Sept. 1.—(AP.)—Charles W. Schuman, 43, a member of the 80-year-old jewelry firm of C. W. Schuman, was arrested with three others last night after an investigation of a holdup in which the store was robbed of $135,000 worth of gems last month.

Police Commissioner Edward P. Mulrooney, who personally directed the investigation, charged the holdup was faked and said one of the prisoners, Larry Levy, an ex-convict, admitted his part in the conspiracy.

$2,500,000 for Work, Oil Firm's Program

NEW YORK, Sept. 1.—(INS.)—A program to improve its plants in many parts of the country, involving an expenditure of $2,500,000 immediately in equipment and wages, was undertaken today by the Sinclair Refining Company, subsidiary of the Consolidated Oil Corporation.

The work will be carried on at the Argentine and Coffeyville (Kan.) refineries, as well as at those in East Chicago, Houston, Tex., and Marcus Hook, Pa.

LUCK' TICKETS TO BE READY TOMORROW

All arrangements have been completed for the Sun-Telegraph overflow Lucky Buck Day at both Kennywood and West View Parks Saturday and it looks as though everything will run as smoothly as clockwork—everybody attending to have a full share of the rides that they get for their Lucky Bucks and a day of complete enjoyment.

In another part of today's Sun-Telegraph there is an announcement telling how holders of Lucky Bucks can spend them for strips of tickets for either park. The tickets will be ready tomorrow morning.

NO OVERCROWDING

There will be no overcrowding this time. Only enough tickets have been printed to comfortably fill the rides from 11 o'clock in the morning until 11 o'clock at night. Holders of strips of tickets obtained in advance are, however, advised not to all rush out to the park at 11 o'clock in the morning. If every ticket holder gets there at that hour, there will, of course, be some delay in getting on the rides. But there have been just enough tickets printed for a normal all day's business at Kennywood or West View—just enough to comfortably fill the park without any turmoil.

The Sun-Telegraph has completed this arrangement for the purpose of satisfying the hundreds of youngsters who were disappointed last Friday when the largest crowd ever known in Pittsburgh turned out for Sun-Telegraph Lucky Buck Day.

PRECAUTION TAKEN

It is barely possible that enough tickets have not been printed to take care of all who want to participate in Lucky Buck Day next Saturday.

This precaution has been taken to avoid assembling too big a crowd.

This time it is going to be a day of real fun for the kiddies—plenty of rides for all. And, by the way, the street railway company has issued special 15-cent round trip passes for next Saturday's overflow Lucky Buck Day. In another part of the Sun-Telegraph today is printed a list of places where these 15-cent tickets can be purchased.

Patricia Pitt

Patricia Pitt's Sprightly Comment on Pittsburgh's Society Happenings

All the exciting plans we've been hearing of for Gertrude Speer's wedding have had to be changed, I'm sure you'll all be sorry to learn, and be sorrier for the reason.

The bride's mother, Mrs. J. Ramsey Speer, is undergoing an eye operation at Johns Hopkins Hospital in Baltimore. So Gertrude's wedding, a week from today, to Frank Wattles, Jr., of New York and Buffalo, will be without guests and elaborate ceremony.

Quiet Wedding

Gertrude will be married in Easton Christ Church, Easton, Md., by the Rev. Samuel MacEwan, with only members of the two families attending. Easton is near the Speer summer home, "The Wilderness," at Trappe, Md., on the famed Eastern Shore.

Gertrude's father will give her in marriage. Because of Mrs. Speer's illness, the large guest list, including many Pittsburgh friends, has been recalled and the reception canceled.

There'll be a luncheon at the Wilderness for the families. And then Mr. Wattles and his bride will be off for a Bermuda honeymoon, and later will make their home in New York.

Today is the first of September. But the first month of what we all consider fall just doesn't mean a thing autumnal to any of us sizzling in Pittsburgh.

Swimming Popular

So instead of putting aside summer things and taking unto ourselves autumn wardrobes and diversions and thoughts, everyone is still looking for the coolest spot, the coolest costume and the coolest diversion, and that means swimming.

And all this is leading up to the prophecy that the tree-shaded, shrub-surrounded pool at exclusive Rolling Rock Club may lure many of the smart set over Labor Day week-end.

One who'll be there will be likeable Joan Diehl, who's just breezed into town from Europe.

Back from Europe

She's the house-guest of Harriet Fickes, that popular member of the younger set, and will pay a little visit to her former home town before joining her family, the Ambrose Nevin Diehls, on the west coast.

Joan will go with the Leonard S. Mudges—Mrs. Mudge is the former Nancy Allderdice—to Rolling Rock this week-end. And I believe the Willis McCook Reeds will go too. Mrs. Reed, another Allderdice girl, Jane, is back in town after her honeymoon, and she and her husband are staying just now with her family, the Taylor Allderdices.

Jolly Lucretia Billings you'll see in Pittsburgh again on the sixth of September. She's up in Port Hope, Canada, which is right near Beaumaris where so many of our families summer.

She's there for all the festivities preceding the wedding of Mary Black, one of Pittsburgh's prettiest lasses, and Wilson M. Book, of Sewickley, to take place there Monday. To repeat, Lucretia will be a bridesmaid.

Marie Tello Phillips Yaegle has had a succession of house guests this summer at her Cape Cod place, Phillipscote, at Hyannis.

Cape Cod Guests

Anna Jane and Margaret Phillips, daughters of the John M. Phillipses, have been there; Mrs. Harry S. Davison and her daughters, Betty and Jean, of Beechwood boulevard; the Walter C. Sankeys and their two sons, of Carrick; Mrs. Porter Sawyer Kier, of Darlington road; the R. P. Phillipses and their daughter, Jane.

Mrs. Yaegle and her husband, Charles Yaegle, will be back in their Darlington road home the second week this month.

At 11 o'clock this morning in the home of her father, Dr. Joseph C. Boggs, of California avenue, Mrs. Frank Royer, formerly Mildred Boggs, of Cloverly Lane, Rydal, Pa., became the bride of Willard Merle Berman, of San Antonio, Tex. Only the families attended.

Mr. Berman and his bride will be at home in San Antonio, Tex., later.

Tall, charming young Virginia Drake, who made over the upstairs of the family garage into a studio which she shared with Mary Hill, will be Mary's only attendant at her wedding October 10, to William Metcalf Doolittle, son of the William G. Doolittles, of Sewickley.

Is Only Attendant

Mary will be married in Calvary Church at 5 o'clock that afternoon. Mr. Doolittle doesn't know yet who'll be best man.

There'll be no reception after the ceremony, although a few intimate friends of the bride and bridegroom-to-be will go to the Hill home to see them off. And Jerome Hill will give his daughter in marriage.

Besides her skill at drawing and painting, tall, slender Mary, who is the amber-blonde type, sings most delightfully, did you know?

The bridegroom-to-be is a Princeton man, class of 1928, and a member of the Cap and Gown Society.

Have you heard that the William C. Robinsons, of Ridge avenue, North Side, and Franklin Farms, Sewickley Heights, are soon to be off for Europe?

Last evening in the home of Mr. and Mrs. George Sieglen, of Gallion avenue, Brookline, their daughter, Miss Genevieve Sieglen, became the bride of Robert Barren St. Clair, son of Mrs. Anna B. Johnson. Officiating was the Rev. W. Miesel, of St. Mark's Lutheran Church, at 7:45 o'clock before a mantel banked with fall flowers and ferns.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, wore a gown of white satin, having the skirt draped to the left finished with a large satin bow and tiny sprays of flowers, and she carried white roses, gypsophila and lilies of the valley. Miss Ruth Getty, her cousin's maid of honor, wore pink crepe having a cape of pink ostrich and carried rosebuds and delphinium. Adolph Plato was the best man. Michael Sieglen and Miss Loretta Rapp sang and Alberta Lyle played the wedding music.

There was a reception and dinner for 100 guests, with the bridal table centered with fall flowers. Mr. and Mrs. St. Clair left on a motor trip after which they will be at home in Cape May avenue.

NEW ACCESSORIES DISGUISE POPULAR GRAY FLANNEL SUIT

Sketched in Paris

Paris Bureau,
Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph.

PARIS, Sept. 1.—The little gray flannel suit that has been so popular within the last six months is taking on disguises. French designers are adding to the original skirt-and-jacket combination, making new types of blouses, scarfs, belts and other accessories that entirely change the appearance of the original outfit. So effectively have the dressmakers provided the suit with quick-change gadgets that it has almost become the standard equipment of every well-dressed French woman.

TWO OF the most successful new additions to the gray suit wardrobe are the gray tweed topcoat and gray flannel trousers. The one is designed to wear over the suit in town, or to make a topcoat-and-skirt combination; the trousers are to combine with the jacket and make a sort of pajama outfit that will serve many uses—for lounging at home, for the beach, for country walking.

* * *

THE WHOLE idea is to confine a complete wardrobe for a week-end in the country—or one spent in motor travel—within a single outfit. Wear the suit and topcoat, put the extra trousers and a sweater or two in a traveling bag, add a fresh blouse and a change of scarfs, and you have enough costumes for several days away from home.

* * *

THE SKETCH shows Fauvety's version of this suit, with the added trousers. Note that both the skirt and the trousers are so cut and pressed that the plaits and folds in both follow the lines of the jacket's double-breasted cutting.

Council Bundle Day Attended By 350

Apparently nothing but extreme heat can affect bundle parties held by the Council of Jewish Women. Yesterday, for the first time since the Pittsburgh section began holding these popular affairs, the number of guests dwindled to 350. Even that, you must admit, is a fair-sized party. A great many friends brought their bundles for replenishing Council's Service Shop shelves, but did not remain to play. The party took place at the Schenley Hotel.

In addition to cards, there was doll-dressing, the dolls later to be disposed of over the Service Shop counter, and there was fortune telling. And everybody was interested in the display showing the interdependence of nations through their foods. With specially constructed maps for a background, all sorts of imported foods were shown on the tables and were linked up with the map. Small flags of the nations decorated the front of the table.

A new system of bundle parties will go into effect this winter. Members will be asked to attend only once a year and that during their birthmonth. And the parties will be held at the homes of Council members.

BEST SEES HOPE FOR RECOVERY IN HOME BANK

FRENCH LICK, Ind., Sept. 1.—(AP.)—Representatives of building and loan associations throughout the nation today joined in a celebration of the recently enacted Federal Home Loan Bank act.

The fortieth annual convention of the United States Building and Loan League brought the building and loan representatives to this resort.

William E. Best, of Pittsburgh, president of the league, outlined in an address at the opening session the conditions which he said the American public must meet before normal business will return.

The league president said the building of more small homes, the repair and modernization of homes already built and a realization that the whole system of production is built on thrift and conservation of resources instead of on a lucky chance on fortune's wheel are the conditions to be met.

The Home Loan Bank system, Best said, will make it possible to meet two of these demands for business recovery. He predicted that the building of low cost homes would be developed on a sound basis during the coming year. He added:

"We will not have normal conditions until we can make mortgage credit available to the small home owner and to the individual who desires to build a home. There must be some resumption of activity in the field of residential construction, and there is no reason for not resuming it so long as millions of our people are housed in unsanitary hovels without any of those things which we associate with the modern American home.

"A recent survey shows that there is now no mortgage money for small homes either for refinancing or any other purpose, in 88 per cent of the cities from which the returns came. This is a great opportunity for the Home Loan Bank system to show its worth to the country."

NAME RECEIVER FOR BANKER

A receiver was appointed by Federal Judge R. M. Gibson today for George C. Frank, former president of the Ligonier National Bank, who was held for court last week on a charge of embezzling $1,000 of the bank's funds.

Fred D. Humphrey, of Greensburg, was named receiver, after a petition in involuntary bankruptcy had been filed.

The court directed Frank to appear September 12, before Referee in Bankruptcy Raymond Sowash, in Greensburg, for examination.

Frank surrendered last Saturday on the embezzlement charge, waived preliminary hearing and furnished $10,000 bond.

The petition asking that Frank be declared a bankrupt alleged he has liabilities of approximately $500,000. His assets were not shown. It was charged that August 8, last, while he was insolvent, Frank transferred from his properties $4,000 to the Ligonier National Bank with intent to "hinder, delay and defraud" his creditors, and to prefer the bank over other creditors. The petition also charges that he permitted the bank to obtain illegally many judgments against him. It was alleged these judgmentst otaled $224,680.

STEEL WORKERS STRIKE FOILED

'Magic Rug' Soars Sea To Berlin

Movie madcaps frolic across the ether waves tonight when "Hollywood On the Air" goes over a nationwide NBC network, including KDKA, at midnight.

Direct from the motion picture metropolis come the capers and wisecracks of Marie Dressler and Polly Moran, the screen's famous feminine comedy duo, and of Jimmy (Schnozzle) Durante, currently featured in "Blondie of the Follies," starring Miss Marion Davies. Durante sings, as only he can sing, and Miss Dressler and Miss Moran do bits from "Prosperity," their latest starring vehicle. Donald Ogden Stewart, novelist and writer, acts as master of ceremonies, and an orchestra plays "Smiling Through" and a medley of numbers from other movie successes.

Marie Dressler

Walter O'Keefe pilots his famous "magic carpet" on its third trip to Berlin, Germany, tonight, to pick up for WCAE listeners the music of Marek Weber and his orchestra as a feature of the dance hour at 10. Vincent Lopez and his orchestra, playing in New York, afford an interesting contrast with the modern German tunes.

Starting today, KQV loses three-quarters of an hour on the air under a Radio Commission ruling, and is silent from 7:45 to 8:30. As a result, the "Pittsburgh Today" program moves up from 8 to 9 o'clock and the Modulators Trio from 7:45 to 9:15. The other operating hours of KQV remain unchanged.

The final episode in the radio dramatization of "Blondie of the Follies," based on the motion picture of the same name starring Miss Marion Davies, is presented at 9:15 tonight from WCAE.

Program Pointers

Notables of the radio world help welcome Station KDYL, of Salt Lake City, to an NBC network tonight in a gala hour's program, starting at 12:30 a. m. From New York, Paul Whiteman and his orchestra, the Revelers Quartet and a concert orchestra directed by Cesare Sodero furnish music for the inaugural exercises opened by George F. McClelland, first vice president of NBC. Jane Froman, Lee Sims and Ilo May Bailey, the Songfellows and Happy Jack Turner are heard from Chicago, and the Southern Harmony Four and Kenneth Spencer, young basso, from San Francisco. Gov. George Dern, of Utah, and Mayor Louis Marcus, of Salt Lake City, are included among the speakers.

Miss Froman

In view of Fay Webb's threatened divorce suit, Rudy Vallee fans are expected to be at the radios in force when the famous crooner gives his regular program over WCAE at 8 tonight.

A new feature, "The Sports Calendar," makes its appearance on WWSW at 6:30, with Ed Sprague reading a schedule of sporting events locally and throughout the country. In addition, Sprague gives a sports review each evening at 10:45.

Remember Belle Baker singing "Nathan?" Georgie Price gives his impression of her throaty, emotional rendition on WJAS at 7:45.

Miss Margaret Garrity, Greensburg soprano, is featured in the "Silhouette" program broadcast from KDKA over an NBC network at 5. Miss Garrity is a member of the Shadyside Presbyterian Church Choir.

In the tenth and final episode of the mystery serial, "Marco Polo's Joss House," the KQV Players promise thrills and chills at 9:30.

The Schubert Mixed Quartet, of the Beaver Valley, presents an all-opera program from KDKA at 10:30, featuring Merran Reader, former soprano with the Wagnerian Opera Company of Germany.

For after-midnight dancers, WCAE brings the Hotel New Yorker, the Hotel St. Regis and Eddie South's orchestras and the Le Lago Cafe Band.

Uncle Bob, Betty Read Comics

"Popeye, the Sailor," "Little Orphan Annie" and other favorites of the children and and grown-ups alike, are brought to the loudspeakers when Uncle Bob and Betty read the Sun-Telegraph comics from WCAE at 6 o'clock tonight.

WCAE listeners get the news of the day almost as soon as it happens when Louis L. Kaufmann, Globe-Trotter of the Sun-Telegraph, broadcasts at 9:05 a. m., 12:15 p. m., 2:30 p. m. and 6:30 p. m.

Mallorca Wars on Scant Bathing Suits

PALMA, Mallorca, Sept. 1.—(AP.)—The governor of this island has instituted a campaign against bathers who appear in the streets insufficiently clad. Several British and American women have been fined for appearing in bathing suits which the authorities considered too scanty.

RADIO'S STENO DE LUXE

Evelyn Holt, pulchritudinous star of the air, who has the role of Mollie, the stenographer of Meyer Mizznick, Harry Hershfield's comic character, in the "Meyer the Buyer" broadcast on WJAS.

LISTENING IN Ann Rescued.

Radio Brides.

Miss Leaf

Mathilde Harding, the Pittsburgh pianist on NBC networks, is married to Donald Withycombe, NBC executive . . . The contracts of both Georgie Price and Benny Kreuger have been extended to the end of this year.

Ole Olsen used to cut capers at the Elks' minstrel shows in his home town, Wabash, Ind., and then amazed the townsfolk by collecting money for doing the same thing in vaudeville.

Madame Sylvia, the beauty expert, won't forget business for a minute, according to her husband, Edward Leiter. No sooner were they married, he says, than she walked up to him and said, "You're anemic."

Mrs. Alma Culp, of Lee Hall, Va., who's said to be the Democratic leader of her district and who admits to 73 years, is a charter member of the Corn Cob Pipe Club and hasn't missed a meeting since the organization's broadcasts were inaugurated almost five years ago.

Pittsburgh Street Railway Car Houses for Street Car Passes Only

MANCHESTER — McKEESPORT — MILLVALE — PLUMMER ST. — RANKIN — TUNNEL

—INCLINES—

17TH STREET — MT. OLIVER — PITTSBURGH — CASTLE SHANNON

There will be no overcrowding at either one of these parks next Saturday. Only enough tickets have been printed to take care of a normal day's business at either park. When this supply has been exhausted there will be no more, but it is believed that there will be enough tickets to take care of almost every youngster who was disappointed last Friday.

So that as many holders of Lucky Bucks as possible can be taken care of, ONLY ONE STRIP OF TICKETS will be given to each boy or girl. This is for the best interests of all, in line with this effort to reasonably satisfy everyone.

Follow These Instructions:

Lucky Bucks will be exchanged on this basis: If you want a strip of seven tickets for rides and riding devices at Kennywood, take 70 Bucks to your nearest exchange station and get a strip of seven tickets. If you want a strip of eight tickets for West View, take 80 Bucks to the exchange station in your neighborhood and get your strip of eight tickets.

PLEASE DO NOT ASK FOR MORE—GIVE THE OTHER KIDDIES A CHANCE

Bear in mind that you are to count enough Lucky Bucks for this 70 or 80 on the basis of the big figures printed on the Lucky Bucks.

Tickets Ready Tomorrow Morning—Now, Kids, Don't Be Unreasonable—Give All the Other Kids a Chance

Please Note:—It was originally intended to close the season at Kennywood and West View next Sunday and Monday (Labor Day), but owing to this Lucky Buck emergency the management of each park consented to open especially next Saturday.

'31 M'CORMICK WILL INVALID

CHICAGO, Sept. 1.—Administration of the estate of Mrs. Edith Rockefeller McCormick, greatly shrunk from its peak of more than $40,000,000, tentatively was vested with the Chicago Title and Trust Company today.

At the same time, another will of Mrs. McCormick was found in a safety deposit box at the Continental Illinois Bank & Trust Company. It was dated July 3, 1931, and presumably will be superceded by the will which Mrs. McCormick signed last month while virtually on her death bed.

The latter will bequeathed five-twelfths of her estate to Edwin D. Krenn, the young Swiss architect who had been her constant friend and business associate for the last 11 years.

Though the failure of the heirs to ask that the will be probated was looked upon by court attaches as indicating a contest, Charles S. Cutting, who drew the Krenn will, said the children will accept the testament without a fight.

GANG KIDNAPS, ROBS MAN

Bandits who kidnaped the attendant of a Standard Oil Company gasoline station, Bigelow boulevard, near Bloomfield Bridge, after robbing him of $20 early today, chased him down a hillside, he reported to police.

Bernard Neunsen, 25, of 1300 Sheridan street, the victim, told police the bandits forced him down the hillside at Thirty-third street. He said:

"They threatened me, but I can't remember all they said. It was some sensation, though."

Oil Boils Over, Fires School; Man Burned

WILKES-BARRE, Pa., Sept. 1.—(INS.)—When a can of floor oil he was warming over a small gas burner boiled over and was ignited today, Adam Chicknoski, custodian of the Hanover Township High School, was burned seriously and the chemistry laboratory was badly damaged.

Grocer Is Held On Arson Charge

Isador Green, 50, grocer, was held for court on a charge of arson by Justice of the Peace Walter Terrill, of West Homestead, last night in connection with a fire and explosion in his store, 493 West Seventh street, West Homestead, late Tuesday. Loss was placed at $12,000.

Scalds by Coffee Fatal to Child

Eugene Vogel, 8 months, of 116 East Erie street, is dead today from burns suffered a week ago, when he pulled a pot of hot coffee from a table in his home. He died yesterday in Presbyterian Hospital.

BABY, BURNED IN CRASH, DIES

NEW CASTLE, Sept. 1.—A baby was burned to death and four others, including her parents, were burned when their auto plunged into a culvert and took fire early today. The baby was June Berger, 2, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William Berger, of 27 West Ninety-sixth street, New York City.

On Weller Hill, east of New Castle, their car blew a tire, plunged off the road and upset as it burst into flames.

The baby was helplessly trapped. Mr. and Mrs. Berger suffered minor burns, and with their chauffeur, Walter Ehlbeck, and maid, Senta Graf, were taken to Jameson Memorial Hospital.

OHIO RATE CUT HITS PITTSBURGH COAL TRADE

POLITICS

"Inside" Interpretation Of a "Horse" Deal

By MARK SHIELDS

From time to time there has appeared in this column criticism of the political theory, doctrine and practice of State Senator James J. Coyne. Each criticism has been based on an honest difference of opinion, and without any claim by this column to prescience or to all the homely virtues.

Mr. Shields

Senator Coyne accepted criticism in what appeared to be good humor, and I concluded that the Oakland statesman had no intention of striking back. I was wrong.

The Senator, as is well known, is one of the outstanding farmers of McCandless Township, in addition to raising bumper crops of votes in Oakland. I enjoy the rural life of Ross Township.

We farmers, as we meet about the hitching rails and blacksmith shops, have a habit of discussing our affairs among ourselves, bragging about our live stock, indulging in an occasional trade or purchase, passing along ideas for the improvement of our vegetable gardens and even of our corn and rye.

In Market for Pony For Children to Ride

Somehow in one of these discussions I dropped the information to my neighboring farmer that I was in the market for a pony suitable for small children to ride, one not so rough as some Republicans I know, but still not as docile as a Pennsylvania Democrat.

The Senator gets about the countryside more than I do, and has more opportunities for meeting up with the horse traders.

The upshot of this exchange of thoughts was that the Senator discovered an elegant pony, and in due course it was pastured in my back meadow. It was an instant hit with the children, a most gentle animal, but with a gallop or two in its system.

My first view of the pony [illegible] a wee bit arr[illegible]ching the Legislature in its [illegible]motic[illegible]ture. It was a relief to f[illegible]'nimal' which would follow where it was led, or an animal that was led at all.

The pony wore only a halter, being guiltless of saddle or bridle. I was challenged to ride by my 6-year-old boy, himself proud of past feats of horsemanship. Fathers who can be outdone by their sons seldom retain their inherent right to be ranked by their children along with Buffalo Bill and Paul Waner.

So I leaped for the pony's back. I hit it.

And then the ground!

Pony Balks Only at Writer of Politics

The pony had bucked viciously, and in a second I was flatter than the INDEPENDENT movement in the Fourth Ward, and dirtier than anything County Commissioner C. M. Barr ever said about the opponents of that movement. And in a suit made famous by Charlie Danver—a white linen one.

Whereupon the children imparted that the pony always bucked when without a saddle and bridle.

But I wasn't deceived by that explanation.

This was Senator Coyne's way of getting even. The pony hadn't bucked with any of those members of the family not given to writing politics.

To allay any suspicions, this pony is being paid for by check, Senator Coyne and myself both being amateurs at this business, and not yet at a point where we cement such horse trades with big bills wrapped in brown paper.

And just to anticipate any carping critics who might charge that this deal presupposes a hook-up with the Republican regular organization, I hereby notify any and all Independents of Allegheny County that I am in the market for a good saddle horse—cheap.

Davis Trial Set Well Ahead of Election Day

The Federal Court in New York has set the trial of Senator James J. Davis for September 19, well ahead of election day. If the Senator is acquitted of charges he profited from entertainments given by the Moose lodge, ostensibly for charitable purposes, there will be ample time remaining of the campaign for him to make a canvass of the state.

Should the case go against him, his opponent, Lawrence Rupp, Democratic candidate, will have plenty of opportunity for using the situation if he wishes.

However the issue may turn, the name of the Senator will appear on the ballot, for the law specifies that withdrawals of senatorial candidates must be made 50 days prior to election. Even if conditions should arise which would make the Senator wish to retire, as requested by Gov. Pinchot, there would be votes for him.

And there is little thought that he will retire despite any eventuality.

GRANDMOTHER, CHILD WIN IN COURT FIGHT

Will Be Together for Week-End; Custody Ruling Delayed

Eleven-year-old Claire Rose White is going to grandma's house htis week-end. The court ordered it so.

Mrs. Jane Carlin, 78, of Carrick, the grandmother, sought sole custody of Claire Rose in Common Pleas Court today, but legal procedure and such things resulted in continuance of the case for two weeks, so Grandma and Claire Rose must be satisfied for the time being with just their week-end together. Then Claire Rose goes back to school at St. Xavier's Academy, Latrobe.

WARD OF AUNT

The orphaned child is the ward of her aunt, Miss Marie Jane White, of Elmer street, East End. Miss White was appointed guardian in 1929 for the purpose of permitting the girl to enter St. Xavier's.

Grandma Carlin went to court because she wanted little Claire Rose. Her petition for custody of the child came up for hearing before Judge George V. Moore this morning. Grandmother and child spied each other in the courtroom and rushed into each others arms. Tears and sobs shook Claire Rose as she hugged and kissed her grandma.

Then the business of court interfered, and the attorneys argued.

CLASH OVER COURT

E. W. Arthur, representing Miss White, said the case should be in Orphans Court since it concerned a guardian and ward, but J. Howard Devlin, counsel for Mrs. Carlin, told the court that the love and devotion of grandmother and child should have some consideration and that Common Pleas Court was a proper place to hear the case.

Judge Moore took Claire Rose into his chambers and they talked about things. When they came out, the court announced the case was continued. Anyway, Grandma and Claire Rose will have their week-end.

COUNTY TO GET STATE RELIEF FUND SOON

Harris Asks $225,000; Welfare Heads Seek Shoes for Pupils

While relief leaders made efforts to aid 35,000 unshod children for whom school bells, today and Tuesday, mean nothing but embarrassment, state aid for Allegheny County was virtually on hand, today.

Following a meeting of County Emergency Relief Board delegates with the Governor in Harrisburg, yesterday, State Senator Frank J. Harris today said that, representing Allegheny County's Board, he had requisitioned the entire appropriation of about $225,000 for Allegheny County for September.

CASH EXPECTED SOON

Opinion among relief organization leaders was that the money would be granted within the week. It will not supply food enough to prevent starvation if it is stretched over the month. It can only be used for food.

The state has provided $112,000,000 for distribution in the next seven months for direct and work relief throughout the state. One and a half million dollars is provided for each month of September, October, November and March, while $2,000,000 will be available for each month of December, January and February.

None of the relief money may be used for administrative expenses. W. B. Rogers, of Pittsburgh, appointed executive director of the state emergency relief board, will draw a salary to be paid from the Governor's contingent fund or some other state fund. The amount of his salary was not announced.

DISTRIBUTION RULES

Rules drawn by Gov. Gifford Pinchot for a distribution of the orders, it was learned, were not arbitrary. Regulations suitable to individual needs of counties will be adopted, it was learned. Suitable recommendations for Allegheny County were to be sent to Harrisburg today.

Meanwhile Harry W. Shepard, director of the Association for the Improvement of the Poor, today canvassed representatives of welfare organizations to discuss collection of used shoes which might be repaired and given to the children.

S. E. Claney, director of the Allegheny County Emergency Association, was to confer with Mrs. Enoch Rauh, director of the Department of Welfare, on use of city funds for purchase of new shoes.

The County Poor Directors have no money to meet the present need for shoes.

Red Cross cotton cloth is to be available for clothing purposes soon, it was learned yesterday.

Meanwhile, Welfare Fund officials today declared that the fall campaign for 1933 funds will not ask for a large amount of relief money. Funds of standing, permanent organizations and for administration of public funds for relief will be requested in the campaign for $3,000,00, it was learned. Public appropriations for relief have contained no appropriations to cover the 6 per cent administration expense, which local groups have provided from their own pockets.

EMPLOYMENT OF 600 HERE AFFECTED

State's Commission Allows Railroads To Cut Charges

The Pittsburgh coal producing area is losing a market for from 3,000 to 4,000 tons of coal a day, the Western Pennsylvania Coal Traffic Bureau asserts, as a result of new freight rates allowed on commercial coal for steam and domestic purposes in Ohio.

The loss of the market, directly affecting employment of about 600 miners, probably will be permanent, bureau officials say, unless the Interstate Commerce Commission permits the Pittsburgh and West Virginia Railroad to put into effect its proposed new rate schedule from the Pittsburgh district to Ohio markets.

RATE REDUCED

Beginning tomorrow, the Pennsylvania, Baltimore and Ohio, New York Central and the Pittsburgh and West Virginia railroads will join the Wheeling and Lake Erie Railroad in hauling Ohio coal to Ohio commercial consumers at a rate of $1.45 a ton, a reduction of 29 cents a ton from the old rate. The Pittsburgh marketers are paying a rate of $1.84, a differential which the traffic bureau claims prevents the local producers from competing with the Ohio fields.

The Pittsburgh and West Virginia Railroad would reduce this differential to 10 cents by posting a new rate of $1.55 a ton, but its new schedule must be approved by the Interstate Commerce Commission.

PROTESTS FILED

The Pennsylvania, Baltimore and Ohio and New York Central railroads have filed protests against the new schedule. The Pittsburgh and West Virginia has filed the schedule to be effective September 9, and a ruling by the I. C. C. is expected before that date.

The I. C. C. has no jurisdiction in the new rates effective for the Ohio coal fields since they are entirely in intra-state commerce and controlled by the Ohio Public Utilities Commission, which allowed the railroads to make the rate reduction.

The traffic bureau officials say that the area of Pittsburgh's market for commercial coal is cut in half by the new Ohio rates. Under the old rates, about 6,000,000 tons of Ohio coal and between 3,000,000 and 4,000,000 tons of Pittsburgh district coal were marketed in Ohio, exclusive of the Youngstown district.

Cigar Stores Get Restraining Writ

The United Cigar Stores Company, for which a receiver was appointed Monday, today took steps in Federal Court to prevent ejectment from any of its nine stores in the Pittsburgh district for rent payments.

Judge R. M. Gibson granted a restraining order after counsel for the receiver, the Irving Trust Company, of New York, had reported a probable reorganization of the company. No action to oust the company had been taken by any landlords and the court move was simply precautionary.

Killed by Train Sleeping on Tracks

Charles Zern, 50, died in Mercy Hospital today a few hours after he had lost both legs when struck by a shifting engine on the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad near Voeghtly street, North Side. The police said he had apparently fallen asleep there. The hospital record gave his address as 156 Grant street.

EAST END WIFE ASKS DIVORCE

Mrs. Pearl J. Allen, 502 South Lang avenue, who parted from her husband, Anson W. Allen, Lovelace street, August 22, has filed a libel in divorce in Common Pleas Court alleging cruelty and indignities. They were married October 11, 1924.

Other divorce libels filed included: Ruth Brandon vs. Frank S. Brandon. Julian Luba vs. Mary Luba, Thelma J. Duffy vs. John C. Duffy, Kenneth Rooney vs. Bertha Rooney, Wilbert V. Willett vs. Laura E. Willett, Frank Petritis vs. Anna Petritis, Annette R. Reno vs. Ralph V. Reno.

SWINDLED MAN SHOOTS SELF

CHARLEROI, Pa., Sept. 1.—Swindled out of $3,000, Andrew Wasas, 35, of Donora, is dying in the Monongahela Hospital from two self-inflicted bullet wounds in his head.

Wasas drew $3,000 savings from a bank to enter an alleged real estate deal, he told police, with two other men he drove to Wheeling yesterday, where they purchased a strong box and started to return to Donora.

Contending that they had $56,000 in the box, the two swindlers had Wasas place his money in the box and then exchanged it for another. Wasas came home, discovered the loss, and shot himself. His chances for recovery are remote, doctors said.

Kansas Gas Rate Reduced 9½ Cents

TOPEKA, Kan., Sept. 1.—(AP.)—A revised ruling of the Kansas Public Service Commission today ordered distributing companies of the Cities Service Gas Company to charge 30 cents a thousand cubic feet at the city gate, instead of the current 39.5 cent rate.

The finding, applying to 12 distributing concerns serving approximately 80 cities and towns in the state, was announced after a rehearing on an order lowering the rate to 29.5 cents.

Australia Budget To Show Surplus

CANBERRA, Australia, Sept. 1.—(AP.)—Prime Minister J. A. Lyons, who is also treasurer of the commonwealth, presented a balanced budget, excluding the war service debt to the United Kindom, in the House of Representatives today. He showed an estimated surplus of £12,000. If the war service debts are included, however, the surplus would be turned into a deficit of £4,900,000.

NEW DOWNSTAIR STORE OPENED

A line of hundreds of women and children dedicated Horne's new downstairs store this morning.

The dedication wasn't formal. For the procession that made its way into the new, brilliantly appointed addition to the store were customers, mostly mothers outfitting their children for the school season. There were a lot of women's hats there, too, and what woman can pass a showing of hats.

The new downstairs store brought back 125 Horne employes that had been furloughed.

"I was hungry and broke."

He was held for court.

16 New Cases Put Under Quarantine

The City Department of Health today reports these new cases in quarantine: Scarlet fever, 3; whooping cough, 9, and pneumonia, 4.

WILL ROGERS SAYS

To the Editor, Sun-Telegraph:

BISHOP, CAL., Sept. 1.

In a Los Angeles bank robbery last week due to the bravery of a bank official, and the efficiency of the police, two were killed. They caught all the rest. I think it was four captured. Well I wish you could read the crime and jail records of all those six men. They had been pardoned or paroled from every institution in the state at least once a month for the last 15 years. Their records read like they had just played a series of one night stands in each jail. They weren't prisoners, they were traveling men, making hotels out of jails, and that's not an unusual case in any state. Pardoning has been one industry that hasn't been hit by depression. When have you read anywhere of a crime being committed by an amateur?

Will Rogers

Yours,

WILL ROGERS.

WOMAN KICKS BOXHOLDING HECKLER

MANSFIELD, O., Sept. 1.—Several thousand persons, gathered to hear the Rev. James R. Cox, of Pittsburgh, presidential nominee of the Jobless party, in Canton yesterday afternoon, booed and silenced a radical who attempted to heckle the campaigning priest.

The radical stood on a box, waved a copy of the Jobless party's platform about and started to jeer the candidate.

WOMAN KICKS BOX

A woman in the audience was the first to champion Father Cox. She kicked the box from beneath the intruding speaker.

Canton police did not interfere. In fact, no police were present.

At Massillon Mayor Jacob Coxey, who led the jobless march to Washington in 1894, welcomed Father Cox, leader of the jobless parade of 1932.

Mayor Coxey, himself a candidate for President on the Farmer-Labor ticket, said he isn't even on the ballot of his own state. Incidentally, the aged but picturesque Coxey also is running for Congress.

Father Cox told Mayor Coxey:

"After myself I would like to see you elected."

TALKS IN MANSFIELD

In Mansfield last night, speaking on the town square, Father Cox pleaded for a return to the principles of Washington and Lincoln. He declared:

"The capitalistic workings of the government have made a mockery of the principle that all men shall be free, for what freedom has the man who is denied the right to earn a living?"

Today the presidential nominee continues across Ohio, which, for the most part, is extending him a friendly welcome. He was to visit Galion and proceed to Bucyrus and Upper Sandusky, making his evening address at Lima. Tomorrow he will swing into Indiana.

SCHOOL BELLS CALL 100,000 CHILDREN

Bells calling more than 100,000 children to city schools today tolled the end of a two-month vacation.

Plans made for the opening went off without a hitch, Dr. Ben G. Graham, superintendent of schools, said, and scattered early reports indicated that the anticipated enrollment of approximately 107,000 might be exceeded.

As the pupils filed into the various buildings, three new structures were used for the first time, and at two other plants extensive additions were made.

County schools will open next Tuesday, when approximately 165,000 pupils will appear. In the city parochial schools, 44,100 were expected to register today preparatory to the opening next Tuesday.

The new schools being used for the first time today were the Arsenal Junior High School, the Prospect Junior High School and the Mifflin School in Lincoln place. Additions have been made to Westinghouse High and the Latimer Elementary School.

New schools to be used, outside the city, next week include the Munhall High School, Shaler Township High School, Richland Township Consolidated School and the Brentwood High School.

OPEN DEMOCRAT STATE DRIVE

MEADVILLE, Pa., Sept. 1.—(AP.)—Vigorous condemnations of the Republican administration's handling of economic affairs were hurled by speakers as the Roosevelt-Garner campaign was launched at a Democratic rally at Conneaut Lake Park yesterday.

More than 1,000 persons heard former Gov. Richard A. Cooper, of South Carolina, and Lawrence A. Rupp, of Allentown, Democratic candidate for the United States Senate, charge short-sightedness of Republican leaders in failing to heed signs of impending economic stress.

Cooper assailed the Eighteenth Amendment, declaring it divided responsibility and authority and that no government can be properly run thus. He said opponents of prohibition are "advocates of the principle of government that is basic in representative democracy."

Rupp attacked the Republican tariff wall and said labor has everything to gain in lowering of the wall.

ST. GAUDENS' SON SAFE

Surprised that concern had been felt for his safety, Augustus St. Gaudens, son of Homer St. Gaudens, art director of Carnegie Institute, was found late yesterday by Pilot Cal Latham on the uninhabited key 28 miles south of Miami, Fla., according to an Associated Press dispatch.

The youth, for whom Coast Guard cutters and Pilot Latham had searched most of yesterday when it was feared he was lost in the Atlantic during a storm, was unconcernedly picking limes when Latham sighted hit boat and landed.

St. Gaudens, who left Miami Monday night alone in a 22-foot sloop, said he had had an hour's warning of the storm and had run into Caesar's Creek to shelter.

Homer St. Gaudens has been spending the summer at his home at Cornish, N. H.

500 DIE IN WAR IN ECUADOR

GUAYAQUIL, Ecuador, Sept. 1.—(AP.)—The bloody battle of Quito rapidly approached a climax today as the rebel adherents of Neptali Bonifaz considered an ultimatum to surrender or suffer the consequences of another loyalist bombardment.

The ultimatum was delivered after a truce agreement had failed in the face of a rebel demand for amnesty. The federals demanded unconditional surrender.

The rebels meanwhile were last reported as holding to the important Bolivar barracks overlooking the city, after desultory firing throughout the day yesterday.

Since the Bonifaz rebels seized the city Saturday, and loyalists went up from Guayaquil to regain it, more than 500 have been slain.

DOUGLAS GIVEN ULTIMATUM ON WHARF

An ultimatum to John Douglas, Jr., to move the equipment of his Union Sand Company off the disputed Allegheny River wharf site will be served on him today, according to George S. Vang, president of the Iron City Sand and Gravel Company, to whom the city recently gave a lease for the property.

Both sides were conferring with their attorneys. Court action for Douglas seeking an injunction to restrain other sand companies from interfering with the operations of the new company and to compel Director Edward G. Lang, of the City Department of Public Workes to go through with an alleged "oral agreement" has been postponed temporarily, according to counsel for Douglas.

LANG STANDS FIRM

Vang expressed the hope that there would be no trouble. He said:

"Douglas will be forced to leave my property by tomorrow noon. I didn't want to be mean about it and I told him he could stay there until then."

Police action has been called off, according to Director Lang, who renewed the lease with the Iron City Sand Company. Director Lang said:

"Mr. Vang tells me he has agreed with Douglas to allow him to remain until Friday noon. So far as the city is concerned, we are through."

POLICE AID ASKED

Lang had previously appealed to the Department of Public Safety to cast loose the moorings of Douglas' boats on the wharf near the foot of Sixth street, by force if necessary. No police appeared.

In the suit filed by Douglas and now postponed, Director Lang is made defendant along with four sand companies and F. O. Reed, secretary of the Building Trades Employers' Association, in a bill of equity filed for Douglas by Attorney Walter F. Michael, which seeks to restrain them from interfering with Douglas' use of the wharf.

The bill also alleges that an oral agreement was made by Director Lang on August 25 to allow Douglas to lease the space formerly occupied by the Iron City Sand and Gravel Company below Duquesne way, near the foot of Sixth street.

Conspiracy on the part of the four sand and gravel companies including the Iron City Sand and Gravel Company, the McCrady-Rodgers Company, the Pittsburgh Gravel Company and the J. K. Davison Company, Director Lang and Reed to prevent Douglas from getting the wharfage is charged.

RENT CHARGE

Informed of the action, Lang would make no comment. Assistant City Solicitor T. M. Benner has announced that Douglas owes the city $12,000 rent on quarters which he formerly held in the Exposition Building.

Douglas, in a statement today, declared he is battling against a sand and gravel monopoly that has existed for years. He said:

"If the river monopolies have their way, no one can use Pittsburgh's municipal wharves but themselves. Consequently, no one can engage in the sand and gravel business without their consent. In short, we are battling against a conspiracy or a combination in restraint of trade."

Douglas' new company has received the approval of the Hoisting Engineers' Union, now on strike at the postoffice. Two other sand and gravel companies at Kittanning, Pa., have also been approved, after signing agreements with Peter J. Dagnell, business agent of the union, to use union engineers in hoisting from barge to bank.

At present, the site which the city re-leased to the Iron City Sand and Gravel Company after Douglas sought to obtain it is blocked with two barges containing old timber and junk. These are merely holding a place, it is reported, for the sand and gravel bins and float which Douglas is having brought down the river from Kittanning.

COMPTROLLER POLE QUITTING

WASHINGTON, Sept. 1.—(AP.)—John W. Pole is awaiting word from President Hoover to quit his post as comptroller of the currency.

He has requested to be relieved as soon as conveniently possible. President Hoover is understood to be considering a succesor to the comptroller.

Pole declined to discuss his resignation after it was confirmed in an administration quarter. No explanation was forthcoming in explaining the comptroller's action.

President Coolidge appointed Pole comptroller November 20, 1928, just after President Hoover's election.

As comptroller, Pole advocated the extension of branch banking and suggested to Congress legislation to allow banks in large commercial centers to establish branches in less populated areas.

Holds Up Officer And Destroys Rum Evidence

FALMOUTH, Mass., Sept. 1.—(INS.)—Police today were delving into legal archives in an endeavor to discover the exact status of Charles N. Savry.

He was locked up on liquor charges. When allowed outside his cell to confer with his attorney, Savry, police said, took a pistol from a drawer, held up his guard, seized the liquor they had taken from him, and then, taking both the officer and the liquor for a ride in an automobile, destroyed the evidence. He then returned to the station house and surrendered.

Progress of Man Laid to Good Digestion

YORK, England, Sept. 1.—(AP.)—Man, like Napoleon's army, marched to his present heights on his stomach, science is told.

Shakespeare, his theory would indicate, wrote "Hamlet" because he did not have to spend all day absorbing beefsteak.

The British Association for the Advance of Science heard Dr. C. M. Yonge declare today that efficient digestion aided evolution. It has enabled higher animals to spend less time on absorbing food and more on improving themselves.

PINCHOT SCORES SLOW DRIVERS AND SPEEDERS

HARRISBURG, Sept. 1.—(AP.) — Gov. Pinchot last night declared, in a radio talk, that incompetent "slow-pokes and road-hogs" cause countless motor accidents, while vanity and impatience are responsible for the mounting toll of automobile fatalities in the United States.

Vanity, he said, is responsible for drivers racing madly, passing other vehicles at dangerous places, and dawdling on the highways. Impatience, he asserted, causes motorists to violate speed limits.

But speed alone, he said, is not responsible for all accidents.

RAPS SLOW DRIVERS

The Governor said many fast drivers are competent and alert, do not take chances, and speed only when their vision of the road is clear and when they know it is safe.

On the other hand, he asserted, slow drivers, either afraid of their cars or paying no attention to their driving, invite the average driver to take chances to pass them, create the dangers of long lines and obstructed traffic, and "turn into main thoroughfares at a snail's pace without considering that other cars may be coming along that highway at 35 or 40 miles an hour." The Governor continued:

"Above all, it is the crawling driver who does not or cannot handle his machine alertly or intelligently, who contributes to or directly causes countless accidents by the mere fact of his inattention or incompetence."

URGES TRUCK CURBS

Asserting that more stringent tests and examinations would not stop careless drivers, he suggested more stringent regulation of huge motor trucks and buses.

He said it may be necessary to confine the operation of these "juggernauts" to daylight hours and to bar them from the roads on Sundays and holidays. He also suggested restriction of their length, weight and speed.

He said he had given orders to arrest "every driver who passes on the crest of a hill, on a blind curve or at a blind crossing," continuing:

"America's toll of crash victims will not lessen until we convince drivers that vanity and impatience are childish things; until we drive all incompetents from the highways; until we go after law breakers, and punish them as they deserve."

COAL FIRM SUED IN RIVER DEATH

The Pittsburgh Coal Company is named defendant in a $35,000 damage suit filed in Federal Court by Robert Foster, administrator of the estate of Robert Lynch, who died February 15 from injuries said to have been met while working on a barge of the company in the Monongahela River.

On the night of January 30, when the river was swollen and navigation dangerous, Lynch was acting as watchman on one of six barges of coal towed by the Steamer Beacon, according to suit, which said that when the tow reached Lock No. 2, at Braddock, a deckhand was ordered to jump to the lock wall and fasten a cable over a stationary pin.

The barge swung around and the line caught Lynch's legs, resulting in the loss of the limbs. He died six weeks later. The suit charges the company with negligence in permitting navigation of the barge in bad weather and in overloading.

'Big' Police Shift Made—Involves One Officer

The big police shakeup heralded yesterday in some quarters came today—and it consisted of promoting a patrolman to a lieutenancy in the traffic division.

Police Supt. Peter P. Walsh announced promotion of Patrolman Bert Keller.

And then the superintendent invited the authors of the "shakeup" to confer with him on just which 16 lieutenants who were reported due for dismissal should be discharged.

JUDGE WARS ON NUMBERS

PHILADELPHIA, Sept. 1.—(INS.)—Judge Harry S. McDevitt, known among underworld characters as "Hard-Boiled Harry," has given Philadelphia police just six days to smash the number racket lottery in Philadelphia, "or else tell it to the grand jury."

Summoning Director of Public Safety Kern Dodge, after a conference with District Attorney Charles F. Kelley and Chief of County Detectives William Connely, Judge McDevitt issued his ultimatum.

In effect it was that Director Dodge would be given one week to break up the numbers game here, and drive out "the gunmen and other gangsters thriving on the racket.

Dodge was informed that the court has the names of ringleaders obtained through private sources and he was asked "what the police are going to do about the racket."

Mine Power Line Kills War Veteran

HASTINGS, Pa., Sept. 1.—Nicholas Harkowich, 39, a World War veteran, was electrocuted yesterday when he came in contact with a high tension wire in a coal mine.

BAZZANO LINK IN NEW DEATH

ROSELAND, N. J., Sept. 1.—(INS.)—A sack and curious knots in a rope, latest brands of a murder ring which already has claimed many victims, today furnished police with clues they believed linked the killing of Charles Krebs, ex-convict, with the series of slayings whose gangland denizens included Vincent Boccio, Andrew Fabrizio and John Bazzano.

Krebs' body, a bag over his head, was found in his car on a lonely road near here. The sack was tied with rope knotted in the odd manner used in the other murders.

Unlike the other cases, however, Krebs was not stabbed with ice picks as the other victims were, but was strangled.

The Bazzano and other killings followed close on the "blotting out" in Pittsburgh of the three Volpe brothers, racketeers, in a restaurant owned by Bazzano.

Krebs, a daring bandit, finally caught with his brother, John and Martin Shannon, all three were sentenced to from 50 to 75 years in jail.

FEARS U. S. JOB CATASTROPHE

WASHINGTON, Sept. 1.—(AP.)—William Green, president of the American Federation of Labor, said in a statement yesterday that while unemployment stopped increasing in August it had now reached the peak figure of 11,400,000 and the only way the situation could be met was to "shorten work hours, create jobs and get men back to work."

The federation president predicted 13,000,000 may be out of work by winter and said "jobs must be created by the million if we are to avoid an unparalleled catastrophe." He added:

"With unemployment already more than double that of last year, we face a winter of unthinkable suffering. Even a substantial improvement in industry could not do more than scratch the surface of this problem."

COMEDIAN FAY HELD IN CRASH

LOS ANGELES, Sept. 1.—(AP.)—Arrested at his home in Brentwood, Frank Fay, stage and screen comedian, husband of Barbara Stanwyck, actress, was free on $1,500 bond today after being booked at a police station on charges of suspicion of driving while intoxicated and hit-run driving involving personal injury.

Police said two detectives arrested the actor last night in his home a short time after his automobile crashed into another car on a boulevard. Police records showed Fay was examined by police surgeons and pronounced intoxicated.

The report said Fay drove on the wrong side of a white center line and collided with the car of Donald Lamont, a lawyer, who was accompanied by his wife and a woman friend. The women were reported to have suffered slight injuries.

WAKE UP YOUR LIVER BILE— WITHOUT CALOMEL

And You'll Jump Out of Bed in the Morning Rarin' to Go

If you feel sour and sunk and the world looks punk, don't swallow a lot of salts, mineral water, oil, laxative candy or chewing gum and expect them to make you suddenly sweet and buoyant and full of sunshine.

For they can't do it. They only move the bowels and a mere movement doesn't get at the cause. The reason for your down-and-out feeling is your liver. It should pour out two pounds of liquid bile into your bowels daily.

If this bile is not flowing freely, your food doesn't digest. It just decays in the bowels. Gas bloats up your stomach. You have a thick, bad taste and your breath is foul; skin often breaks out in blemishes. Your head aches and you feel down and out. Your whole system is poisoned.

It takes those good, old CARTER'S LITTLE LIVER PILLS to get those two pounds of bile flowing freely and make you feel "up and up." They contain wonderful, harmless, gentle vegetable extracts, amazing when it comes to making the bile flow freely.

But don't ask for liver pills. Ask for Carter's Little Liver Pills. Look for the name Carter's Little Liver Pills on the red label. Resent a substitute. 25c at all stores. © 1931 C. M. Co.

Fantastic Tales of Travelers in Early Days Which Were Accepted Because Nobody Could Deny Them

THE average person in earlier days had almost no real knowledge about anything a few hundred miles from his doorstep. This was because there were no newspapers, magazines, telegraphs or even mails. Books were scarce; indeed, few people could read at all.

The only contact most of our ancestors had with distant lands was through reports made by travelers on their return. And since few of these tales could have been checked up, the early travelers let their imagination run wild.

Marco Polo brought back tales of a big bird powerful enough to carry an elephant in each of its claws and in its beak

One traveler of yore told of an Eastern potentate whose defense included forts on 14,000 "Olifauntz"

What Happened?

The result was that the heads of our ancestors were stuffed full of the most ridiculous and terrifying general misinformation. They knew a great deal, but most of it just didn't happen to be true. And they had themselves to blame for many of the lies they heard. They seemed to welcome exaggerations. Curiously enough, the few travelers scoffed at were those who were honest in describing the unfamiliar things they had seen.

See for Yourself!

Some examples of the tales actually believed in the days of the first travelers are shown above and on the left. Many more are given in an entertaining article appearing in The American Weekly, next Sunday. Be sure to read it!

Man Who Is Engaged Should Forsake Wild Parties

This is the story of a long engagement—and a big boy who likes his wild parties.

Should he give 'em up just because he "loves" the girl friend and expects to marry her—some day?

She thinks he should, which makes him peeved; so he asks us to suggest "some tactful way" for him to make her understand that a gent must have his fun, Smart boy—yes?

Dear Sally Martin:

Will you please help me out with an argument I am having with my girl?

I am 22, and I'm in love with her. She is a very nice girl, two months older than I. I do care for her sincerely, and she is devoted to me.

I intend to marry her some day and I have told her so, but I am not able to marry her right now on account of financial conditions. She knows all about that. It will be a good many years of waiting before I can marry her. She is willing to go on as we are and wait for me.

But in the meantime, I like to go out with my gang of friends to dances and wild parties. I do it every once in a while. A few times she found out that I had been with other girls, and she felt offended and hurt.

Finally, the last time I did it, she told me that I would have to make a choice between her respect and affection, and my freedom and good times.

WANTS GOOD TIMES

I told her that she shouldn't feel that way, but that she should go out herself with other young men and have a good time too. She felt hurt even at that, and she told me she didn't want to go out with anyone else, because she couldn't feel interested in other men when she loves me; and she expects me to feel the same way about her.

I hate to lose her, but I hate to lose my good times too. Therefore, I wish you would show me some good and tactful way of making her understand that a fellow has to have some fun. LARRY J.

Well, what do you think of the big boy, girls?

Would you stay engaged to him, and sit around waiting for him, when he has ideas like that? Or would you hand him his hat and tell him to go peddle his papers? You tell him!

IN LOVE WITH SELF

And I'm supposed to give you a "tactful way to make her understand," eh, Sonny?

How about you doing a little understanding, yourself?

Of course you have to have some fun; but what's wrong with taking her out and making it clean fun, instead of stepping out with wild women and booze hounds while you pretend to love her, and condescendingly tell her that you "expect to marry her some day?"

As a matter of fact, you're not in love with her at all. The only person you're in love with is your own pee-wee SELF. And frankly, I can't see what a regular girl ever saw in you to begin with.

Nor is that all. I have a strong hunch that even if she married you, you'd still have to keep on carousing around, no matter how much it hurt her; and you'd still pull the same old line about your "freedom." If she's wise, she'll give you the gate, pronto, and get herself a regular man.

"You're Lucky If You Don't Have to Pretend," Fay King Declares

WONDER IF THEY ARE HAVING A SALE?
NOT DARING TO BETRAY THEIR WORRIES
IT'S A RELIEF TO BE ABLE TO LOOK WORRIED IF YOU ARE!
FAY KING

By FAY KING

The persons I feel sorriest for in these hard times are those who must hide their worries and cares.

The shopkeeper who can spring a six-foot sale-sign on his store is not so bad off.

But think of the poor proprietors of exclusive shops who peep out over silken drapes and must pretend that they are not praying for customers.

We who can find some solace in our audible sighs and grunts over salary cuts are better off than those persons who must economize on the quiet and maintain a certain strut in their set.

One of the toughest jobs in this world is pretending.

It is a real privilege to be so situated that you don't have to pretend!

The Beauty Box

By HELEN FOLLETT

Yellow teeth are not always the result of neglect. Smoking discolors them. When the outer delicate surface of dentine wears away, the snowy whiteness disappears. A semi-yearly overhauling by the dentist will help the teeth to retain good color and will be of inestimable benefit to the gums, into which tartar burrows no matter how often the teeth are brushed.

There are women who should never join the curly-haired contingent. Certain types appear prettier, younger, more chic when the hair is sleek and smooth without a sign of undulation. The mirror and the intelligent, seeing eye will tell any femme what style of coiffure best suits her features. Ann Harding is an example of straight-haired loveliness.

Household Hints

Stale cheese makes good savories, omelets, fritters, or can be toasted.

Linoleum may be effectively brightened if polished with a weak solution of beeswax and turpentine.

An old automobile rim makes an excellent reel on which to wind the garden hose when putting is away for the winter.

Correct Manners

By MRS. CORNELIUS BEECKMAN

A Lovely Gesture

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

Recently a friend of mine was married and instead of issuing invitations, the bride's mother called and invited all the different guests. I claim this is incorrect. What is your decision? WORRIED.

This mother did a very charming and gracious thing when she went to call on the guests-to-be and personally gave them the invitation to the wedding. It was a fine kind of gesture that is so rare in these days, when we seem not to have time and gracious leisure for such friendly "extending" of our invitations. In the "good old" ample days this is just how invitations were given, or sent with a messenger . . . and often with a "posy" of flowers, to make the invitation in this way personal . . . and I'm sure that the invitation surrounded itself with a special fragrance. So it wasn't incorrect, my dear "Worried," but a very sweet and simple way for this mother to invite her guests to her daughter's wedding.

Contract Bridge

HOW TO PLAY and HOW TO WIN

By JOSEPHINE CULBERTSON

The Mental Play

The unfolding of honor strength and distribution as the bidding proceeds is unquestionably one of the most fascinating features of Contract, and is the reason why Contract has practically supplanted Auction not only in the United States, but throughout the world. The play of the hands, when the hands have been well bid, is merely the physical fulfillment of the mental play which has preceded it. Opposing bids may interrupt for a moment the exchange of information between the partners, but when the players know their honor-tricks and thoroughly understand the language of bidding, no matter how successful the opponents may be, bluff bids should have little effect on the final contract.

In hands in which both opponents are so weak that they cannot make even a nuisance bid, it requires only a thorough understanding of the fundamentals of bidding, keeping in mind the underlying purpose—reaching the best final contract in the combined hands—to be assured of reaching the correct final goal, whether that be game or Slam.

Mr. J. A. Slater, of Oklahoma City, Okla., sent me the hand below, which he states was played in a Rubber game recently. It is a splendid example of partnership bidding:

East—Dealer.
East and West vulnerable.

	♠ Q 10 6 ♡ 9 5 3 2 ◇ J 9 6 ♣ 8 6 2
♠ A K J 7 ♡ A Q 10 7 ◇ A K Q 7 5 ♣ —	North West East South	♠ 9 3 ♡ K J 8 6 ◇ 8 4 ♣ A K Q J 10
	♠ 8 5 4 2 ♡ 4 ◇ 10 3 2 ♣ 9 7 5 4 3

The bidding:

South	West	North	East
			1♣ (1)
Pass	2◇ (2)	Pass	3♣ (3)
Pass	3♠ (4)	Pass	3NT (5)
Pass	4♡ (6)	Pass	5♡ (7)
Pass	7♡ (8)	Pass	Pass
Pass

(1) Of course, a sound vulnerable bid. The hand not only contains a very strong suit, but 3 honorable tricks.

(2) A Forcing Takeout. West already knows that it is only a question of finding the best bid in the combined hands to reach a Slam. The Forcing Takeout assures an opportunity to explore all the possibilities.

(3) Showing Rebid strength in the suit.

(4) Disclosing a second biddable suit.

(5) East can support neither spades nor diamonds, nor can the clubs be bid again. Hence, the "sign-off."

(6) Painting a complete picture of the hand. East, by this bid, must learn that West has five diamonds, four spades and four hearts. The length of the diamond suit is shown by the fact it was first bid.

(7) The fit of the hand is at last disclosed, and East makes this mild Slam try.

(8) West knows that East must hold the heart King. The bid for a Grand Slam is only a slight overbid.

Of course, the Grand Slam is easily made. The only thing that can possibly defeat it is to find all the trumps in one hand or for the leader to open a suit of which his partner is void.

Today's Question:

South bids two clubs and West passes. What should North bid, holding:

♠ 10 9 7 6 5 4 ♡ J 8 7 5 3 2 ◇ 6 ♣ —

Answer—North should respond with two notrump. The hand holds no honor-tricks whatever, and a bust response is the only one possible with such a holding.

How to Keep Well

By DR. ROYAL S. COPELAND

Carelessness in Handling Fire and Hot Liquids Dangerous

We often look at a newspaper and read about some unfortunate person who has suffered a burn or scald. This sort of news is particularly disheartening because usually the accident involves a child.

Dr. Copeland

A recent survey of hospital records indicates there is a steady increase in the number of burn accidents. Many of these cases required hospital care for a period of from three to four months. Other patients were fatally injured and many received serious and disabling scars.

Most of the accidents resulted from carelessness in the handling of fire and hot liquids, such as water, coffee, soup, milk and gravy. Careless handling of these liquids causes severe scalding which may prove to be serious.

Scalding is similar to the effects of a burn received from fire. It produces a reddening of the skin with severe pain. The underlying structures may be destroyed and result in the formation of deep scars.

Everyone should be familiar with what to do in the immediate treatment of a burn, but it is always advisable to consult the physician. When it is a simple burn, apply moistened starch, flour or baking powder. This protects the part and keeps the air away from the inflamed area. In a severe burn, with marked reddening of the skin, apply olive oil, castor oil; vaseline or some other ointment.

In the more severe form, where the pain is intense, place the afflicted individual in a warm tub, to which a pound of baking soda has been added. Call the doctor immediately and until he arrives keep the suffering person in this warm tub. Warm fluids such as tea and milk may be given to maintain the body heat.

If the burn has been caused by fire, do not try to remove the clothing. Extinguish the fire by wrapping up in a blanket. Never run, because running will stir the flames and cause them to burn more. If a blanket is not within reach, lie down and roll over slowly. As you roll, beat out the flames with your hands. Try not to become excited.

A form of treatment which was successfully used during the World War is now known as the "tannic acid treatment." It controls the pain and prevents scar formation.

CUSTER'S LAST STAND

"Nature in the Raw"—as portrayed by the great painter of the American Indian, N. C. Wyeth . . . inspired by the massacre of Custer's dauntless band at Little Big Horn, Montana, by the savage Sioux Indians, June 25, 1876.

—and raw tobaccos have no place in cigarettes

Copr., 1932, The American Tobacco Co.

They are not present in Luckies ... the mildest cigarette you ever smoked

WE buy the finest, the very finest tobaccos in all the world—but that does not explain why folks everywhere regard Lucky Strike as the mildest cigarette. The fact is, we never overlook the truth that "Nature in the Raw is Seldom Mild"—so these fine tobaccos, after proper aging and mellowing, are then given the benefit of that Lucky Strike purifying process, described by the words—"It's toasted". That's why folks in every city, town and hamlet say that Luckies are such mild cigarettes.

"It's toasted"

That package of mild Luckies

"If a man write a better book, preach a better sermon, or make a better mouse-trap than his neighbor, tho he build his house in the woods, the world will make a beaten path to his door."—RALPH WALDO EMERSON.

Does not this explain the world-wide acceptance and approval of Lucky Strike?

Walter Winchell ON BROADWAY

Cycle

She threw her scarlet shoes away,
And kissed the moon good-bye;
She pressed her fingers to her ears
When music floated by.
She trained her smile to be a frown,
Her eyes, to look afraid.
She combed the curls out of her hair
And wore it in a braid.
Thus in return she married well,
And has a husband whose
Sole sport it is to chase young things
Who dance in scarlet shoes.

Lancing the Berle

Willie Howard adds to the Richy Craig, Jr., bombardment of Milton Berle, for the latter's alleged gag thefts, by relating the following incident.

The Howard freres had gone to some expense to buy original material for their recent appearance at the Palace, and among the various pieces of business newly injected into their act was a bit called the "television number."

A few weeks after they had completed their Palace engagement Willie ran into Berle on Broadway and received a great back-slap.

"How are you, Willie, how are you?" cried Berle.

"Fine," replied the wary comedian.

"Well, tell me, Willie," the new Carroll star asked, "I can't understand why you cut that television gag out of your act, it goes great with me!"

Tag

To settle the feud between Berle and Craig, suggests Al Schwartz, let's remain neutral, and call Berle "The Thief of Bad Gag."

Keep Off the Grass, Too!

Sky Cudner, the "College Humor" exec., just returned from the coast and relates the story about a drinking party in one of the hotels on the outskirts of Hollywood.

The soiree started early in the afternoon and the embalming began at once. As the day wore on the singing and raucous yelling grew louder and louder. Finally one of the guests, a notorious two-gun man of the flickers, was dared to prove his shooting ability, wherewith he pulled two six-shooters from a holster and emptied them into the ceiling.

Three minutes later the manager of the hotel knocked timidly on the door of the party suite.

"What's the matter?" demanded the one-man firing squad.

"I just wanted to ask you to please stop the loud singing," said the manager.

No Pleasing Everybody!

"A middle-aged lady came into our office the other day," writes Charles Silvers, "and applied for the rental of one of our apartments. After three days of negotiations, we finally convinced her that she was getting a bargain what with the various concessions she had been granted.

"Breathlessly I handed her a pen and pointed to the dotted line. She started to write, then hesitated and asked 'Are there any roaches in the apartment?' I hastened to reply that one of the best exterminating companies in the city made regular calls and as a result roaches were unknown in our apartments.

"'Well,' she sigd, 'I'm sorry, but the deal is off. I have two pet salamanders and they must have roach-wings for their meals.'"

That's nothing! I had a sadder experience once myself. I had almost sub-leased my apartment for the summer when the prospective tenant offered a last-minute objection to the fact that the apartment had windows. You see she had a bad case of measles.

Righto!

And if they take a month's pay away from the firemen, wires a Broadway smarty, I'd hate to be the one to ring in a false alarm during those four weeks.

Repartee-asing

The feud between Phil Baker, who works with a stooge in an upper box, and Al Boasberg, the "Ballyhoo" comedy director, continues. A few weeks when Baker was headlining at the Capitol, the first wire to be received back stage came from his severest critic, Boasberg.

"I enjoyed your act tremendously," he wired, "It made 4,000 people in the theater laugh and in times such as these you are indeed a great boon to the human race. Incidentally, I also enjoyed the elderly gentleman playing the accordion."

Our Theater!

Boasberg is authority for the statement that things are getting so tough on Broadway that many producers have planned to save themselves a lot of transfer charges by opening in Cain's Warehouse.

Tales of Hoffman

The landlady of a Forty-seventh street theatrical boarding house was insisting that one of her muchly overdue tenants pay his bill.

"But you should be anxious to have me live here," retorted the shabby hamateur. "I am a great actor, and for years after I'm gone people will point to your house and say: 'There lived the great Andrew Blokes.'"

Not the 4th

Roxy and Martin Beck were taken on a tour of inspection by the ship's captain during their recent Atlantic crossing, according to Don Hancock, of "Film Daily."

Finally they were escorted into a large compartment in which were stored several boxes of skyrockets.

"What are the rockets for?" Beck asked the captain.

"They're to send up in case the ship is ever in distress," replied the officer.

New Process Cuts Costs

Following three years of experimentation, the use of split film, a new system whereby motion picture studio film costs are reduced 35 per cent, has been adopted by the Paramount studios.

Used only for film on which sound is recorded, it is half the size of standard 35 millimeter film.

The first production on which it is being used is "A Farewell to Arms," co-starring Helen Hayes and Gary Cooper under Frank Borzage's direction. New equipment to handle the narrow film is being installed in all film cutting rooms, so that within a week all productions will be using the narrow film.

Only film used for studio editing purposes will be affected. Film used by theaters will not be changed.

In editing, the pictured action is on one strip of film and the sound on another. These then are printed together for theaters.

In film laboritories, the sound track is now printed up one side of standard film and down the other. A special dividing machine then splits the film.

"BLONDIE" RESTS

Two Talents Combined For Comedy Drama

The talents of Stuart Erwin and Alison Skipworth are to be combined in a comedy drama soon to be produced by Paramount. The story, tentatively entitled "The Bookworm Turns," was written by Lloyd Corrigan. Harlan Thompson is at work on the screen play. Erwin recently scored in the leading role of "Make Me a Star," while Miss Skipworth's portrayal of the title role in "Madame Racketeer," attracted much attention.

'Humpty Dumpty' to Open in Nixon

Lou Holtz, the noted Broadway comedian, will be seen in Pittsburgh again September 12, when the new Schwab-DeSylva musical comedy, "Humpty Dumpty" has its premiere in the Nixon. This is the first show Schwab and DeSylva have been associated in since "Good News" and "Follow Thru."

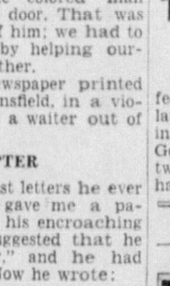
By GEORGE SEIBEL

Just 25 years had elapsed on Tuesday since the death of Richard Mansfield, after Edwin Booth and Joseph Jefferson the most admired actor on the American stage. His widow—who was Beatrice Cameron, the first Raina in "Arms and the Man"—writes me that there is a movement to present a memorial program some time this winter, probably in the Mansfield Theater, New York.

In Pittsburgh Richard Mansfield is not forgotten. Aside from his immense vogue, which usually filled the theater whenever he appeared, his son, Richard (originally called George Gibbs Mansfield), went to the Drama School of Carnegie Tech for several terms, intending to follow his father's profession. I saw him play the Bishop of Carlisle at a performance of "King John," and he played with fine promise. I saw him off when he left for a training camp in Texas, where he died, one more victim of the war.



Mr. Seibel

Carnegie Tech drama school also has some interesting mementoes of the great Richard. A fine oil portrait of Mansfield as Cyrano hangs in the reading room, and at a recent performance of "As You Like It" Miss Ellen Lowe, playing Rosalind, wore Richard Mansfield's boots.

That's following in his footsteps.

THE MANSFIELD TEMPER

There have been many wild stories about Richard Mansfield's temper, but most of them were overdrawn. A single incident will show how slight a foundation there was to many of the stories told.

We were at luncheon in his suite at the Lincoln Hotel. Turning to the young colored man serving, he said:

"Where is the corn bread I asked for yesterday?"

The colored man stammered some sort of explanation or excuse.

"I asked you yesterday to bring me corn bread," said Mansfield. "Can't you get me some?"

Stammering more explanations and excuses, the colored man edged out of the door. That was the last we saw of him; we had to finish the meal by helping ourselves and each other.

Next day a newspaper printed a story about Mansfield, in a violent rage, driving a waiter out of the hotel.

THE LAST CHAPTER

In one of the last letters he ever wrote, Mansfield gave me a pathetic account of his encroaching illness. I had suggested that he play "King Lear," and he had made fun of it. Now he wrote:

"I have been very ill indeed—barely able to do my work—indeed, I have been suffering from nervous exhaustion for some time. When I am in this condition I always abuse Shakespeare (some men abuse the Deity), so you must not mind my outburst the other day. My bete noir is King Lear—because everybody is always worrying me about that old lunatic. Like Uncle Dick's head of King Charles, I fear he will soon crop up in everything I say or do or write. A thousand thanks for the manuscripts and other things."

His table-talk sparkled with wit. He was an orator, a painter, a musician, a master of languages—he could have played Moliere in French or Schiller in German. We shall not soon see his like again. I can see him yet in the last act of "Julius Caesar," sitting world-weary and hopeless upon the rock at Philippi, and as I look a mist comes to my eyes:

"Forever and forever, farewell, Brutus!"

Ball's Flight Shown On Screen

THE GLOBE TROTTER

First pictures of Prof. Piccard's amazing ascent to the stratosphere are contained in the current issue of Hearst Metrotone News with a graphic description by the Globe Trotter now showing in the Penn, Fulton and other theaters. There is a complete film record of the Belgian scientist's great adventure in which he traveled into the unknown a distance of 10.4 miles, higher than man has ever risen before. The pictures show Piccard's affectionate leave-taking of his children, the bringing out of the big balloon, and the attaching of the metal ball in which the savant and his assistant took observations while in flight. With one last look around they are off. It is just dawn and searchlights play on the balloon. A Hearst Metrotone cameraman follows the expedition into the air until the altitude gets too high for the plane. Next the pictures show the professor alighting after his sensational flight, at Lake Garda, Italy.

Gov. Roosevelt, Democratic candidate for the presidency, is seen and heard as he talks to 100,000 enthusiastic listeners at Sea Girt, N. J., when he opens fire on the Republican stand on the prohibition law, which he declares is neither wet nor dry.

At Washington President Hoover delivers a talk to business leaders of the country in which he states that the financial crisis is over but that the country must keep on fighting to stamp out depression.

Extremely thrilling pictures of a staged head-on collision between two locomotives come from Des Moines, Ia. Some of the pictures are made on the locomotives as they dash toward each other and the others show the engines going over the heads of the audience. The engines explode and the cars catch fire and a "good time is had by all."

Thousands of afflicted persons are shown assembled at the famous shrine of Lourdes in search of relief. It is the summer pilgrimage, and high church dignataries lead the devout in prayer.

From the headquarters of the Massachusetts Department of Agriculture in Boston come pictures of their new mechanical cow. All of the workings of "Bossy's innards" are shown, even to the flowing of the milk into the pail.

With the famous driver, Barney Oldfield, acting as official starter, 30 daredevils race their autos around the narrow track in the fair grounds at Lewiston, Pa. Dangerous skids and narrow escapes on the sharp turns bring breathless excitement to a big crowd in the stands.

LIFE'S OF LIFE

All in a Day

Court Story.

WERE I a city editor—and it's lucky for my employers that I am not—I would put a story such as this on the front page. It's just an incident that came to pass in a local magistrate's court the other morning, and it contains no murder, no suicide and no love nest.

The case, as given to me by my genial co-worker, Mr. Arthur Mefford, was a very simple one. Old Tony, a neighborhood character for many years, was the prisoner before the bar. Mrs. Scrozzi, an hysterical mother, and her 10-year-old son, were the complaining witnesses. Magistrate X, a pompous individual who was decidedly aware of the importance of his position and who dramatized every statement, was on the bench.

Tony was a withered old bird of some 70 years. Nobody knew exactly how he existed. He had been seen in the neighborhood for more years than anyone could remember, and he was always poking around garbage cans. In other words, just a harmless, old vagrant to whom Potter's Field had been beckoning for some time.

Mrs. Scrozzi told her story. Her little Edmundo—"a fine boy, judge, and very bright in school"—had been playing in the street with other boys. One of the others—"not my Edmundo, judge, because Edmundo would never do such a thing"—had seen Tony poking around a garbage can. And he had playfully tossed a stone in Tony's direction.

And what had the old tramp done? Mrs. Scrozzi's voice rose higher. He had picked up the stone and thrown it right at little Edmundo's head. It had hit the boy just above the left eye and Dr. Santabelli was compelled to take two stitches. Did the judge want to see the stitches so that he could learn how little Edmundo was suffering?

No, the judge didn't have to see them. It wouldn't be at all necessary. He adjusted his glasses and glared at the withered figure before him.

"Throwing rocks at little boys, eh?" he growled. "What have you to say for yourself?"

Old Tony shrugged his shoulders.

"I don't know what'sa matter, Judge. I didn"ta mean to doa nothing. Never in my life. I don'ta hurt nobod'. I'ma poor man. Ver' poor. I—"

The magistrate tapped his gavel.

"Confine your statements to the case in point," he stated. "I am not interested in your life's history. Proceed."

The old man looked helplessly around him.

From the attorneys' seats on the left of the courtroom, a man stepped to the bench. A cheerful-looking man with bright eyes and a disarming smile.

"With the court's permission," he said, "I would like to act as attorney for this man. My name is Stevens. I'm here on another case entirely, but this matter interests me. The accused evidently has no attorney. So with the court's permission—"

The court considered it silly and a decided waste of time. But there was nothing the court could do. Permission was given.

The attorney escorted the old man to the witness stand.

"Now, Tony," he smiled, "I don't want you to be afraid. Just tell you story in your own words. I'm your friend, you know, and I'm going to help you. Tell me just what happened."

Ever notice the effect of soft words on a whipped dog? The same grateful light came into Tony's eyes.

"Pleas, mister, I didn't do nothing. Thesa boys, they makea joka on me all time. When I'ma feel hungry, I picka out froma da gard' and eata what I can find.

"Sometimes, thesa boys makea more joke what I can stand. Whena they laugh, I no care. But whena they trowa tings, I goa craz' inside my head. I holler at them. And then they laugh some more.

"Thisa morn', I no bother nobod'. I'ma looking in somea garb' and thesa keeds, they alla playing downa the block. Firsta ting I know, some one keed picka up bigga stone and hita me in the back. When I turna 'round, 'nother keed trow old tomate and hit me in the eye.

"Boss, I no know what'sa happen to me inside. My head, she'sa begin to jump inside. I picka up the stone and trow him back. Policeman'sa come. Thisa woman, she'sa hit me. This boy, he'sa scream like he'sa dead. And they putta me in jail.

"What'sa matter, boss? I never hurt nobod'."

The attorney nodded and told Tony to step down. He turned to the judge.

I ask," he said "that the case against my client be dismissed. He's an elderly man and the evidence proves conclusively that he was taunted into doing what—"

The magistrate interrupted curtly.

"I find him guilty," he asserted. "And what is more, I intend to make an example of him. He is hereby sentenced to six months in—"

It was the lawyer's turn to interrupt. And he said an amazing thing.

"Before you say it, your honor," he smiled, "I'd like to tell you that you're not looking as well as you might. Let's go out for a bite to eat and we'll talk it over. I'll stand treat."

The eyes almost popped from the pompous head.

"What's that?" roared the astounded jurist. "Do you realize, sir, that you are in a court of law? Another remark like that and I will fine you for contempt of court. I hereby sentence this man to six months in—"

"I still say, your honor," came the soft voice, "that you're not looking so well. If you'll step into a speakeasy with me for a few moments, a drink or two might do you the world of good."

The magistrate grabbed his gavel and leaped to his feet. His face was rapidly turning purple. Trembling with anger, he threw the gavel to the floor.

"Not only am I holding you in contempt of court," he fairly screamed, "but I am taking immediate steps to have you disbarred. I'll show you that—"

The lawyer never lost that smile. But he talked more rapidly now.

"You see, your honor, how simple it is for a man to lose his temper? I have the utmost respect for you, sir. But, after all, aren't you doing now exactly what this old man did—and for the same reason?

"It's evident that children have been tormenting him for years. One went too far and he could stand it no longer. It happened in a second, and it was over in a second. Are you going to punish an old man for something that any mortal might do?"

The magistrate sat back in his chair. He started to speak. He stopped. He wet his lips. He talked again.

"Sentence suspended," he said . . .

Jinx Trails Riviera

By JOHN HANSCOM
International News Service.

NICE, France, Sept. 1.—Efforts to make this city a Hollywood of Europe have been far from encouraging.

There are five studios, four of them vacant for several years. One is the million-dollar Cine-Studio plant, modernized and fully equipped. The only working institution is the smallest one that turns out animal pictures, but the trained monkeys contracted a disease not long ago.

Millions of dollars have been thrown into cinema production on the Riviera. Harry Lachman, the photographer, painter, producer from Peoria, Ill., expended considerable money in a studio at Saint Andre and then went to London where he produced in the British cinema industry.

Rex Ingram also produced here. A German company tried and failed. The French industry decided to play with the climate, scenery and other things, but there soon was a retreat to Paris.

Film Exploits Columnist

The story of a newspaper columnist, "Is My Face Red," opened in the Sheridan Square yesterday, with Helen Twelvetrees in the leading feminine role. The cast also includes Ricardo Cortez, Jill Esmond, Robert Montgomery and Arline Judge.

Accompanying the columnist on his excursions, the film discloses the mysterious origin of much of his personal gossip about the high and lowly.

SEPTEMBER HOLDS FLOCK OF FEATURES

THE MONTH THAT rolled in today will fairly bulge with big sports doings. The Walker Cup matches between the British and American teams of top-ranking amateur golfers started today at Brookline, Mass. The big professional golf tournament now on at St. Paul will see a 1932 P. G. A. champion crowned on Saturday. On the same day at Forest Hills, Ellsworth Vines will begin the defense of the United States tennis championship against the greatest field that has started in the big annual net struggle since 1927.

Ellsworth Vines

Another Saturday event will be the first heat in the Harmsworth Trophy motorboat races at Detroit between the speedy craft driven by Kaye Don and Gar Wood. Still another will be the start of the United States open polo championship at Meadow Brook. On Monday Tom Phelps and Maj. Goodcell will row for the world sculling crown at Los Angeles. The United States amateur golf championship tournament will get going at Baltimore on the 19th. On the same date Max Schmeling and Mickey Walker will tangle in Long Island City for the right to meet Jack Sharkey next year. A few days later the women's national golf championship competition will begin, and there are several big horse racing stakes on the program. Meanwhile the football season will be ushered in, the major league baseball races will be decided, and for the first time since 1918 the world series will start in September, the first game being booked for the 28th. Some month, by and large.

THE DEPARTURE OF the Braves last night was the farewell of the last Eastern visitor of the National League season at Forbes Field. Only two Western clubs remain to appear in bouts with the Pirates at the Oakland lot, and only four games are left on the home schedule.

The Cincinnati Reds will be here tomorrow and Saturday for single games, and following a one-day jump to Cincinnati the Bucs will come back home Monday to observe Labor Day with morning and afternoon games against the Cardinals. That will be all for Forbes Field. All of the Pirates' 20 remaining games after Monday will be played away from home.

IN ONE OF the games in the series with the Reds, the Pirates no doubt will have to face their old jinx, Eppa Rixey, who has beaten them four times this season and has not permitted them to score in the last 19 innings he has pitched against them.

But Rixey this time will not have had as much rest as usual between appearances against the Pirates. He worked a full game against the Phillies last Sunday and beat them, 3 to 2. At least it can no longer be said that Pittsburgh is the only club he has licked.

THEODORE E. MUELLER, prominent race horse owner, is back in Pittsburgh for the first time since he lost the pride of his stable, the crack 4-year-old, Pittsburgher. Owner Mueller's ill luck did not end there, for a few days later it was found necessary to destroy a second of his thoroughbreds, an infection having developed from an injury that resulted when it was kicked by another horse. Mueller is still broken up over the loss of Pittsburgher, the best horse he ever owned, but he takes a sportsmanlike view of the mishap and says nobody was to blame. "It was not the fault of the jockey or any one else," he said. "It was just an accident, one of those mishaps that cannot be avoided in racing."

Dizzy Dean

EAGER TO PILE up as many victories as possible, Dizzy Dean, who recently pitched and won three games in five days, would try to pitch every day if Gabby Street would let him, his club mates declare.

Working at a normal pace, Dean will be one of the National League's best pitchers for the next 10 years, other players predict. He has everything except a knowledge of his own limitations, is an excellent fielder, holds runners on the bases with skill and is a better hitter than most pitchers. But it is said that if allowed to follow his own inclinations he will burn himself out in a couple of seasons.

THE CHICAGO AMERICAN Giants and the Homestead Grays will meet in a series starting at Chicago on Labor Day and including a doubleheader at Forbes Field on Saturday, September 10, when Willie Foster, star of the Grays' pitching staff last year, probably will oppose the veteran Joe Williams on the slab.

Cum Posey writes: "Despite injuries to star players and the desertion of three players to Kansas City, the Homestead Grays have been able to maintain their 1931 record of defeating in the season's series all Negro teams encountered.

"THE ONLY REMAINING rival is the Chicago American Giant club, recognized as one of the most powerful Negro teams ever formed, and the series between the Giants and the Grays ought to be one of the best in years. Chicago has some great players in its lineup, including Steel Arm Davis, first baseman; Turkey Stearnes, outfielder, and Willie Foster, former star pitcher for the Grays. Willie is a half-brother of Rube Foster, organizer of the American Giants. The Giants have not traveled as far East as Pittsburgh since they defeated the Grays in three straight games at Forbes Field in 1924."

THE SENSATIONAL BATTING achievements that have made Kiki Cuyler the hero of the Cubs' drive, particularly in yesterday's five-run rally in the tenth inning to stretch the streak to 12 straight wins, mean just another demonstration of the law of average—a good hitter making up for lost time.

In only one full season, that of 1928, did Cuyler fail to hit above .300. Up to a week ago he had been held to .264 for the 1932 season. He was bound to get going at an above-normal clip when things started to even themselves up for him, and he has hit his stride at a critical stage to make himself a huge pennant factor. In the last seven games he has knocked in 19 runs. In 73 games previously he knocked in only 42.

FORTY APPLICATIONS HAVE been received by Gov. James Rolph, Jr., of California, from men desiring appointment to the state boxing commission to fill the vacancy caused by the resignation of Robert Edgren.

Jim McGirr

Appointment will be delayed for possibly another week, it is understood. Edgren resigned several weeks ago, owing to illness, but the Governor deferred acceptance on the chance that Edgren might find it possible to reconsider.

AS USUAL, THE indoor boxing season in the Pittsburgh district will be opened in McKeesport. Jim McGirr, hustling promoter of the Tube City, will again be the first showman in this sector to get his club under way, having arranged to host the Majestic A. C. curtain in the Palisades rink on Thursday night, September 15, with a bill that will be uniformly strong and attractive. This will be the eighteenth year of McGirr's operations at the Palisades. He has earned a ranking with the best as a matchmaker, and his shows are among the most popular in this end of the state. During the coming season, the boxing shows at the Palisades will again be held on Thursday night of each week, and to meet the times the management has decided to make the prices 50 cents and $1.

LOCAL ENTRANT 2 DOWN AFTER NINE HOLES

ST. PAUL, Sept. 1.—(AP.)—Olin Dutra, sharp-shooting Santa Monica (Cal.), star, staggered par and Reggie Myles, tiny Scot from Ashland, O., to boom to a 4 up lead at the quarter mark of their second-round, 36-hole match today in the national professional golf championship.

Dutra was going great and toured the nine holes in 34 strokes, two under par. The cards:

Par, out	4	4	5	3	4	3	5	4	4	—36
Dutra, out	4	4	5	2	5	3	5	4	4	—36
Myles, out	5	5	5	3	4	7	5	3	3	—38

Olin was making a romp of it and through the fourteenth was 6 up.

VINCE ELDRED TRAILS

Bobby Cruickshank, of New York, staged another great comeback to go 2 up over Vincent Eldred, of Pittsburgh. He lost the first two holes, but won four of the next seven with a birdie and three pars. On the third, he chipped into the cup from a deep trap 25 feet away. The cards:

Eldred, out	3	4	5	3	5	4	5	4	5	—38
Cruickshank, out	4	5	4	3	4	3	5	4	4	—36

Herman Barron, of Port Chester, N. Y., snatched a one-hole lead at nine over Abe Espinosa, of Chicago. Each had medals of 37, one over par.

ED DUDLEY LEADS

Ed Dudley, of Wilmington, Del., one of the title favorites, went 2 up on Henry Picard, of Charleston, S. C., with a 35 on his outward trip. Dudley won three holes with a stymie, a 10-foot putt and a dead approach, and lost the fifth, where he hooked his tee shot into the rough and lost a shot to par.

Charging along with sub-par golf, Johnny Golden, of Noroton, Conn., and Al Collins, of Kansas City, were all square through nine. Collins tied it up on the ninth when Golden muffed a short putt. Each had medal cards of 35, one under par.

Hockey Leaders To Confer Here

Bill Dwyer, owner of the New York Americans, of the National Hockey League, and said to be a stockholder in the local franchise in the circuit, is to appear here this week to confer with Attorney James F. Callahan, president of the local National League club, regarding plans for the 1932-33 season.

Callahan today said that he expected Dwyer to arrive tomorrow or Saturday. An architect may accompany the New York club owner here to prepare plans for the remodeling of Duquesne Garden.

EXPLANATION OF YESTERDAY'S CARTOON: THE LUMBERJACK'S SHAVE—To prove that the timberman of today is just as rough and sturdy as he ever was, Paul Chriss, of the Oregon Woods, assisted by a steel-nerved fellow faller, J. S. Babcock, gave a public demonstration of shaving with an axe at the 4-L Club in Portland, on June 21, 1932. As deftly as the most expert of tonsorial artists, Chriss lathered the unflinching Mr. Babcock, and wielding his oversized "razor" easily and somewhat carelessly, gave the latter a perfect shave, and at the finish he broke the tense and determined silence of the audience by a laughing shout, "Next."

TOMORROW: A FISH THAT IS A CANDLE.

BRITONS TRAIL U. S. GOLFERS

BROOKLINE, Mass., Sept. 1.—(AP.)—Leading another sweeping American charge against Great Britain along the Walker Cup golf battle front, Jess Sweetser and George Voigt, veteran New York combination, were 3 up today on the British brothers, Rex and Lister Hartley, after the first 18 holes of their 36-hole Scotch foursome match.

Spectacular putting by Sweetser featured the homecoming nine of the morning round in the first of today's four international matches. He and Voigt got four birdies altogether, but were hard pressed to keep their early advantage, as the Hartley brothers matched the sub-par 35 of the Americans on the inward route. Sweetser and Voigt finished the round with a medal tally of 73, two over par, while the Hartleys posted 74.

YOUNG TEAMS STAR

Recovering from a brief lapse in their spectacular golf, the youthful American team of Gus Moreland, from Dallas, and Charley Seaver, from Los Angeles, overwhelmed the British champion, John DeForest, and Tony Torrance, team captain, to pile up a lead of 7 up over the first 18 holes.

The American team captain, Francis Ouimet, and George T. Dunlap, Jr., former Princeton ace, finished the morning round 5 up, against John Stout and John Burke.

Continuing the big push, Don Moe and Billy Howell, young American combination, rolled up a margin of 7 up over Eric Fiddian and Erie McRuvie.

MOE-HOWELL BEST

Moe and Howell put together the best round of the morning, a 69, two under par, as they came back in a sparkling 33.

In all, the Americans placed themselves in a position where another victory in the cup series seemed inevitable. If they win the four foursome this afternoon, as indicated, they would need only three wins in tomorrow's eight singles matches to retain the cup.

Caddies Play Match In Darkness

KANE, Pa., Sept 1.—(INS.)—Inspired by the eclipse, finalists in the annual caddies' tournament of the Kane Country Club today had demonstrated that daylight is not essential for a good golf game.

The entrants played the last five holes of an 18-hole match in total darkness last night. Ray Larson shot a 38 and 41 for a remarkable score of 70 to defeat his brother, Melvin, who got a 43 and 38 for 81.

No lights were used. Fellow caddies located the balls by stationing themselves along the fairways and listening. Not one ball was lost.

PARKS NETMEN ADVANCE

Semi-final matches are being played this afternoon in the first doubles tennis tournament on the courts of South County Park. The final round will be played tomorrow morning at 10 o'clock.

Dixon and Ackerman and Wald and Booth survived the fifth round today, assuring themselves of a place in the semi-finals. Today's summary:

Third round—J. Traa and Ed Hotz defeated Eichler and Oake, 7-5, 1-6, 6-1; Ralph Bald and Thompson defeated R. Meyers and Bickle, 7-5, 1-6, 6-2.

Fourth round—Ben Rish and James Salles defeated Homer Kurtz and Ralph Quick, 6-1, 1-6, 8-6; Gold and M. Saperstein defeated Ralph Bald and Thomson, by default; Rose and Zimmerman defeated J. Traa and Ed Hotz, 6-3, 6-4.

Fifth round—Dixon and Ackerman defeated Tetzl and Oettinger, 7-9, 3-6, 6-3; Wald and Booth defeated Salles and Rish, 6-2, 6-0.

LABOR DAY RACES

Two auto races are on the books for Labor Day. One, a 100-mile dirt track race at Arden Downs, near Washington, Pa., is a postponed affair from last Sunday. Sharon is the scene of the other derby, it also will be for 100 miles, semi-stock cars.

W. & J. GRIDDER HURT

WASHINGTON, Pa., Sept. 1.—Carl Rubenheim, of Pittsburgh, a guard on the Wash.-Jeff College team, was the first grid casualty of the season. He injured his shoulder in falling on the ball.

DON IN FINAL WORKOUT

DETROIT, Sept. 1.—(AP.)—Kaye Don piloted his Miss England III through rough water in Lake St. Clair this morning, completing his last trial run before the Harmsworth trophy race, the first heat of which will be run Saturday at 6:30 a. m.

Don, with Dick Garner, his mechanic, sent the huge white speedboat around the seven-mile course as fast as the choppy water would permit. The boat threw 15 feet of wash in the air as it bounced over the rough water and Don was unable to show any burst of speed on the straightaway.

One of the spectators was Gar Wood, whose 48-cylinder Miss America X will defend the trophy.

Thrown into Lake St. Clair when their speedboat capsized while traveling 45 miles an hour, six members of the Harmsworth Trophy race committee were rescued today as they clung to the overturned boat.

The six, W. D. Edenburn, detroit, chairman of the race committee; Capt. Charles D. Brown, Toronto, Canadian representative of Lord Wakefield, of England; Robert Millspaugh, Indianapolis; Commodore Charles F. Chapman, New York; William Taylor, Detroit, and Harry A. Van Sickle, Detroit, were returning to shore after watching Kaye Don make a trial run.

Stranahan Re-elected Titan Athletic Prexy

NEW WILMINGTON, Pa., Sept. 1.—The Westminster College athletic council reappointed James A. Stranahan, of Mercer; Dr. William McClelland, of New Castle, and James A. Pitzer, of New Wilmington, as members of the board for another year here yesterday. Dr. S. E. Calhoun, president of the Alumni Association, made the announcement.

Stranahan again will be president, and Pitzer will resume his duties as treasurer. Another meeting is scheduled today to elect other officers.

MAX BAER WINS OVER SCHAAF

CHICAGO, Sept. 1.—(AP.)—Max Baer, California's contender for the heavyweight championship of the world, today had a knockout over Ernie Schaaf, of Boston—but it never will find its way into the record books.

After one of the most astonishing finishes seen in any ring, Schaaf, the protege of Jack Sharkey, world heavyweight titleholder, was stretched out cold in the battle pit of the Chicago Stadium last night, knocked out just as the bell sounded ending their 10-round contest. From the battle Baer salvaged a mere decision victory over the man who had been regarded as the better of the younger contenders.

It was a drab affair until the last round. Then Baer opened up with both fists and drove Schaaf into the ropes groggy, as several more short rights landed on Ernie's unprotected jaw and he went down flat on his face as the bell rang.

PIRATES SWEEP SERIES WITH BRAVES

By CHARLES J. DOYLE

The last of the Eastern invaders having said farewell to Forbes Field for the season, the Pirates rested today. The Gibsonites made it a clean sweep over the Boston Braves yesterday as they copped the finale, 2-1, but they failed to gain an inch of ground on the magical Cubs, who seem to be able to get the wining run over regardless of the size of the hurdle.

The Bruins have outdone Kellar or Thurston on many occasions as they ran up a 12-game winning streak. Surely they did this in the tenth inning of yesterday. They had to have five big tallies to land the game in the tenth—and presto!—there they were!

CUBS LEAD BY 7½ GAMES

So it would seem that a club that won't be beaten, cannot be beaten. Here is September upon us and the Bruins still have a lead of seven and one-half games on the Pirates, despite a five-game winning streak of the Buccos.

The Cincinnati Reds will come to Pittsburgh tomorrow to pour at two events in the Oakland Orchard. Dan Howley's appears to be esconsed in the cellar, but if they don't watch themselves, the Giants will overtake them. The Broadway outfit certainly has staged a folding act since it cleaned up on the Reds in Cincinnati a couple of weeks ago.

The Reds will tackle the Pirates in single contests tomorrow and Saturday. At the conclusion of the Saturday contest, the two clubs will leave for Cincinnati, where they will clash Sunday. The Buccos will hurry back to Pittsburgh to take on the Cardinals in the Labor Day contests. These games will bring the home season of the Pirates to a close.

The moving up of today's game having erased a Ladies' Day, the Pittsburgh club announces that tomorrow will be Ladies' Day instead, the last free day of the season for the fair fans.

TRAYNOR'S HOMER WINS

Pie Traynor's fluke homer gave the Pirates the verdict over the Braves in the farewell game of yesterday. Traynor came up in the fourth with two out and Adam Comorosky on second. The Pittsburgh captain smacked a pretty hit to center that should have been a single. Wallie Berger was so anxious to hold Commy at second he tried for a one-hand pickup of the low-bounding ball and flivvered. The rocket went through him and both Pirates scored.

Leon Chagnon won another nice contest for the Buccos. Huck Betts was the unfortunate loser, for Huck was just as clever as the French-Canadian, who profited by the unusual four-sacker.

Urbanski's triple with one out in the sixth led to the Braves' lone tally. Jordan's fly finished the marker.

Sensational fielding by Traynor and Suhr spoiled the tying run in the seventh. Holland was on second with two out when Spohrer hit over third. Traynor made a wild dive and flagged the ball. He scrambled to his feet and threw desperately to Suhr. The ball was in the dirt, but Gus made a circus one-hand catch of it.

Because of the fact that no game is being played today, ladies' day will be observed at Forbes Field tomorrow. It will be the last ladies' day of the season here.

Nick Altrock Baseball's Humorist Says:

NEW YORK, Sept. 1.—The other clubs have all but conceded the Yanks the American League pennant and the rest of the season they'll be experimenting on how to stop the New York club next year.

Nick Altrock

But if I was determined to win the 1933 pennant, here's the experimenting I'd do. I'd try a couple of bichloride of mercury tablets in Babe Ruth's soup. Then I'd see how ground glass worked in Tony Lazzeri's spaghetti and I'd sample a stick of dynamite under Lou Gehrig's bed.

I'd next continue my research work by injecting paralysis germs in Lefty Gomez' arm. When I'd finished all this experimenting, I'd figure my own team would have a fair chance of beating out the Yanks next year.

DUQUESNE GRIDDERS OPEN PRACTICE SESSIONS TODAY

PITT CONTEST BIG FRAY OF TOUGH CARD

By JESS CARVER

X, in the form of a thorny 10-game schedule marks the spot upon which Elmer Layden, head coach of football and director of athletics at Duquesne University finds himself today as he inaugurates his sixth campaign as director of the gridiron destinies of the Dukes. It is a tough spot, make no mistake about that, but to a man who rode to fame as a member of the famous Four Horsemen, under the banner of Notre Dame and trained by the Rockne, there is little cause for worry on the Bluff.

In his five years at Duquesne, working hand in hand with cagy John Holohan, a business executive of top rank, Layden has lifted the Bluff institution into the big league of college athletics. The Dukes arrived two years ago—and followed through last year by emerging with heads unbowed after a strenuous season, which, while it brought its share of defeats, also proved conclusively that the Dukes were able to hold their own with schools which had preceeded them up the ladder by many years.

WON 31 GAMES

In five years Duquesne has won 31 ball games, lost 13 and tied five, a record of which justifiable pride may be taken.

Today Layden and his staff of assistants, Joe Bach, line coach, and Buff Donnelli and Doc Skender, frosh tutors, called together a band of 36 varsity candidates, 16 of them lettermen, for the initial drill of the campaign. Two weeks from tomorrow night, under the lights at Forbes Field, the Night Riders open hostilities against Westminster. The week following the power goes on full blast as West Virginia's Mountaineers appear here. Following that contest the first major engagement, Grove City, tests the mettle of the locals and then for the first time in history, the Dukes play Pitt.

The Pitt game is the piece de resistance of the card, the game for which the Dukes have been pointing, physically and mentally, since it was arranged last year by Holohan and W. Don Harrison, astute director at Pitt. It is the game of games for Duquesne, the biggest single athletic contest in which a Duquesne team ever has engaged.

There will be no letdown for the Dukes after the Pitt battle for the week after, they must take on tough Oglethorpe; then West Virginia Wesleyan; then Wash-Jeff, South Dakota, Catholic University and Geneva in a row. All games will be played in Pittsburgh save the one with Catholic University. The contest with South Dakota's Flickertails is booked for Armistice Day and that with Geneva for Thanksgiving, the frays being the only ones scheduled for the city on those two important holidays.

OUTLOOK BRIGHT

Now then, what sort of a ball club may Duquesne folk expect to battle through such a rugged line-up of opponents? Will it be stronger or weaker than that of last year? Will it be a better team than the powerful eleven of '29, which was unbeaten, and which tied West Virginia?

Coach Layden frankly is optimistic. The Duke coach is following in the footsteps of other smart mentors by refusing to approach a season other than in high spirit. No blues for Layden. He doesn't say his boys will win 'em all. He says they'll make a ball game out of every contest; that the other team, win or lose, will know it has been engaged in other than a pink—or what color have you—tea.

"Give is a 50-50 break in the matter of injuries and in the fortunes of the game and we'll be in there. The boys have spirit and they'll fight. I think we will be as strong as last year."

There you have Elmer's summing up of his prospects.

The Dukes do not figure to present a heavy team, though the line will average about 175 pounds from end to end and the backfield around 160. Men of the caliber of Ted Arman, Ben Barrett, Fred Cristina, Bud Divenney, Red Murphy, Big Jimmsy O'Donnell and Val Tramley and Mike Ferrare, who have graduated, will be missed. O'Donnell was a pip of a tackle, Cristina a tough blocking halfback and Ferrera a hard charging guard.

There are four lads in line for the center job, with young Bernie Ciccone, of New Castle, rating first call. Ed Rielly, who saw service last year, and two promising sophomores, Joe Malkovich and Vic Vidoni, assure Ciccone of able relief. Ciccone is a vicious tackler, last year stronger on the defense than when over the ball.

Nick DeCardo, Maroon Antoon and Henry Weinberg are the guards who won their letters last year. They'll naturally figure ahead of the ambitious first varsity year quartet of Johnny Burns, Joe Rado, John Skrada and Frank Stanish. DeCardo and Antoon will be hard to displace as regulars.

TACKLES STRONG

Four fine tackles from last year, John Donohoe, Al Venneri, Steve Sinko and Armand Niccolai, will make Joe Bach's task of building a strong forward wall less ardorous. Niccolai was shifted to an end last year, where he turned in a creditable performance, but Layden plans to put him back at tackle. From the freshmen contingent comes Kavashansky, Wiehl and Paul Burns, all big and tough and rarin' to go.

Capt. Paul Abele heads an imposing list of ends, Abele, a fine kicker, will bear close watching. He isn't a dymanic footballer, but he is steady and heady, consistent and hard working. Krankota, who suffered a jaw injury early last year and subsequently saw little service, is big enough and fast enough to develope into a fine wingman. Gerald Baker, deceptively tough and smart, must be reckoned with. Tony DePiero and Andy Factor, sophomores, complete the list, along with Ed Powell, a letter winner last year.

The backfield presents more of a problem than does the line. Three little fellows, Red Sullivan, Frank DeCoster, the man with the perfect quarterback voice and bearing, and Joe Cutrona, a sophomore flash, are after the quarterbacking job. George Chacko, Big Ben Pawlina, a reformed, if such a thing is possible, fullback, Al DeLuca, the fastest back on the squad, Johnny Sepsi, lettermen, and Jim McDonald and Steve Marin, newcomers, would like to be starting halfbacks. De Luca and Pawlina make a fine combination.

ZANINELLI FULLBACK

Silvio Zaninelli is the only experienced fullback, unless Pawlina is shifted again. Art Strutt and Bill Frawley, sophomores, will battle it out with Zaninelli for the starting job.

Layden gave his charges a brisk drill this morning and scheduled another for the afternoon. Two workouts will be held daily until September 10, when the morning session will be done away with and practice confined to the afternoon.

As usual, the Dukes put on a mob scene with their freshmen. The yearlings trooped in and out of the athletic department offices yesterday from early morning until late at night, but Layden, being a smart young man, took a powder on the horde in the afternoon and went to a basket picnic with his family.

From the looks of things, it will be Elmer's last picnic for some time.

EAST NETTERS LEAD WEST

SOUTH ORANGE, N. J., Sept. 1.—(AP.)—The East's tennis forces held a lead of two matches to one when play was resumed today in the annual East-West series at the Orange Lawn Tennis Club, with six more victories to be decided.

Foremost in the day's program was a singles duel between Ellsworth Vines, Jr., youthful national champion, representing the West, and Sidney Wood, Jr., the New Yorker, he supplanted on the United States Davis Cup squad.

Van Ryn yesterday defeated Tidball, 6-2, 6-3; Shields beat Lewis, 6-4, 0-6, 6-2, and Steffen and Coughlin paired to defeat Alonso and Jones, 6-3, 11-9.

Dissolution Order Granted Syracuse

SYRACUSE, N. Y., Sept. 1.—(AP.)—An order of dissolution was granted to the Syracuse Hockey Club, of the International League, by Clarance Unckless, referee. It followed a suit of Richard Eustis, Perrin Babcock, Carl Amos and John Johnson, directors of the club, who cited losses of $20,000 during the 1930-31 season and $2,000 last season. The action was contested yesterday by Teddy Oke and Harry Taber, Canadian holders of stock.

It is expected affairs of the club will be taken over by a new organization soon.

SEALS REVIEW OLYMPICS

Carl Olson, new Pitt track coach, and Misses Lenore Kight and Anna Mae Gorman, Homestead swimming stars, reviewed the track and field and swimming events of the Olympic Games in interesting fashion during the weekly radio program of the Trained Seals of the sports department of the Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph over WCAE last night, while Hank Gowdy, coach of the Boston Braves, discussed baseball pertaining to the pennant race and the World Series.

Joseph Pentek sang "When Song Is Sweet," with Miss Marian Salmon at the piano. Others who participated included Harry Keck, sports editor, as master of ceremonies; Jack Scarry, coach of the swimmers; Julius Levin, Charles J. Doyle and Herb McGee.

Misses Kight and Gorman told of the former's race against Helene Madison in the thrilling 400-meter final swim. Olson commented on the races between Eddie Tolan and Ralph Metcalfe, the disputed 5,000-meter race between Hill and Lehtinen, Zabala's record-breaking victory in the Marathon and Babe Didriksen's sterling performances, and also analyzed the record-breaking feats of the stars. He attributed the many new records to the very speedy track, perfect climatic conditions and the fine condition of the athletes.

Howard Harpster, Geneva College coach and former Carnegie Tech star, will give a salute to the new football season during next Wednesday's broadcast of the Seals.

Cardinals Purchase Outfielder, Pitcher

ST. LOUIS, Sept. 1.—(AP.)—Purchase of Outfielder Ernest Parker and Pitcher Edward Greer from the Denver club, of the Western League, was announced yesterday by the St. Louis Cardinals.

Parker will be optioned to a Cardinal farm for the rest of this season, it was announced, and Greer will join the Cardinals next spring. Parker has a batting average of .355 in 135 games to date and Greer, a right hand pitcher, has gained 20 victories in 36 games.

DAVE O'LOUGHLIN IN NATIONAL SINGLES PLAY

By PAUL G. SULLIVAN

Dr. Dave O'Loughlin, captain of the champion P. A. A. tennis host, will carry Pittsburgh colors in the fifty-first anual National men's singles title competition, beginning at Forest Hills day after tomorrow. The Winged Head ace battles Takeo Kuwabara, second ranking star of the Japanese Davis Cup squad and fifth luminary on the foreign seeded list.

The survivor of the O'Loughlin-Kuwahara fray engages the winner of the joust between Ralph McElvenny, former Stanford mainstay, and Keith Korner, Gothamite, of Pacific Coast vintage, in the second quarter of the draw of 92. George Lott, Chicagoan and runner-up to Ellsworth Vines for the 1931 championship, is the American seeded in O'Loughlin's eighth.

RANKS AS THREAT

The driving Pittsburgher, in his last jaunt to the Nationals several seasons ago, was eliminated by Sadakazu Onda, another Nipponese contender. O'Loughlin's mighty forehand, which blazed trail to the National Boys' crown in 1922 and pounded to the National Clay Court Junior final a year later, is feared and respected by racqueters the country over.

It is too much to expect that the young Steel City medico, whose opportunities to keep his game tuned to concert pitch have been considerably curtailed by more than two years of hospital work, will be able to advance far on Forest Hills turf through a bracket that includes, besides the netmen above mentioned, such redoubtables as Dick Murphy, Onda, Frankie Parker, Bryant Grant, Sam Gilpin and Wray Brown, all of whom have been engaging in tourney play aplenty throughout the summer.

O'Loughlin, however, always is a threat because of the superlative pace of his ground game and it's excellent bet that Kuwabara, despite the advantage of a campaign of international play, will know he's been in a tussle.

S. Jarvis Adams, Jr., ex-Pittsburgher and now of Port Washington, L. I., is rated among favorites for the National Veterans' singles flagon. Adams was a member of the victorious doubles pair in the National Veterans' dual event at Longwood last week. He is booked to encounter J. B. Adoue, famous eastern old-timer, in stanza one of the man-to-man event.

ENTRIES CLOSE TONIGHT

Meanwhile, and closer to home, entry lists of the Beaver County and Morgantown Country Club invitation tournaments close tonight. Aspirants to Beaver honors at Ambridge must communicate wtih Secretary W. C. Jack, Freedom, Pa., before 9 o'clock this evening. Morgantown competitors, of whom there will be a flock from these parts, may call or wire Charley Hodges at the Morgantown Country Club prior to the same hour.

CLUBS PREPARE FOR INDOOR BATTLES

By HARRY KECK
Sports Editor.

With only a few weeks left of the outdoor boxing season, local promoters are shaping their plans for the indoor campaign, slated to get under way September 15, when Jim McGirr stages his first show in his Palisades arena in McKeesport.

Motor Square Garden plans to reopen on Monday, September 26, if the Marathon dance there can be induced to give up the ghost by that time. Meanwhile, Eddie Kaphan is rushing work on his new arena on the North Side and will be ready to open the doors as soon as the weather is appropriate.

There is a possibility that the new Duquesne Garden organization also will go in for boxing, and bouts also may be held in the Moose Temple.

MEYERS AT GARDEN

Altogether it looks like a crowded fall and winter season for indoor boxing, with plenty of local talent available to send against star boxers from other cities.

Reports have it that Apples Meyers will be associated with Joe Mazer and Jules Beck in the promotion of shows at Motor Square Garden, the city's oldest boxing center, which will have keen competition from the Kapphan Arena, which is being arranged to hold as many, if not more, fans as the Garden.

DATTO TO REMAIN HERE

Johnny Datto, training here for his bout with Charley Baxter at Hickey Park, Millvale, next Tuesday night, announced that he plans to remain here and make Pittsburgh his boxing headquarters. Frankie Goosby, California Negro welterweight puncher, also will hang up his hat here at least for the duration of the winter, thus swelling the ranks of the local boxers.

Jack King, Chicago welterweight, who recently defeated Billy Holt in his local debut at Hickey Park, will return here to oppose Tiger Joe Randall, of Elizabeth, in the main bout of the next to last show of the season at Greenlee Field, Thursday night of next week.

STEWART TURNS PRO

Ossie Stewart, of Braddock, makes his professional debut against Johnny Riske, of the South Hills, in the opening bout at Hickey Park next Monday night. Stewart is a blacksmith and scored a number of knockouts as an amateur. Patsy Hennigan, of Clairton, meets Louis DiSantis, of Cleveland, in the six-round semi-final, and Don Asto, of Uniontown, and Steve Senich, of Homestead, box a repeat number in the second bout.

Irish Kane wants to match Phil Zwick, of Cleveland, against Jackie Wilson, local Negro featherweight, who recently defeated Eddie Bosak.

Local Golfers Lose At Meadville

MEADVILLE, Pa., Sept. 1.—(AP.)—Two Pittsburgh golfers went out of the Crawford County amateur golf tournament yesterday, but a Carnegie Tech star continued his advance toward the finals.

In the second round play, C. Y. Hays, of Tech, won from Ed Thoma, Pittsburgh, 5 and 4. F. Franpton, another Pittsburgher, found himself out, when Jack Micks, Meadville, finished 2 up, while Hays' teammate at Tech, Bob King, Baltimore, bowed to H. W. Van Matre, Cambridge Springs, 2 and 1.

ARMY AND NAVY SIGN TO MEET DECEMBER 3

NEW YORK, Sept. 1.—(AP.)—Army and Navy healed a five-year break yesterday in one of the oldest and finest of all intercollegiate athletic rivalries, and two great service football elevens will battle again at their own instigation December 3 on Franklin Field, Philadelphia.

The weakening hostility of the two training academies for Uncle Sam's Army and Navy, all but swept away in two post-season contests between their football teams for charity in 1930 and 1931, was dissipated entirely as the superintendents of the two schools met in Philadelphia and signed a treaty of peace.

The disputed ground upon which they broke in December of 1927—the three-year eligibility rule for gridiron warriors—was left as it always had been up to the time Navy made it an issue. For three years, at least, each academy will made its own eligibility rules, the principle for which Army held out at the time of the break.

The agreement signed today runs through 1933 and 1934.

"Faced with a situation under which post-season football games are repeatedly played very late in the year to the detriment of the academic work of both institutions," said the official statement, "the Military and Naval Academies have decided to arrange a three-year series of athletic contests.

"The arrangement is made without change in existent policies under which each institution fixes its own eligibility rules but without prejudice to any future position which either academy may take in the matter."

The statement was signed by Maj. Gen. William D. Connor, superintendent of the Military Academy, and Rear Admiral Thomas C. Hart, head of the Naval Academy.

JACOBS WINNER IN SHOOT

CAMP PERRY, O., Sept. 1.—(AP.)—A target score rarely equalled was chalked up yesterday by Homer H. Jacobs, of Dayton, O., in winning the Camp Perry individual small bore contest of the national rifle matches.

Jacobs scored 298 out of a possible 300, getting 100 points at 50 yards, 99 at 100 yards and 99 at 200 yards.

Second place went to Merle L. Israelson, of Corry, Pa., with 296. J. F. Paffe, St. Augustine, Fla.; Bradley Wiles, Chicago, and W. J. Summerrall, Waycross, Ga., also scored 296, but Israelson outranked them. There were 54 contestants.

WOMEN HOLD ONE-DAY TOURNEY

CITY-COUNTY TEAMS PLAY AT SCHENLEY

By TOM BIRKS

Two events on the local golfing calendar are being disposed of today. At the Stanton Heights Golf Club a Western Pennsylvania women's one-day tourney is being staged, and at Schenley Park the second-half of the teams matches in which Schenley golfers and the combined County Parks forces will be concluded.

The County linkers are going into the second half under a terrific handicap, the Schenley boys garnering an 18-to-12 lead in the first-half matches at South Park on Tuesday. And with the Muny linkers' knowledge of that Schenley layout the County boys appear to face a hopeless task.

STATE PLAY-OFF

It officially was announced yesterday by Mrs. Beitz, secretary of the Pennsylvania State Women's Golf Association, that the women's state tournament scheduled for the Oakmont Country Club, September 12 to 17, had been postponed because of a lack of entries.

has been known for some time that the Easterners were not making any great effort to come west for the tourney, and playing another western tourney was out of the question.

The Highland Country Club's classy golf team wrote its name on the Western Pennsylvania team trophy for the third time yesterday, when the Highlanders defeated Oakmont, South Hills, and Stanton Heights at the Pittsburgh Field Club in the final round of the tourney.

The final score was Highland 26 points, Oakmont 17½ points, Stanton Heights 17 points, and South Hills 11½ points.

CHAMPS GET BIG LEAD

The morning round found the teams playing Scotch foursomes in eights, and the afternoon round was individual matches, played in foursomes. The Highlanders got away to a commanding lead in the morning affair, scoring 10½ points, while Oakmont, the nearest rival, had only 5½.

The champion made only one change in the afternoon matches, and this found Dr. Joe Stanger replacing Dick Bouckek, who had done yeoman service in the morning matches paired with Regis Wolff.

Knox Young, Jr., played sensational golf for the Highlanders, and he capped an all-around game by sinking putts from all over the greens. The scores:

The J. L. Thomas nine, of Bloomfield, fresh from its victory over the Book team last evening, clashes with Dormont in the final game of the second-half City League race at Greenlee Field this evening.

The Bloomfielders, with a victory over Books, need this evening's game to win the second-half title, and force Books into a post-season playoff series.

Books tied up the battle in the ninth inning, but Umpire Mike O'Connell called the game, and the score reverted back to the eighth, which found Thomas leading by a 2-to-0 score.

Frank Engel, of the Twenty-ninth Ward Community nine, pitched a no-hit, no-run victory over the North Bessemer team at Carrick Park last evening. The game was a six-inning affair.

PAPALES SIGN TONY SWEET

Manager Johnny Logidice, of the East Liberty Papales, today announced that he had signed Tony Sweet, former Carnegie Tech star end, for the West Penn Conference games this season.

Coach Wop Politz, of the East Enders, had 35 players in uniform for the initial practice last evening.

Ernest Bieri, who was connected with the National Professional League for a couple of seasons, was named manager of the new Erie Independent football team yesterday. Bieri was recommended to W. H. McClelland, of Erie, by West Penn Conference officials, and Bieri is going to arrange a championship series between the winner of the West Penn and the Erie team. Alan Holcomb, former Ohio State football star, has been named captain of the team.

GENEVA HOLDS GRID DRILLS

BEAVER FALLS, Pa., Sept. 1.—The Geneva College gridders, Tri-State Conference champions for the past two years, opened their football training season atop College Hill here yesterday.

Sam Cooper, of Warrendale, Pa., a senior tackle, was elected captain before the practice. He succeeds Tom Stuaffer, who completed his college work at summer school. Art Grahame and Cliff Aultman, star signal barker, terminal player, respectively, looked impressive in the workout.

Dick Jones, who was all-scholastic fullback at South Hills, is back for his second attempt to snare the fullback job.

Blagden Is Winner Of Marathon Swim

TORONTO, Ont., Sept. 1.—(AP.)—George Blagden, of Memphis, Tenn., who learned his swimming in the Mississippi River, today is the winner of $7,500 as a reward for being the first to cross the finish line in the annual Canadian National exhibition marathon swim here yesterday. His time was seven hours, 19 minutes and 52 3-5 seconds.

Gianni Gambi, of Italy, was second, just 100 yards behind Blagden. Isador Spendor, of Port Colborne, Ont., was third, with Martin Nelson, of Fort Dodge, Ia., taking fourth.

SOCCER TEAMS TO MEET

With 14 teams looking for berths, there is every reason to feel that two sections of the Panhandle League will be formed this evening when the teams hold a meeting at the Bridgeville Owls Club at 8 p. m.

Tomorrow evening the Keystone League will hold its second meeting of the season at Bridgeville.

The Morgan eleven will be back, and there are rumors that Buff Donnelli will be back in soccer again this season.

Efforts are being made to get the German Sport Club in line for the Keystone League, but this is a big mistake. The Sport Club does not play the kind of soccer that wins games in the Keystone, and they would fare far better in the Central League.

The Allegheny Valley League posted it's forfeit with the West Penn League at the latter's meeting last night for the coming season. Harwick Curtissville, Springdale, Tarentum and the Valley Athletics make up the Valley organization.

BUSINESS :: Tin Plate Prospects For Coming Year Improved

By GEORGE H. SNYDER

TIN PLATE, which has shown the greatest resistance of any steel mill product to depression influence, also holds the most favorable prospects for a recovery in the coming year, in the opinion of leaders in the industry.

Mills rolling tin mill black plate worked at about 50 per cent of capacity during most of the first half of the present year. Recently output has slumped to lower levels. At present production of the industry as a whole is between 35 and 40 per cent of capacity. National Steel, the leading independent producer, is working at nearly 60 per cent of capacity. Conditions in this branch of the steel trade offer a shrap contrast to the balance of the industry, which is working at only about 13 per cent of capacity.

Excess Packs Out of Market

THE TIN PLATE producers are dependent for their principal market on the makers of cans who, in turn, depend on the packers of fruits and vegetables. In 1929 and 1930 sales of tin plate reached exceptionally large volumes. In 1931, however, the packs of fruits and vegetables were curtailed by the unwillingness of bankers to lend money to many of the organizations in the canning business. Tin plate output was at a high rate early in the year but it tappered off sharply in the later months. Difficulties in securing bank credits made large carry overs of certain canned products a serious problem last winter. As a result plantings and packs have been sharply curtailed this year.

At present, however, surplus stocks have been eliminated from the market. Recent sales efforts have disposed of distress stocks. This year's packs of fruits and vegetables will come on markets with the lowest carry overs in many years. Stocks of canned corn will be practically elminated by the time the new pack reaches retail stores. Inventories of tomatoes will be exceptionally low.

Greater Demand Expected in 1933

AS A RESULT of this situation, officials of the leading companies producing tin plate as well as of companies making cans, believe that 1933 should be marked by a sharp revival in tin plate consumption. If a general business recovery starts in the fall and the improvement in credit conditions continues, the packers will be able to can more fruits and vegetables in 1933 than in either 1931 or 1932.

This will have a marked effect on the business of the tin plate companies as well as on that of the can makers. A revival will replace depleted stocks of canned goods and will add to the sales of most of the major steel companies but it will be particularly marked in the business of such organizations as McKeesport Tin Plate Company, National Steel Company (largest independent maker of tin plate), American Can and Continental Can.

SECRETS OF WAR CHEMISTRY DISCLOSED

EXPLOSIVES, FERTILIZERS AND OIL MADE FROM AIR, WATER AND COAL BY HYDROGENATION

It is now revealed that in the discovery of "hydrogenation" Germany's ability to "carry on" may be explained. Hydrogenation provided for an unlimited supply of explosives and fertilizer. It even promised a solution of the oil problem.

STANDARD OIL ACQUIRES HYDROGENATION

The development of the process of hydrofining (the catalytic hydrogenating of petroleum) to make motor oil is generally regarded as of the greatest importance to the oil industry and to the world.

The American rights to the process of hydrogenation have been acquired by the Standard Oil Company (N. J.) from the I. G. Farbenindustrie of Germany.

HYDROFINED OIL REPLACES "STANDARD" MOTOR OIL

This oil is a result of the great hydrogenation discovery. Hydrogenation of atmospheric nitrogen was the chemical secret that enabled Germany to produce unlimited quantities of explosives and thus to "carry on" years after the experts considered her continued struggle impossible.

Hydrofining, developed by the Standard Oil scientists, is an advanced process which makes the hydrogenation of motor oil commercially possible.

Hydrofining gives Essolube all the five essential qualities for complete lubrication.

Paraffinic oils have three of these essential qualities. Naphthenic (Asphaltic) oils have two of them. Essolube, by hydrofining, combines all five qualities. There has been no commercial method before hydrofining that could combine in one lubricant the good qualities of these two types of oil.

Essolube is so superior to all other oils that we are not only proud to name it after its companion product in quality, Esso, "more powerful than any gasoline," but we have replaced the widely known "Standard" Motor Oil with this new product.

Hydrofined Essolube sells at no extra cost.

It is on sale at all stations and dealers of the following companies: Standard Oil Company of Pennsylvania, Standard Oil Company of New Jersey, Standard Oil Company of Louisiana, Standard Oil Company, Incorporated in Kentucky, Colonial Beacon Oil Co., Inc.

NOBEL PRIZE TO DRS. BOSCH AND BERGIUS

HYDROGENATION SCIENTISTS GET HIGHEST HONOR

Announcement of the division of the 1931 Nobel Prize for Chemistry between Dr. Bosch and Dr. Bergius, both of Heidelberg, Germany, brings before the world the story of what is perhaps the most important single achievement of modern industrial chemistry—the fixation of hydrogen to reproduce by synthesis a variety of natural basic products of enormous commercial importance.

Although not collaborators, and only by chance both residents of this same ancient seat of European learning and romance, the activities of these two scientists followed converging lines almost from the beginning of their labors, and from the standpoint of chemical industry merged in the achievement of commercial hydrogenation of a new type.

STOCK MARKET DOMINATED BY BULLS

NEW YORK, Sept. 1.—(AP.)—The stock market simmered down to a quiet professional trading affair today, with bulls easily dominating the situation.

Selling quickly dried up after the first hour, and a number of shares rallied to show net advances of 1 to 4 points. What looked like professional bullish activity was in progress in a number of minor issues, but the market was obviously restricted by the approach of the holiday weekend.

The improvement in cotton and tobacco prices made for a friendlier feeling toward some southern issues. Gulf States Steel, Louisville and Nashville and Atlantic Coast Line rose about 2 to 4 points to new highs for 1932. Rails generally were higher, with Union Pacific ,Santa Fe and Pennsylvania up about 2. Westinghouse rose more than 2 points to a new 1932 high, and miscellaneous issues up 2 to 3 included Colorado Fuel and Iron, Allied Chemical, Case, Liggett & Myers "B," Gotham Silk Hosiery and others.

Gains of a point or so appeared in such issues as United States Steel, American Telephone, Consolidated Gas, International Harvester, Union Carbide, Radio, United Aircraft and others. Losses of a poitn or so in some of the leaders in the first hour were quickly erased.

Market activity in some of the eastern rails was accompanied by gossip over prospects of completion of the four-system merger plan.

Copper metal continued to firm, with the domestic price boosted another ⅛ cent to 5⅞ cents, a gain of half a cent in the past few days.

After two months of steeply rising prices, in which many prominent issues have more than doubled in price, there was a notable inclination in Wall street trading quarters to look for more tangible signs of autumn business recovery as a basis for the rise.

Wall street found encouragement in the individual reports of railroads on last week's freight movement, which indicated that the total for the country at large, to be reported Saturday, would show a substantial gain, in keeping with usual seasonal trend, if fall business pickup is to reach important proportions.

WHEAT SALES NARROW

CHICAGO, Sept. 1.—Scattered buying gave grains a fairly steady tone at the start today, despite heavy deliveries on September contracts and easiness of stocks and cotton. Trade was small with buyers waiting for the private crop estimates before committing themselves. Wheat opened steady to ⅜ cent lower and held within narrow limits. Zukor Cites Gain In Movie Business

CHICAGO, Sept. 1.—(AP.)—Adolph Zukor, president of Paramount-Publix Corporation, said that motion picture business had been improving for four consecutive weeks.

Forbes

World Still Wags; Things Are Mending

—By B. C. FORBES—

Mr. Forbes

THE WORLD still wags. All minds have not become hopelessly disturbed. Life goes on. Healthier, actually, than ever before in this country.

Take yesterday. Consider how many millions gave up all thought of work to turn their eyes heavenward. More attention has been paid to this eclipse than perhaps to any other in our lifetime.

The Olympic sports at Los Angeles attracted enormous crowds, more than ever before recorded. Many of the visitors stayed for two weeks or more.

Note the amount of notice taken of Mollison's east-to-west crossing of the Atlantic by air. Not since Lindbergh's historic flight has so much public interest been evinced in any aviation feat.

Various scientific gatherings lately have been given a unique amount of newspaper space, even though many of the discussions were not connected with economic or other matters of a bread-and-butter character.

New York newspapers for weeks have published more columns and pages about a non-economic subject than about any economic subject, namely, the investigation into the city's administration and the trial of Mayor Walker.

NEVER BEFORE did a major depression bring on so few labor troubles. Both employers and employed have acted admirably rationally.

The conduct of 99 per cent of the unemployed has been most praiseworthy. Peace, order, sympathetic co-operation have ruled.

True, this country did give way to a period of hysteria. Fear became unprecedentedly rampant. Values were shockingly sacrificed. But sanity began to reassert itself by mid-year, and since then the trend has been in the right direction. Indeed, the rebound in many lines has been as rapid and pronounced as was the descent.

otton market was moving up very encouragingly before this latest shot-in-the-arm was announced. The price had already recovered one hundred per cent. In the long run, it probably would have been better had the artificially withheld supplies been gradually worked off in a way calculated to preserve an orderly market.

This latest attempt to thwart the operation of economic law is too reminiscent of the Farm Board's wheat exploits to arouse enthusiasm among the thoughtful.

SOME MEN WHO had attained the eminence of Alfred P. Sloan, president of General Motors, would not have insisted, always and everywhere, upon being designated as "Alfred P. Sloan, Junior."

But Mr. Sloan never failed to add "junior" to his signature, a gracious tribute to his aged father, whose death has just occurred, after a long lifetime of worthy human service.

IN RESPONSIBLE financial circles occasional reactions in the security and other rapidly-advancing markets are welcomed. Long-sustained, uninterrupted rises are not regarded as natural. Experience has proved that such spectacular movements usually bring unpleasant consequences.

Thus far, the recessions have been moderate, not at all alarming.

YOU WILL HEAR more about scarcity of and scrambling for various kinds of merchandise.

VALENTINE

Captivating Story of a Shy Girl Rushed Into Love

By HAZEL LIVINGSTON

Valentine Begins to Enjoy Dancing After Meeting New Boy Friend

CHAPTER X.

The Nesbits lived in a handsome brick house near the club, in Berkeley. They must have been rich, once, for there were Persian rugs on the dark oak floors, and sterling marks on the spoons.

Now it was a little rundown and shabby. But pleasantly so. Val had never seen anything quite like it. Firelight. Candles. Bookshelves around all four walls of the living room. Deep-cushioned chairs. And an old, dim-eyed collie asleep on one of the loveliest rugs. Imagine Aunt Julia standing for THAT!

Mrs. Nesbitt, slim, waxen, lived in a wheel chair and wore her beautiful white hair piled high on top of her head. Mr. Nesbitt had been dead for many years. Richard, Dorathea's brother, an engineer, employed in some irrigation project out of the state, was home on a vacation.

Val loved the place. She felt like a girl in a story-book, wearing her blue taffeta formal, sitting on a little stool near the fire, sipping coffee that Dorathea served in tiny gold lacquer cups.

But Dorathea was impatient to leave, and so were the brother and his friend—Dorathea's friend really—a short, stockily built chap in his early thirties, with a plain, good-natured face and a collar that must have been too high, for he kept pulling at it trying to ease it away from his warm, short neck.

MEETS "IDEAL"

A few of the men at the dance looked a little more promising, but though Dorathea and her brother knew most of them, and nods and smiles were exchanged, each little group kept to itself.

About half past eleven, Dorathea said, "Since we're all working people I think we'd better start for home."

Val nodded. As far as she was concerned it wasn't a bit too early. What some people saw in dances she didn't know. Of all the stupid, tiresome ways to spend an evening.

A young man, smoking in the shadows, said, "Hello, Richard!" ... Lester!"

The young man moved toward ... into the light. Richard introduced them. She heard his name—"Mr. Sherwood," then dropped her eyes, cautiously. He was so . . . so just what she wanted . . . just what she'd always wanted . . . tall . . . dark . . . like Millie's Jim . . .

ENJOYS DANCE

She put her hand on Richard's arm again, for the music was starting and she didn't want to show too much interest. He'd think it was funny. But she did lift her eyes, take another long look . . .

"Let me have this dance, will you Richard? I just looked in—came alone. I'm dying for a dance. Will you, Miss Macfarlane?"

"Sure, go ahead and dance. I'll wait," young Nesbit said graciously.

Val danced a few steps. Her feet, she thought, barely touched the floor. She knew that it was absurd to think you've found the one man in the world because his dancing steps suit yours, but she'd never danced with anyone like this . . never knew it could be like this . . . never . . . never . . .

They danced again. Val's eyes were sparkling, her color high.

"The next, too," Sherwood begged. "We've just got to have the next. You and I were born to dance together, and we're just starting!"

NEW FRIEND FOR OLD

So they danced the next, and the one after that, too. Val knew that he was acting disgracefully. She was sorry, but she couldn't help it. Out of the corner of her eye she saw Dorathea, waiting with the two men.

Presently Dorathea sat down, holding her wrap loosely about her. The two men stood, holding their hats. Val was terribly conscious of their displeasure, but she couldn't help it. They could spoil her ecstasy, but they couldn't make her stop. She wasn't sure she could stop—even if she wanted to.

The orchestra went into "Home, Sweet Home."

"Where shall I see you again?"

Val's lips formed the words. "I work at the same place that Dorathea Nesbitt does."

"Where's home? I want to see you when you're not working."

"I'll remember. Telephone under Macfarlane?

The orchestra had stopped. People were leaving the dance floor.

"Under Julia Macfarlane — Julia—"

"I'll find it. Goodbye! It won't be long!"

"Goodbye," she said breathlessly.

Her cheeks were flaming.

"Oh, there you are," Dorathea said.

Neither of the Nesbitts referred to the incident. All three escorted her home. She knew that they had judged her, found her guilty of inexcusable conduct. They were right. She had been inexcusably horrid. But she couldn't be sorry. All she could think of was Lester Sherwood. Would he really remember the address? Would he really come?

The next day in the office she tried to be friendly to Dorathea, and to act as though nothing had happened. But it was no use. Dorathea was polite but cold. There was no mistaking her attitude. Their brief friendship was ended.

LESTER VISITS

Valentine couldn't blame her, but it was a new experience for her. The first time in her life that a girl had been angry with her because of a boy. It had been the other way round before . . . she had been angry at other girls, and, she thought, had taken it better than Dorathea was doing.

The times she had gone out with Marjorie, and come home alone, because Marjorie had met some boy.

"You don't mind, do you, hon?"

Of course she had minded, but she had tried not to show it. She'd never held it against Marjorie. Well, let Dorathea Nesbitt be mean about it if she wanted to.

Val didn't worry. She didn't even worry that Lester wouldn't telephone. She was so sure that he would.

He did. It was while she and Aunt Julia were having dinner that same night.

"Who?"

"The man I met at the dance—"

"Miss Nesbitt's brother?"

"No, another one. Oh, Aunt Julia, I don't want any more mashed potatoes! No, no dessert. I'm not hungry. Really I don't want it. Oh, dear! I haven't got time!"

"Don't gobble. If he knows anything at all he won't be here for an hour yet. Idea!"

"I know, but I've got to dress!"

Aunt Julia cleared the table morosely, eyes on Val's closed door. Val was taking a shower, she could hear the water splashing. Dressing from the skin out!

He came about 8, very metropolitan and distinguished looking, Val thought, in his white flannels and a dark coat. She wished she'd put on a sport dress, instead of the dark blue crepe.

But she couldn't be ill at ease with him very long. He swept her right off her feet. They talked for a little while, though afterwards she couldn't recall a word of what they said. Then he turned on the radio, and they danced. They danced out of the front room into the dining room.

Aunt Julia put down the stocking she was darning in the kitchen, came forward to be introduced.

Lester bowed.

Would Aunt Julia think it was funny to wear white pants on a rather chilly night in May?

No, Aunt Julia was smiling. She liked it. With a little encouragement she would have followed them right back to the front room.

Val was a little ashamed of herself for taking Lester away, but she couldn't help it. He had come to see her, not Aunt Julia.

"Come on!" she cried again. "Let's dance!"

Madge Convinced Owen Has Been Told About Box

"Marion will be very glad to have you examine the envelopes in the secret compartment of her strong box."

I spoke the perfunctory words to Lee Chow almost subconsciously so occupied was my brain with the question which had flashed into it at Marion's slip of three minutes before.

"Thank you—and her." He bowed low and backed toward the door.

"We probably shall send for it at once. As soon as it comes, your father wishes you to join us while Maj. Grantland and I explain some of the puzzling things about our—intrusion—last night."

"Please do not call it that," I said earnestly. "Neither of you could ever 'intrude' upon us. Will you ask my father to let me know when he wishes me to join you? I shall be either in my own room or here.

"I will tell him." He bowed himself out upon the promise, and I sat down in the nearest chair to consider again the problem that Marion's slip had presented to me.

Never, I was sure, had Marion heard from anyone at the farmhouse of the theory that the secret compartment of the strong box might contain something which her father had obtained during the Boxer Rebellion in China. But if not from us, then there was but one conclusion. She had heard the theory from someone else who guessed—perhaps, who knew—the secret of the strong box.

SUSPECTS OWEN

She herself had spoken of the strong box to Carolyn, but my common sense told me that not to such a flyaway as the lovable, rattle-brained daughter of the Brixton house would any vital secret have been given. But Samuel Brixton had been in China with Tom Morton, and I was sure that he had no secrets from his rascally half-brother, Charles Owen, whose proposal of marriage to Marion, and her fascinated consideration of it, were giving us all such concern.

Marion must have told Owen, also, about the existence of the strong box, and I could imagine the romantic theories he had spun around the box for her entertainment.

But the fact that he had mentioned the Boxer rebellion, as I was certain he must have done, was just another proof to me that he and his half-brother had been the men behind the ransacking of the farm house, and the threats sent to us concerning the box.

But I knew something else, saw it most clearly. Until Marion was completely cured of her romantic attraction for Charles Owen, no hint must be dropped to her that he was anything but a high-minded, chivalrous gentleman. I knew the "lame duck" complex of Lillian's young daughter, so like her mother in her mental and spiritual makeup. If any hint were given that we thought Owen guilty of crime and conspiracy she not only would disbelieve the charges, but would be instantly aroused to impassioned defense of him.

WONDERS ABOUT MARION

Nothing we could do could so further the man's own plans as to make any accusation against him. I realized something else also—that unless Harry Underwood so decided, I would not tell Lillian of the slip Marion had made. She was just beginning to "draw a free breath," as Mother Graham would say, after getting her young daughter safely home from the Brixton camp and the vicinity of Charles Owen.

I pigeon-holed that decision, with my speculations concerning the source of Marion's information upon the subject of the Boxer rebellion, and turned my attention to the reason for her hysterical sobbing so swiftly cut short by my knock upon her door. Had Carolyn infuriated her with gibing comments upon Ronald's sudden interest in Mary, or had——?

I had left the nursery door ajar upon Lee Chow's leave taking, and through it Mary came swiftly, noiselessly, shutting it behind her and turning the key.

"Where's Marion?" she asked in low tones. "Have you seen her?"

"Yes, she's in her room."

"Is she crying?"

"Not now, I'm sure. She was when she first ran into her room. I heard her. But she stopped at my knock, and when she opened the door a minute later, nobody could have told that she had shed a tear. Why do you ask?"

The Dog in the Manger

The Pittsburgh Motor Coach Company Is Not Giving The City a Square Deal.

The people of Pittsburgh have a new grievance against the Pittsburgh Motor Coach Company.

It has sharply reduced the service on seven of its bus routes.

It continues to charge 25 cents for a bus ride, even if the passenger goes no more than a block. In other cities such a ride costs a dime.

These are the consequences of granting the company a monopoly of bus service in Pittsburgh.

Time and again other bus companies have applied to the Public Service Commission for permission to operate here. They have pledged themselves to furnish adequate service, and have offered to charge less than the Pittsburgh Motor Coach company.

The Public Service Commission has invariably denied the applications on the ground that cheap and abundant bus service would divert business from the street railways and that it was necessary to support the railways in every possible way because the great majority of the people depended on them.

It is time to stop nursing the railways company and let it stand on its own legs.

It is time, since the Pittsburgh Motor Coach Company, which is under the same ownership as the railways company, is unprepared to give adequate service at a reasonable rate, to revoke its franchise and let other bus companies show what they can do.

An Unfair Differential

Local Freight Rates on Coal Should Be Reduced to Meet New Ohio Competition.

The Ohio Utilities Commission has authorized the Pennsylvania, Baltimore and Ohio, New York Central and Pittsburgh and West Virginia railroads to reduce their freight rates for the transportation of coal from Eastern Ohio mines to Cleveland, Lorain, Akron and intermediate points from $1.74 to $1.45 a ton.

The rate from Pittsburgh to the same points is $1.84.

So long as the differential between the Pittsburgh and Eastern Ohio rates was only 10 cents a ton, Pittsburgh operators were able to hold their own in competition with the Eastern Ohio competitors, because Pittsburgh coal is worth 10 cents a ton more than Eastern Ohio coal.

Now that the differential has been increased to 39 cents, Pittsburgh operators are losing business to Eastern Ohio competitors at the rate of 3,000 tons a day.

The 10-cent differential should be restored by a reduction in the Pittsburgh rate from $1.84 to $1.55.

The Pittsburgh and West Virginia has offered to make such a reduction. The Pennsylvania, Baltimore and Ohio and New York Central oppose a reduction.

The large railroads serving Pittsburgh have treated the city very unfairly in the matter of coal rates. By their unwillingness to help the local operators, first in competition with operators in West Virginia, Virginia and Kentucky, and now in competition with Eastern Ohio, they have contributed not a little to the strangulation of one of our most important industries and the impoverishment of thousands of people.

End the Delay

If the County's Voting Machines Are Capable of Being Used They Should Be Used.

County Commissioner Charles C. McGovern is right in saying the Commissioners are in danger of making themselves ridiculous by "fussing around" with the voting machines. There has been plenty of time for an official determination whether these machines will work, and if they will they should be used. Too much time has been devoted to argument over patents to improve the machines, and not enough to getting them ready.

Director Vickerman, of the Bureau of Elections, says the machines can't be used because they provide space for only nine parties, and 10 can be pre-empted at any time. If that is true of one machine it is true of all types. It sounds like an easy alibi for failure to have the machines ready for the coming election.

While various experts are arguing about the machines Vickerman's assistant in the bureau of elections says they will work right now, that in their present condition "they could be used for voting in this election." He adds that it takes a "man with a set of tools to cheat them."

No machine can be built which will absolutely prevent fraud. That can only be brought about by an improvement in human honesty.

The machines were used in the September primary of 1931. Some failed, but in many districts they functioned perfectly, and those districts were among the most distrusted in the city. And such failures as were noted a year ago should have been corrected by now.

The Commissioners have had time to entirely rebuild the machines. That they have not done whatever is necessary is not to their credit.

Preparing for Business

Pittsburgh Manufacturers Are Setting a Commendable Example by Rehabilitating Their Plants.

In the period after the Civil War when the question of the resumption of specie payments was under discussion, with long-winded statements offered as to what might or should be done, someone with common sense caught the nation's attention with the terse observation that "the way to resume is to resume."

That applies also to the resumption of business, and it is encouraging to note that a number of Pittsburgh manufacturers have adopted that very plan. They are reviving industry by boldly proceeding with the rehabilitation of their plants.

The United States Steel Corporation, the Westinghouse Electric and Manufacturing Company, and the Harbison-Walker Refractories Company are among the local concerns that have embarked upon such programs.

With bankers indorsing the plan and calling attention to the large amount of credit now available for productive work, it would seem that little excuse remains for resisting the forward movement.

Wake Up, Delivery Boy!

(Copyright, 1932.)

Since the Relief and Construction Act was passed by the last session of Congress many days have elapsed without the start of a single item of construction work, Senator Robert Wagner has charged.

He declares that $322,000,000 available for wages awaits release to United States departments.

He complains of the distressing slowness with which the Administration is making use of the millions appropriated by Congress for the relief of the destitute unemployed.

Marry-Go-Round

By HELEN ROWLAND

Dangerous Women

That cracking sound you hear, every few moments, is the snapping of the marriage ties, all around.

* * *

Every day, you read of another celebrity who is crashing his way out of a marriage that he (or she) crashed blithely into, only a month or a year or a week ago.

You say, "Oh, temperament!" or "Oh, this modernism!" But it isn't temperament and it isn't modernism and it isn't even human instability that causes all these lightning changes of heart and wedding rings.

It is just the average man's irresponsible way of rushing into marriage without stopping to THINK about it. And, nine times out of ten, with the wrong woman!

If he would put a stop-watch on his heart and emotions, until he is dead sure that he has met the Right Girl, he would avoid getting tied up or stirred up by the wrong girl.

* * *

Of course, the Right Girl for one man might be exactly the wrong girl for another. But there are certain dangerous types of women, who would be the Wrong Girl for ANY man. And, each and every one of these has the trick of making men fall for her.

There is the much-divorced woman, for instance, with a collection of wedding rings, an orchid aura of experience and a finished technique, who can read a man backward like a Chinese laundry tickets, and is mistress of the art of leading him on, while she pretends to hold him off. Her line is "You simply MUSTN'T fall in love with me!" because she knows that the surest way to make a man do anything is to tell him that he "mustn't."

And there is the wild, snappy, peppy young thing, who is such a good fellow and such glorious company at a party. The dazzling dresser and intensive petter, who goes to a man's head and makes him dizzy. So that, some morning, after a wild whoopee party, he wakes up to find himself married to her "on a dare." But, watch your step—she leads you to drink before marriage—and drives you to it, afterward.

And there's always the "good little pal," who may or may NOT be the Right Girl. The one who "is never going to marry," but "has your interest at heart." Who "sympathizes" with your troubles, feeds you tempting home-cooked dinner—and ends by backing you blind-folded onto the Good Ship Matrimony, like a troop-horse.

* * *

If a man can get safely past all these Loreleis and Scyllas and sirens, and keep his head, he can either stay single, forever, or pick a running mate with his eyes wide open. But, in matters of love, the average man not only doesn't try to keep his head. He actually PREFERS to LOSE it!

NEW YORK DAY BY DAY

By O. O. McIntyre

NEW YORK, Sept. 1.—In a recent discursive paragraph, I indulged a fleeting regret that New York police did not look as spruce as usual. I like the police well enough; despite, on the day the piece appeared, they served me with a summons for a muzzle law violation, the first in a lifetime, which I thought petty.

The letter comes anonymously from an intelligent member of the force who gazes upon me from the seat of the scornful. Yet I think some of his points are well taken and here they are: "I don't suppose you run your column to stir up unnecessary trouble these bad times when there should be universal unity.

"You speak of police deportment—the way they lean against buildings, their slovenliness, lack of minor discipline and stealing cigaret puffs. Do you know that the officials of this department issued an order quoting you verbatim? I am myself a New York policeman.

"I wonder if you realize what you started by not being conversant with your subject. I am not defending men you saw violating our rules, but I offer a few probable and natural excuses. The cop leaning against a building may have been awake all night with a sick child.

"You know, we coppers raise children instead of dogs. Or perhaps the fellow in the areaway stealing a smoke had something on his mind. Do you realize most policemen come from poor families, and most of us with jobs have relatives starving and begging for daily help?

"We try to help them. We also have walls that do not hide us from public view. So we take a chance before a broad-minded public and soothe our nerves in some out-of-the-way nook. Then you pop along and make us copy for a bit of undeserved ridicule.

"You should have been a detective, not in New York, but in Gallipolis, where they are still likely burning people for witchcraft. As it is, we will now receive fines and maybe be forced to buy new uniforms. Shame on the officials who took your jibe to heart. Your piffle may cause more trouble in the department than the recent investigations. Inconsequentials frequently do. Big winds blow over. But, just because a yap from the brush blats out loud about something that doesn't really affect him, we have to take it on the chin.

"If you really want to see what is going on, step out some night. I'll even let you take along that wonderful deaf dog of yours for company. Walk two blocks on the avenue and walk it for eight hours without leaning against a building or smoking cigaret, if you smoke.

"If you can do this without breaking a minor violation, day in and day out, then you can bestow a postern whang. But if you cannot, it might be well to keep your mouth shut. Remember that we, too, are human. We have a rather dangerous existence at best these tempestuous times, ducking lead and being ganged by the most vicious types of outlaws.

"Instead of enlightening your public about your weakness for loud ties, the wonderful intelligence of your poodle, with whom you 'tead' the day before, and so forth, you have now switched to telling us how to be cops. Personally, I think you could bake a swell cake. It doesn't matter whether you read this or publish it. The principal thing is I have it off my chest.

* * *

"I don't like anonymity more than you. If I signed my name, it might be just too bad for me. So I'll close as one of the 'used to be finest' as we were christened by a native New Yorker 50 years ago. But, of course, I do not belong any more, for haven't we been rechristened 'building leaners and smoke swipers' by that rare master of journalism, O. O. McIntyre, the Gallipolis, O., boy, who made good in the city—sez you!"

* * *

Now that I have caused a gigantic shakeup in the police department, I might as well go the whole distance and raise Ned with crooners and torch singers. My objection is not so much to their trifling art as to their method; i. e., their posed indifference to audience reaction and their high-nosed manner of granting encores. It will not survive, because it neglects the greatest prop of all public endeavor—graciousness. And after such public service, I'll stretch on the sofa and nap a while.

LISTEN, WORLD

By Elsie Robinson

You n' me, sister—we always want to win the argument, don't we? Always want to have the last word—

And after we get it, we're all aglow with triumph—and go around boasting that we've put something over on the other fellow. But I wonder if we have.

DOES IT REALLY PAY TO WIN AN ARGUMENT? DOES IT PAY FOR A WOMAN TO WIN AN ARGUMENT OVER A MAN? ESPECIALLY IF SHE IS IN BUSINESS—IS IT WISE FOR HER TO OUTSMART THE OTHER FELLOW?

Catherine Oglesby's new book—"BUSINESS OPPORTUNITIES FOR WOMEN" set me thinking about this. That chapter on "Keeping Your Job." There's a subject that should interest every woman living and working in a world with men . . . having to make good against the indifference, prejudice and downright cussedness of men.

How's a woman going to work harmoniously with men? Make men respect her and play fair with her?

Just doing her job well isn't enough. Many a woman does her job perfectly, yet makes a mess of her human relationship. And it's that happy human relationship angle that makes for success—either in an office or a home. But how to go about it—there's the trick.

Of one thing you may be sure—BUSINESSMEN ARE NOT GOING TO TREAT BUSINESS WOMEN AS THEY WOULD TREAT OTHER MEN.

NOR WILL THEY ACCEPT THE SAME TREATMENT FROM BUSINESS WOMEN WHICH THEY WOULD ACCEPT FROM OTHER MEN.

Men may make a million fine speeches about "liberty" and "equality" — and protest loudly that sex makes no difference in business. But, as every smart female speedily discovers, they really don't mean a word of it. And the Working Woman who succeeds with men must know plenty more than shorthand.

And she gives an example of an attractive girl whose job it is to sit in conferences with important merchants and manufacturers and to advise them what to do and what not to do.

"I never win an argument," said she. "When subjects come up for discussion and the tide is against me I assume a ruminating tone—as if thinking out loud, you know, though my mind was probably made up long before then. I then express my beliefs pro and con. But, unlike a lawyer, I never sum them up.

"Soon the minds of my masculine conferees begin to revolve in my direction. And as I make a last remark, I lapse into silence and let them carry the argument to the end. I leave with things seemingly 'up in the air.'

"And when told a few days later that such-and-such is to be, I show (frequently by facial expression only) mild surprise and approving admiration. I get my way, the business is benefitted—and that's what I'm after.

"TO THEIR OWN UNDOING," she continued, "MANY GIRLS WALK INTO A CONFERENCE WITH THE AIRS OF PRIMA DONNAS. EVERY DISCUSSION BECOMES THEIR SCENE, IF THEY CAN GRAB IT. EVERY ARGUMENT IS A CHANCE TO SCORE A PERSONAL VICTORY. THEY SEEM TO FORGET THAT THEY ARE THERE TO HELP PUT THROUGH WHAT'S BEST FOR THE BUSINESS—NOT TO WALK OUT AMID A ROUND OF APPLAUSE."

Good stuff—yes?

Good for wives as well as working women?

Or maybe you don't think it so good? Perhaps you think ladies should have the last word, regardless . . . and it's up to the men to take their medicine, whether they like it or not?

If that's your theory, sister, what—if anything—did it buy you? Let's hear.

ONCE OVERS

By J. J. Mundy

Of course it is annoying when a child cries in a movie theater.

The mother needs relaxation after many tiresome, monotonous hours caring for the little one and hopes it may be quiet.

She needs a change of thought and banks on the babe sleeping.

Few mothers would take a baby with them to the pictures if they expected it to weep and wail and annoy those nearby.

The most surprising thing is that very often those who make the mother of a crying baby feel uncomfortable are themselves mothers who have raised families.

Whirling Dervish Hoover; Mr. Roosevelt

By Claude G. Bowers

Author of "The Struggle for Democracy in America," "Founders of the Republic," "Jefferson and Democracy," "The Tragic Era" and other important works, now writing for the Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph.

The last week was one of political significance. The New York State Department of the American Legion booed and hissed the name of Hoover when Trubee Davison, his assistant secretary of war and candidate for the Republican gubernatorial nomination, was defending the use of gas bombs and tanks and bayonets in driving the bonus army from Washington. Mr. Davison was harping on the Hoover theme that a great part of the bonus army was composed of "tramps and hoodlums." That is a dangerous theme. There are many in America during the Hoover regime who are tramps because they cannot find work. That is the reason that by a vote of 499 to 138 the convention voted for the bonus now. Stupid leadership, the supercilious condescension of the upper crust does that every time. Those tanks rattling over the pavements of the capital of this republic and those sweeping characterizations of unfortunates, out of work and eating the bread of charity, had a lot to do with that overwhelming vote of the New York Legion.

Cleveland's Tactics May Interest Norman

And America was interested, too, in the mysterious appearance under an assumed name of Montagu Norman, governor of the Bank of England. When ordinary men enter America under an alias they are speedily sent back. And Mr. Norman is a distinguished gentleman in banking and financial circles and required no alias to get in.

Evidently he entered under an assumed name and went into hiding in close proximity to the home of Mr. Lamont, of the Morgan Company, because it is thought best that the mass of the American people know nothing of his presence and his mission here.

That bodes nothing good for the mass of the American people.

Mr. Norman and our own international bankers are intent on transferring the debts of Europe to the backs of the Americans, and the Democrats have declared against the transfer.

If Mr. Norman is here to assist Mr. Hoover in his campaign he will do well to ask the foreign office in London for a report on what happened to a British minister in the days of Cleveland.

Roosevelt Exposes Double-Crossing

Meanwhile, Mr. Roosevelt during the week made two strong speeches—one recently discussed in these columns. The speech at Sea Girt, in the presence of a hundred thousand people Saturday, pointing out the hypocrisy and deliberate misrepresentations of facts by Mr. Hoover, in his whirling dervish method on prohibition, was powerful and to the point.

And yet in demonstrating the whirling dervish strategy of Mr. Hoover, it was an easy speech to make. It only required the marshaling and the marching of notorious facts still vivid in the memory of men.

Second, that he doublecrossed them in the attempt to submerge the promised investigation of prohibition by a commission, by making it one of dozens of subjects to be investigated.

Third, that he sought to deceive the people as to the conclusions on prohibition reached by the members of the commission; and this was done by a summing up that doublecrossed the members.

Fourth, that, within four months, Mr. Hoover has said to a journalist that he is not in favor of the repeal of the Eighteenth Amendment.

Fifth, that he, Mr. Hoover, acting through his man Friday, Mr. Mills, with the aid of almost 300 federal office holders in the convention, defeated the movement in the convention for a declaration for straight honest repeal and forced through instead one of the most flagrantly dishonest and hypocritical planks ever written into a party platform.

Now all this was known and was the subject of editorial comment and private conversation before Mr. Hoover put on his second whirling dervish act.

Wet States Must Show Their Colors

This was inspired, not by cheers, but by hisses. Republican papers in industrial centers denounced the plank Mr. Hoover forced in. Borah and Butler united in the expression of their contempt for a transparent attempt at double dealing. And there was much cheering when the Democrats took their stand four-square for repeal and the immediate modification of the Volstead Act and Mr. Roosevelt said in the convention—"From this hour the Eighteenth Amendment is doomed."

This was serious. The South is lost to Mr. Hoover. The Western farmers are up in arms—in open revolt. Without the industrial centers of the East, he would be the worst defeated man in history.

And so Mr. Hoover, in his acceptance speech, put on his new whirling dervish act, trying to make it a bit more subtle. Always an opportunist, he discovered that he is not adverse to repeal—sometime. The Hoover of August swallowed the Mr. Hoover of June, but he did not swallow the whole of the Mr. Hoover of the recent convention. He left enough of the dry stuff sticking out to serve as a standard to which all good drys could flock.

And to it they have flocked.

He is the drys' favorite—and the drys have sense—more political sense than the wets. Whether the wets have acquired any political sense will be learned when the returns come in from New York, New Jersey, Pennsylvania, Massachusetts, Rhode Island and Connecticut.

Hoover a Star As Whirling Dervish

Any anti-prohibitionist, not sub-normal in intelligence, who will read the two platforms and then compare the acceptance speech of Mr. Hoover with the Sea Girt speech of Mr. Roosevelt will know where he belongs.

One thing that Sea Girt speech has done—it has smashed to smithereens the plot to whisper it about that Mr. Roosevelt really is not against prohibition and not in complete accord with the straightforward declaration of his party's platform.

Having nothing to conceal, having no passion for the whirling dervish methods of Mr. Hoover, Mr. Roosevelt made his position on prohibition so clear that even the most hopeless moron can understand it.

Mr. Hoover will continue his whirling dervish acts, presuming on the traditional stupidity of the wets, who have been talking wet and voting with Dr. Poling and Bishop Cannon.

Garner Acceptance Superb Document

Another outstanding political event of the week was Speaker Garner's letter of acceptance, which is so strong, so conservatively worded, so statesmanlike, frank and courageous, that the Republican editorial writers have dropped it like a hot brick. It does not square with the "strategy" to picture the great Speaker of the House as a harum-scarum demagogue. So the falsehood is put in circulation that Garner's speech was "edited" by the Democratic "high command." There is not any one in this "high command" with more political ability or political experience than Jack Garner; and, of course, this story is out of the cloth.

That Garner speech should be given the widest circulation by the National Committee, for in few words he has set forth the issues powerfully. His downright declaration against the transfer of the debts and for a lowering of the tariff barriers against foreign trade to make possible their payment will not be attacked openly by the major part of the Republican press.
